SHOW RATED GOOD CHANCE FOR RECORD

Mr. Pumpkin Show Has His Big Night

Honored By City, Has Picture Painted, Given Navy Tribute

By DAVE BROWN
Herald Staff Writer

Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show", was treated to three surprises Thursday night during ceremonies honoring his 22 years of official service with the show.

First of all, two five-ton elephants from the Mills Brothers Circus were in the huge parade which preceded the presentation activities. To everyone's recollection, this was the first time elephants had ever been in a Pumpkin Show parade.

Secondly, Colville was commissioned an honorary Navy recruiter. Lt. Cmdr. David W. Ralston presented Colville with a scroll.

Third, Dick Martin, a local painter, "painted" Colville's portrait. The art work, done with a standard automobile spray gun, proved to be a splendid likeness and was left on display at Court and Main.

AFTER OUTLINING Colville's features on white cloth, Martin proceeded to use the spray gun and filled in the sketching. Martin said he believes he is the only person who paints by this method.

Colville was presented with a pocket watch by Columbus Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, a native of Circleville. Mayor Sensenbrenner eulogized Colville's efforts over the years.

Circleville Mayor Robert E. Hedges introduced Sensenbrenner.

Sensenbrenner, in turn, received a surprise presentation. William Cook, who again had some of the best pumpkins this year, gave a big one to the mayor.

THE ELEPHANTS were a last minute but welcome addition to the parade.

Jack Mills, owner of the circus, called The Herald to say he was passing through on his way to Chillicothe. Arrangements to include the animals were quickly made with Roy C. Marshall, parade chairman.

Efforts to get Mayor Sensenbrenner to ride one of the huge animals ended suddenly when someone pointed out the Democratic mayor would be riding on the symbol of the Republican party. Big Burma, therefore, did not get the honor of a jockey.

Lena, celebrated her 101st birthday Thursday. She is reputed to be the oldest elephant in captivity. Big Burma is a mere 43.

Burma is quite a performer. She "saluted" President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Washington, D. C. And she loves to play the harmonica, her favorite music.

MANY local people remember that the Mills Brothers Circus used to have winter quarters here at the fairgrounds. Some residents will also remember the fire at the barns there, reportedly set by Robert Dale Segee, who later admitted setting the catastrophic circus fire in Hartford, Conn.

As the barns were burning here, the elephants were released in order to prevent a stampede. Several farmers in the area will recall that the animals made a vivid impression while roaming the vicinity.

Change In Lord's Prayer Is Shelled

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A meeting of Episcopal Church leaders has ended with no action taken on a proposal to change the wording in the Lord's Prayer.

The proposal did not come to a vote yesterday in the closing session. The change was suggested by Lt. Gen. John Courthouse Lee of York, Pa., vice president of the Laymen's Brotherhood of St. Andrew. He said the almost universally used phrase "and lead us not into temptation," should be reworded to read "Let us not fall when tempted," arguing that the present wording is wrong "since no Christian can expect to be spared temptation; but instead the strength to resist temptation," should be prayed for.

Robbers Work Cemetery, Church

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two women, one attending church and the other putting a wreath on a grave, were robbed here yesterday.

Mrs. Ilse Merkle was struck from behind and robbed of more than $20 as she bent over her father's grave at Lake View Cemetery. She told police a man in his 20s grabbed her purse.

Mrs. Margaret O'Boyle said someone took a wallet from her purse while she was in St. Philomena's Catholic Church. She said the thief got personal papers and some change, but missed $20 in another section of the purse.

Most Of U.S. Gets Pleasant Weather

CHICAGO (AP)—More pleasant fall weather covered nearly all of the country today.

There were a few bands of showers and thunderstorms. One extended over a small area of southern Missouri, eastern Oklahoma and most of Arkansas. Another belt of light rain covered area from Oregon coast to Montana.

Clear or partly cloudy skies prevailed over the rest of the nation.

Wilson's Mail Still Heavy On Bird Dog Tale

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson is still answering letters from people who agree or disagree with his recent controversial comment on unemployment, bird dogs and kennel dogs.

He has received more than 2,100 letters and telegrams since Oct. 11, when in a Detroit news conference he touched off an uproar which brought demands from politicians for his resignation and, a few days later, an apology from Wilson for "inept" remarks.

His friends say that of the approximately 2,100 letters and telegrams received so far, over 1,750 have been favorable, slightly over 300 unfavorable.

Wilson is replying, with somewhat different forms, but with a transcript of the pertinent part of his news conference sent to all. The transcript is a reproduction of one published by newspapers.

By the day after the Detroit news conference, telegrams and letters were beginning to arrive at Wilson's office.

When the defense chief met reporters at Washington Oct. 14 he said he was suffering "foot-in-mouth" disease, hoped he was through campaigning. But he looked over his mail, apparently talked with friends and decided recently to make another sortie into politics, with a speech Oct. 29 in Dayton, Ohio. By the time he had come back to Washington, his associates say, there were at least three new invitations to make political talks. Wilson currently is making an inspection tour on the West Coast.

Reds Pulling Out

LONDON (AP)—Peiping radio last night said that all Vietnam forces had pulled out of the Kingdom of Cambodia two days ahead of the Oct. 20 deadline set in the armistice agreement ending the Indo-China War.

Radio Station Helps Drive Starlings Out

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP)—A radio station and residents of two Illinois cities have ended a novel campaign to get rid of starlings and are hoping the experiment in bird pest control was successful.

For four days this week, in 15-minute programs, the radio station broadcast the distress call of the starling. Preceding the recording were a few minutes of recorded selected noises, gun shots, bomb explosions and miscellaneous pops and bangs. They were described as the "awfullest sound you ever heard."

Radios throughout the twin cities of Champaign-Urbana, home of the University of Illinois, were turned on full blast during the broadcasts. Many persons placed portable radios in yards or open windows.

Motorists, joining in the community project to rid the cities of the birds, parked under trees in which hundreds of the starlings roosted, and turned on car radios. The recorded starling distress call, described as sounding like "eek, eek, eek, eek," was obtained in cooperation with police and the University of Illinois.

The police captured a starling and the university's electrical engineering school strung the bird up by the heels, then cut a tape of its distress squawk.

Larry Stewart, manager of radio station WDWS, which made the broadcasts, said residents reported good results. But, he added, he didn't know where the departing birds went. He said:

"We're keeping the distress call on file in case they come back."

Ike Sounds Appeal For Enactment Of His Health Plan

President Says American People Will Not Be Denied; Al Smith Lauded In New York Memorial Talk

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower, winding up a two-day visit to New York, has sounded new appeals for enactment of his health program and for election of another Republican Congress.

In the final address of his New York visit, the chief executive declared last night his program for expansion of the nation's voluntary health insurance plans, pigeonholed by the last Republican-controlled Congress, is "the logical alternative to socialized medicine."

Speaking to 2,000 persons, who paid $100 each to charity at the annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation Dinner, Eisenhower said the program will be resubmitted to the new Congress convening in January.

"We know that the American people will not long be denied access to adequate medical facilities," he said. "The program for voluntary health insurance is one further step in achieving this objective in the American way."

UNDER THE program the government would underwrite up to 75 per cent of the losses suffered by private and nonprofit insurance firms as a result of voluntary expansion of their health and medical programs.

Eisenhower, speaking to the nation by television and radio, touched obliquely on a hot campaign issue, handling of the subversive problem, in a talk tabbed "non-political" by the White House.

The President devoted much of his address to praise of the late Al Smith, who was a New York governor and 1928 Democratic presidential nominee.

He said "smith would have supported and applauded, if alive in 1954, every one of the laws of the recent Congress to make more certain the discovery of subversives, to speed their removal from influential positions, and to mete out to them legal punishment."

The President will pick up the political trail again tomorrow at an outdoor luncheon at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm to promote the candidacies of Pennsylvania Republicans seeking office.

Yesterday Eisenhower spent much of the day plugging in behalf of a GOP victory.

Moving to help out in a hard-fought New Jersey contest, he authorized a statement that he "has not changed one iota" in his earlier endorsements of former Rep. Clifford P. Case, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate.

THIS AMOUNTED to a rebuff to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who has lined up against Case.

Case, also the target of intraparty opposition in New Jersey, has announced that if elected he would favor ousting McCarthy as chairman of the Government Operations Committee and its investigations subcommittee.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty recalled that Eisenhower endorsed Case on two previous occasions, and added:

"He (the President) has been for him for a long time, is for him now, and is looking forward to welcoming him to Washington as the junior senator from New Jersey."

Eisenhower started yesterday with a boost from Sen. Irving M. Ives, who is running for governor of New York on the GOP ticket against Averell Harriman, Democratic nominee.

Stray Sauce From The Pumpkin

The wide-eyed wonderment of 1954 Princess Shanna Humphrey and her attendants brought big smiles all along the line of march as the Lodge and Musical Parade furnished one of the top attractions Thursday night. A penny for your thoughts, beautiful ladies!

Former Police Chief Bill McCrady, who can remember many a Pumpkin Show and many of the city's eventful times, rode in one of the city police cruisers at the head of the Thursday night procession.

Side glances as the front of the parade came around the turn at Pinckney and Court; Pickaway County Sheriff Charlie Radcliff offering a ride to a man with flat feet. . . . State Patrolman Gene Miller, off duty among the spectators, eating peanuts like nobody's business. . . . squealing passengers being dumped upside down in that wild version of the ferris wheel. . . and a man biting on one end of a long hot-dog while the mustard dripped out the other. . . .

Nobody got a bigger kick out of the night's fun than Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner of Columbus. He and Circleville's Mayor Bob Hedges flanked the hero of the evening, "Mr. Pumpkin Show himself" Colville, in one of the parade's first cars.

The two elephants were a late addition to the parade, and a sensational surprise indeed. Tom Bennett, riding one of the jumbos, tried in vain to coax the animal to wrap his trunk around a cigar held by a bystander.

One of the most impressive floats in the smaller class was the "Raising the Flag on Iwo" feature sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Parade displays by the Methodist Youth, Lutheran Family Circle, St. Joseph's Catholic Church and others are doing a splendid job in weaving a serious thought through the fabric of fun which makes up most of the annual program. A tremendous amount of work might well done.

To the lady who phoned and any others who think they will do the same: There is no use asking for the baking temperature which we "forgot" to print in the magic pumpkin pie recipe. We would like to know what it is ourselves!

The tribute ceremony for Bob Colville Thursday night gave good opportunity to remind the public of another very valuable man in the community. Dick Martin, the painter who did the Court-and-Main picture of "Mr. Pumpkin Show", is one of the most talented fellows in this section of the country.

The sudden attack punctured earlier government claims that the rebellion had ended.

Turnout Here On Thursday Figured 60,000

Colville Says Crowd Saturday Night May Mean All-Time High

Circleville's 48th annual Pumpkin Show boomed past its half-way point Friday, reaching for an all-time attendance record and getting itself set for a glorious jam on Saturday night.

Good prospects for a new attendance figure were disclosed by Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show" and official keeper of the festival's books. He bases his estimates on personal observation, he explained, and on the story told by the show's financial ledgers.

Colville, who estimated 60,000 people pushed their way through the downtown streets Thursday, said:

"If this keeps up, we might really break the record. Right now we're in very good position to top last year's turnout."

THE REASON? Well, offhand I don't know. But I guess it's because we have more concessions, more enthusiasm, and more things to look at this year."

"Mr. Pumpkin Show" had estimated earlier that approximately 15,000 attended the show Wednesday, the traditionally "slow" opening day. One of several ways he uses to measure the attendance by personal observation, Colville said, is by spot-checking the business being done by the "rides."

"They're a good way to help figure it," he said, "because you can usually tell when a ride should have a waiting line and when it shouldn't. And the size of the waiting line means a lot, too."

Colville issued his glad news on the 1954 show after being honored Thursday night for his long service in behalf of the celebration. It was "Bob Colville Night," and the high mark of this year's event—although many top attractions remain.

The show will close Saturday midnight.

Among highlights still remaining are:

Parades, the baton twirling contest, competition by the pumpkin pie eaters and hog callers, and the

3 Yank Doctors Share Nobel Prize

BOSTON (AP)—Three American doctors today shared the Nobel Prize for Medicine in recognition for research which may make possible mass polio vaccination.

Dr. John F. Enders, 57, of the Harvard Medical School was leader of the three-man research team which included Dr. Thomas H. Weller, 39, of the Harvard School of Public Health and Dr. Frederick C. Robbins, 38, now a professor at Western Reserve Medical School and chief of pediatrics and contagious diseases department of City Hospital, Cleveland.

The trio made possible the test tube development of polio virus in ordinary body tissues and opened the way to the Salk method of preparing polio vaccine.

Doubling Of U.S. Production Seen

COLUMBUS (AP)—American production of goods and services could double in the next 20 years, Battelle Institute President Clyde Williams said yesterday.

Williams said Ohio may reasonably expect more than a proportionate share of the increase.

Williams said basic industries centered in Ohio plus its position in respect to raw materials and markets make it a logical area of location of new enterprise.

"If the country maintains its present research effort, and if business is given full freedom to move ahead," he said, "a 97 per cent increase in gross national product is feasible by 1975."

Filipino Huks Lose In Skirmish

MANILA (AP)—Sixteen Huks Rebels and four soldiers were killed yesterday in a flareup of the Philippines' Communist-led rebellion.

The Philippine army reported a patrol was ambushed near Sampaloc, in Quezon province southeast of Manila. It was the bloodiest incident in the resistance fighting since mid-1953.

The sudden attack punctured earlier government claims that the rebellion had ended.

Beloved Animals Strut Stuff In Show's Gala Pet Parade

Accompanied by their beloved dogs, Johnny Christian and Phyllis Ulmann strolled along in the Pumpkin Show Pet Parade Thursday afternoon and received top honors as the most typical boy and girl.

Johnny, of E. Main St., had a mongrel dog, while Phyllis brought along an energetic coon dog.

A colorful parade preceded the judging. Spectators who jammed the parade route, witnessed many hilarious entries in the ever-popular attraction.

One little pooch just got "dog tired" and set himself down in the middle of W. Main St. It took quite a bit of coaxing to get him going again.

ANOTHER gleeful sight was that of a dog hanging onto the back of his master who was riding a bicycle. One dog wore a neat hat while another was all dressed up in a dress that was not strictly Dior.

Second in the typical boys' division was Mike Johnson, of E. Corwin St. Third was Bruce Cook, of E. Mound St.

Linda Styers, of N. Pickaway St., was second in the girl's category. Elaine Hutzelman was third, and the only winner in the typical class with a cat.

A toy tractor, pulling a "pet shop", won first prize for Larry Peters, of Ashville, in the novel display contest. Gary Barthelmas was second with his dog, "Tiny", sitting inside a pumpkin, an exhibit he used last year.

Third was Tommy Wolfe, of E. Mill St.

A SEVEN-MONTH old lamb named "Pansy" helped Kay Hay, of Ashville Route 2, win the top prize for unusual pets. Carl Stonerock, of N. Scioto St., was second and Candice Harrington, of E. Mound St., was third.

Earl Gulick, of N. Scioto St., with 14 rabbits and 10 chickens, had the greatest number of pets. His brother Ted was second and Diane Johnson, of Park Place, was third.

John and George Grigg, of N. Atwater Ave., were awarded first prize for the best decorated bike in boys' competition. Dennis Call, of E. Corwin St., was second, and Michael Lorentz, of Lancaster Pike, was third.

In the girls' division, Elaine

Goldschmidt, of Atwater Ave., was first. Second was Ruth Hay, of S. Pickaway St. Third was Leola Harman, of Pleasant St.

A dog dressed as a baby and riding contentedly in a carriage won first prize for Rebecca Snyder, of Watt St., in the best dressed dog competition. Barbara Dudley, of Circleville Route 1, was second and Judy Stonerock, of N. Scioto St., was third.

JOHN PONTIUS, of Circleville Route 1, won first prize in the best dressed cat judging with a kitten dressed elegantly as a bride. Nancy Kocher, of S. Pickaway St. was second. Carolyn Chaffin, of E. Franklin St., was third.

Judy Ankrom, of Circleville Route 1, had the best pony, according to the judges. Tommy McDonald, of Park St., was second and Mary Harrell, of Chillicothe Route 4, was third.

More than 150 entries were judged. The judges were Carlos McNeal, Albert Sprately, and Robert Moore.

Harold Anderson was director of the event, which was sponsored by the Circleville Kiwanis Club.

Britain Warns Dock Strikers

LONDON (AP)—The government today warned Britain's 44,000 striking dock workers to return to work by Monday morning or troops will move into the waterfront.

The ultimatum was announced in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton. He said the strikers would not prejudice their position in any way by getting back on the job.

While reluctant to use troops, Monckton also made it clear the present tieup could not continue much longer. A demand by dock workers for the right to reject overtime work touched off the strike.

Ohioan Gets Virgin Island Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Richard L. Krabach, 40-year-old Lima, Ohio, attorney and Republican leader, today was named government comptroller of the Virgin Islands.

Secretary of the Interior McKay said Krabach, who will be paid $12,500 a year, fills a new post carrying a term of 10 years. The office is under the general supervision of the secretary of the interior but is not a part of any executive department of the island government. A native of Wapakoneta, Krabach has been active in civic affairs in Lima.

selection of Pickaway County's Champion Pumpkin Pie Baker.

THE COLORFUL winners parade—the "parade of champions"—is scheduled Saturday night.

Meanwhile, as the results of the various contests began to come in, it was announced that Mrs. Bertha Porter had won the sweepstakes in the Pumpkin Show Flower Exhibit. Loring Hill and Mrs. Turney Pontius were tied for second place in ribbon points.

In Thursday's Pet Parade, John Christian and Phyllis Ulmann, accompanied by their beloved dogs, were judged to be the most typical boy and girl competing.

Bill Cook again turned out to be the big winner in this year's vegetable competition, but the contestants had a closer time of it in the fruits division.

Other contest score sheets were being completed.

One of the early attractions Saturday will be the eliminations for the baton twirling contest. Preliminaries are scheduled for 2 p. m. The finals will be held at 8:30 p. m.

Hope For Lost Dakota Lad Fades

POWERS LAKE, N. D. (AP)—A dwindling band of searchers today continued hunting for a 4-year-old boy who Sunday wandered away from his farm home in the vast, rough prairies of northwestern North Dakota.

As the hours dragged on, hope that LaVern Enget is still alive gradually faded. The child has not been seen since he left the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Overt Enget. Apparently the boy tagged after his father when Enget went after the cows in a pasture. Search pilots were convinced the boy must have halted somewhere. They felt certain they would have spotted the lad if he were still walking.

Another Puerto Rican Red Nabbed

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP)—Ramon Mirabel Carrion, 41, secretary general of the Puerto Rican Communist party, was nabbed by the FBI yesterday near the bridge between the U. S. and Mexico.

It was not clear whether the Puerto Rican was attempting to enter or leave the United States. FBI agents said his arrest tied in with the seizure of 10 other leading members of the Puerto Rican Reds. He was charged with conspiring to advocate overthrowing of the U. S. government by force.

Wooing Of Voters In Ohio Increased By GOP And Dems

COLUMBUS (AP)—As the Nov. 2 election nears, Republicans and Democrats rallied for a final wooing of the Ohio vote.

The Republicans are offering some national officials, while Democrats are showing a little more of hardy, four-time Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The GOP announced this late campaign schedule: Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse will tour Northern Ohio today and Saturday; Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield will dedicate Mansfield's postoffice Oct. 28, the same day Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont will visit Southern Ohio.

Last night, Sen. John W. Bricker of Ohio chose a Republican rally in Canton for an all-out endorsement of James A. Rhodes for governor. Lausche, opposing Rhodes for a fifth term, has stepped up his campaign pace after a quiet, almost reticent beginning. The governor appeared on a television and radio broadcast last night in Cleveland.

He is scheduled to visit Ashland and Medina today, and participate later at Akron University in greetings for President William V. S. Tubman of Liberia.

Tomorrow night Lausche will attend the annual Circleville Pumpkin Show and will dedicate a highway garage Sunday in Gunsey County. He returns to Columbus later Sunday for the 100th anniversary of the Mannerchor Society.

Undersecretary Morse will visit Van Wert tomorrow, speak at the Paulding County courthouse and in Sherwood and Bryan. After a tour

Outlook Dim For Signing Of Western Pact

Paris Premier Demands Assurances On Control Of Vital Saar Basin

PARIS (AP)—With the threat of complete failure of French-German talks on the Saar overshadowing their decision, the 14 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today invited West Germany to join their alliance.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France joined in the invitation. Earlier he declared he will not sign any agreements reached here this week unless he gets a satisfactory settlement of the Saar Basin dispute.

As the NATO council voted, French and West German negotiations were deadlocked.

Mendes-France said his statement on the Saar had the full backing of his cabinet.

His statement, in effect, set a 24-hour deadline for France and West Germany to come to terms over the future status of the tiny frontier area, which is wealthy in coal and steel.

Plans had been made for the signing tomorrow afternoon of accords to restore West German sovereignty and enlist the Germans as a full partner in the Western defense system.

The French premier already has made it plain he will not submit these accords for the new Western European Union to the French Parliament unless there is a Saar settlement.

AS MENDES-FRANCE emerged from the cabinet meeting, West Germany's government and opposition leaders agreed on a joint position on the Saar, reaffirming German demands which the French thus far have rejected.

The French cabinet scheduled another session tomorrow to hear reports from Mendes-France on the continued Saar negotiations he is to have with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The premier said the West Germans had confronted France with "a new set of conditions" for a Saar settlement which he could not approve. This apparently was a reference to the bipartisan German statement handed to the Western Big Three high commissioners earlier in the day.

German sources said the Saar negotiations are deadlocked despite a lengthy meeting between deputies for the chancellor and for the premier late last night.

Before the premier left the cabinet session, a government spokesman said the German position had "stiffened" much beyond what had been feared. He said that if Mendes-France signed other agreements without getting a settlement of the Saar issue, it is "evident" that the National Assembly might refuse to ratify them.

Adenauer met for more than an hour today with Socialist party chairman Erich Ollenhauer to frame the German bipartisan approach on the Saar. Their demands were reported to include political freedom for pro-German parties in the Saar, closer economic relations with Saarlanders and French recognition that the Saar regime is only a provisional one subject to review in a final German peace treaty.

Pumpkin Farm Exhibit Winner Of Window Trimming Contest

An exhibit of a pumpkin farm, made by Pickaway Township School, won first prize in the window trimming contest.

The display appears in the window of the J. C. Penney store on W. Main St. Top honors carry a prize of $50.

Second prize of $35 was awarded to the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., 1953 winners. The power firm displayed two windows, one of which celebrated the Diamond Jubilee of Lights.

Rothman's Department store won third prize, $25. The display showed the store's growth since 1910 and other improvements, such as in roads.

THE FARM LAYOUT, complete with house, barn and fence, shows a very well planned farm. A sign on the road tells that Circleville is nearby.

Fourth prize of $15 went to Mil-liron's Barber Shop. Fifth place, carrying a $10 award, went to Cub Scouts Pack 52 for their display in the Koehrsche Hardware window.

Girl Scout Troop 24 took sixth place money, $7.50. It was displayed in the B. F. Goodrich store. The Welcome Wagon exhibit in the Barnhill Dry Cleaning company window won $5 for seventh place.

Walnut Township Future Farmers of America took eighth place, $2.50, for their display in the window of Mac's Goodyear store.

Frank Sosa, director of the window trimming committee, stated cards would be put in each of the above windows noting the position in which they placed.

Judges for the Wednesday night contest were: William Lucas, of the F & R Lazarus Co. in Columbus and F. S. Benson, general manager of the Hickie Co. in Lancaster.

Two breakins in the county area near Circleville were reported Thursday night to the sheriff's department here.

I. N. McFarland, who lives at the intersection of Routes 56 and 104, told Deputy Dwight Radcliff that a fully loaded six-shot 12-gauge shotgun was missing from his house.

Later in the evening, Paul Fleming, of Circleville Route 3, reported a ladies' wrist watch taken from his home, located on Florence Chapel Pike at Goosepond Pike.

McFarland had returned to his house at 7 p. m. His dog was "creating quite a racket barking". After quieting the dog, McFarland entered his house.

HE WATCHED TELEVISION for a few hours and then prepared to retire. It was then that he found the front door open. A window in the storm door was broken.

Apparently, the intruder attempted to force the front door by breaking the window and reaching in to open the door. However, the door was bolted from the inside.

groups he said were opposing him, contended last night that big trucking companies are "the main ones contributing for the many radio and television appearances of my opponent."

Lausche is opposed in his bid for re-election by Rhodes.

Commercial truckers and the governor have been at odds since Lausche opened a drive six years ago for a highway use tax based on weight carried over specific distances.

The dispute grew much stronger last year when a Republican-dominated General Assembly passed an axle-mile tax, the first weight-distance measure ever levied on trucks in Ohio. Lausche cooperated closely with assemblymen when the act was passed and has since defended it vigorously.

In Cleveland last night, Rhodes urged a transfer of the liquor department's permit issuing powers to local authorities.

He told a meeting of the Western Reserve Women's Republican group of Cleveland that such a step would increase governmental home rule.

"Local people know best the kind of places they want to deal in alcoholic beverages," Rhodes said.

"If permits were issued locally we would never have statewide scandals like the permit-mill operated in the closing days of the first Lausche term, scores of illegal licenses were granted then from Columbus by the permit division. Possibly the Legislature should establish a three-member board in each county to handle permits."

Sensenbrenner Replies To Rap By Prosecutor

The mayor of Columbus said Thursday night he wanted to set "a few of the facts straight" in a controversy launched by Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer over Circleville's comic books.

Ammer recently criticized the Columbus mayor, M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, after the latter was quoted as saying the fake "comic book" menace had yet to be cleared up in this city. Sensenbrenner is a native of Circleville.

Ammer demanded to know on what basis the reported assertion was made.

Sensenbrenner, however, declared here Thursday night that he had never made the statement attributed to him by a Columbus newspaper. He sharply denounced the newspaper.

"I DON'T know what Circleville is doing about the comic book situation," the Columbus mayor said. "I hope you are handling the problem here in fine shape."

"I have never made a survey here, and consequently don't know what the situation is in Circleville."

"I never made the statement upon which Ammer based his criticism. As a matter of fact, his action greatly surprised me. I don't quite understand it."

Sensenbrenner made it clear at the same time that he will push for a Columbus ordinance to supplement the state statute against the sale and distribution of harmful literature.

The present state law, he reiterated, is not doing an efficient job in the larger cities when it comes to checking the fake "comics."

Amateur Exhibitor Gets Valuable Tips How To Improve

Tips on how amateur exhibitors can improve their vegetable displays were given by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, chairman of the committee for the Pumpkin Show.

"We find that exhibitors have a lack of knowledge on how to prepare their displays," the Rev. Mr. Elsea remarked. "Care should be taken in selecting each item as nearly alike in size, shape and color."

He added that the most perfectly matched and uniform display usually is judged the best. Largeness is not considered unless being judged on size alone.

"Our exhibits were bigger a d better than last year," the Rev. Mr. Elsea declared. "There were 62 different entries in the vegetable department with 438 exhibits. Premiums totalled $228."

"IN THE FRUIT" division, we had 18 entries with 82 exhibits. Premiums amounting to $39 were paid out."

Largest entries were made by: Fred Fee Sons, of Stoutsville; Walter Fee, of Stoutsville; Bowers Fruit Farm, of Laurelville; and the Laurelville Fruit Co.

Silent Film Star Labeled Deserter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The husband of silent film star Letatrice Joy obtained a divorce yesterday. Arthur K. Westmark, aircraft engineer, testified she left for New York in 1950 for a television role and never came back.

Westmark, 60, obtained the decree on desertion grounds set forth in his cross complaint. She had filed a divorce suit but left for New York before the trial came up.

The couple married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1946. She formerly was married to the late actor John Gilbert.

11 Persons Picked So Far For Sheppard Murder Jury

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 40-year-old mail carrier, Gerald L. Liederbach, was tentatively seated today as the 11th juror for the first-degree murder trial of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, 30.

He brought the count to five men and six housewives and the list of prospective jurors still to be examined is dominated by women.

Defense Attorney Fred Garmore is on his mail route.

Four consecutive housewives had been given positions in the jury box before today's session.

John J. Mahon, assistant prosecutor, questioned Liederbach as to whether the fact Garmore was on his route would have any influence on him. The mail carrier said he knew Garmore's wife but was not personally acquainted with the attorney.

As today's session got underway the defendant's father, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, greeted him in the courtroom with an affectionate pat and then took a seat at the back of the room.

The young osteopath is accused by the state of clubbing his pretty young wife to death in their B. village home. She was four months pregnant when she was killed July 4. The prosecution identified the "other woman" in the case as Susan Hayes, a pretty young laboratory technician.

The state is expected to start presenting evidence some time next week.

All of the jurors are subject to peremptory challenges, which remove them automatically from the jury box. The state can use as many as six of these challenges and the defense the same.

For the juror picked as an alternate, each side has two peremptory challenges.

Questioning of the prospective jurors has indicated that sex and circumstantial evidence will play big roles in the trial.

Defense Attorney William Corrigan and Fred W. Garmore have hammered away with questions on whether the jurors would be prejudiced against Sheppard because of his purported romance with Miss Hayes. The prosecution has stressed that Ohio law permits a first-degree murder conviction and a death sentence on only circumstantial evidence.

CORRIGAN AND Asst. Prosecutor Thomas Parrino turned to talk of sun and snow yesterday in the efforts to make sure the jurors knew the meaning of circumstantial evidence.

Corrigan called attention to rays of light coming in the courtroom window and observed that "even though you don't see it, you know from the light that the sun is outside."

Parrino explained: "You see snow on the sidewalk on the lawn. You didn't see snow, but you know from what you have seen that snow has fallen. That's circumstantial evidence."

Barkley-Cooper Race For Senate Seat Seen Pitting Favorite Sons

By DON WHITEHEAD

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The people of this mint julep and blue grass country are approaching the difficult political choice of having to send only one of two favorite sons to the U. S. Senate.

The decision must be made on Nov. 2 between Democratic former vice president Alben W. Barkley, 76, and Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, 53. No matter which one wins, there's going to be considerable sadness that the other had to lose.

Barkley and Cooper are the Kentucky strong men of their parties with big personal followings. Their collision dramatizes the full force of the struggle for control of Congress, and for control of Kentucky politics.

Democratic chiefs called Barkley out of political retirement as the only man who could recapture the Senate seat which Cooper won two years ago after the death of Democratic Sen. Virgil Chapman.

They are counting on Barkley's enormous personal popularity plus a voter swing-back to the Democrats to turn the trick and put their party in a stronger position for the state elections next year. At this point there is general agreement the odds are in favor of Barkley winning.

But Cooper is making a strong race and there are some—even a few Democrats—who say he may pull the biggest surprise of the entire national campaign.

Here are some of the factors on both sides:

Barkley's name is known to practically every adult in Kentucky—and he's running in a state that normally is Democratic.

The voters from 1913 to 1925 sent him regularly to represent them in Congress and from 1927 to 1948 they kept him in the Senate. Then in 1948 they voted for him as vice president.

Over the years, Barkley became a political legend in Kentucky and he was considered invincible at the polls. He won his first Senate race by a 30,000 majority and after that his majorities always ran well over the 100,000 mark.

Unemployment, particularly in the coal fields, would appear to be a factor working in Barkley's favor. Another would be the fact that about 70 per cent of the county offices in Kentucky are controlled by Democrats, in addition to the state government.

On the other side, Cooper has proved he has a great deal of appeal to the voters. He won a short-term Senate seat in 1946 when former Democratic Sen. A. B. "Happy" Chandler resigned to become commissioner of baseball.

Cooper was nosed out by Virgil Chapman in 1948, but he came back two years ago to capture the seat vacated by Chapman's death, although President Eisenhower lost Kentucky to Adlai Stevenson by 700 votes. Meanwhile, he served as a U. S. delegate in the United Nations.

As a Senator, Cooper didn't achieve the national position of Barkley, but he did make a record which even Democrats say made friends for him.

Cooper's age is in his favor, too. Even a casual visitor to Kentucky soon finds that Barkley's 76 years have become a beneath-the-surface issue which could have a strong influence on the outcome of the race.

For spectator interest, the Barkley-Cooper race has been a gentlemanly and rather staid affair with neither candidate whooping it up into a name-calling contest. For the most part, they've stuck to issues.

Barkley has centered his attacks on the Republican administration and its record during the past two years—comparing it with what he calls more prosperous years under Democratic leadership. He assails the administration as representing the privileged few and not the masses of people—although he doesn't include Eisenhower himself in the indictments.

Cooper has hit hard on the theme that the nation is at peace because of Eisenhower's leadership and a

1954 Winter Eats Outlook Labeled Good

Prices Reasonably Low, Supplies Plentiful,
Surveys Indicate

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The outlook for eating this coming winter is pretty good today.

Prices of most foodstuffs are down—at the farm level—to about where they were before the start of the Korean War sent them scampering upward. Large surpluses of many of the primary foodstuffs tend to keep them stable.

The chief upward pressure on food prices at the grocery level comes from the creeping rise in costs of preparation and distribution.

Drought or disease or tropical hurricanes have cut some crops in some sections—but shortages exist in very few commodities. Storms hurt the apple crop in the East. Rains cut into the onion crop in the Southwest and on the West Coast. Unseasonable hot weather took a toll of lettuce in California.

But the story in general is one of plenty. And when a major crop has been cut this year by weather or governmental planting restrictions, there is usually a sizable hold-over from previous years on which to fall back.

Another round in coffee price cutting started this week on the Pacific Coast and spread to the East.

The turkey crop in this country is close to the record set in 1952, while wholesale prices are reported the lowest in 12 years, offering consumers something to be thankful for come Thanksgiving. Poultry prices are down and so are eggs, although chicken farmers are expecting the price to stiffen with the moulting season.

Meat supplies are abundant this fall. Bargains are advertised every week by the butchers.

All this is pleasant for the consumer. For the farmer it's something else again.

Prices of farm products climbed steeply after the Korean War started in June of 1950. They reached a peak in early spring of 1951. Since then they have slipped back 21 per cent.

This has come about in spite of government price support programs and is due largely to bumper crops which produced more than the American public consumes.

Household Workers Can Benefit Under New Social Security Rule

Following is another in a series of articles dealing with the new amendments to the Social Security Act. The information is prepared by the agent assigned to handle social security claims from Pickaway County.

By ROSE C. FORQUER

Social Security
Field Representative

Under the 1954 amendments, the social security program has grown upward in benefits and outward in extending the range of old-age and survivors insurance protection to millions more.

I have tried to picture the vertical and horizontal growth in this series, as well as the effect that it will have on you. Now let me tell you how the new law will affect a friend of mine. . . . we'll call him Bill, and his wife, Marge. You may know of similar cases.

For many years, Annie, their part-time maid has been like one of their family. Every Friday—bright and early—she comes to help Marge with the housework.

They've become somewhat dependent upon her. And I tease Bill about those extra pounds he's been putting on over the years. He says it's because of his fondness for those beautiful cakes and pies that Annie always finds time to make before she leaves.

I ALSO SAMPLED some of Annie's cooking on a recent evening when Marge invited me to dinner. It was during that dinner the discussion got around to Annie.

Marge related this story: Just before Annie had left that day, she had said to Marge, "I suppose I won't be working for you folks much longer. You people are the only family I've worked for in the last five years."

Annie, who is in her late fifties, continued, "In a way I wish that

I had worked more steadily since 1951. Then, when I couldn't work any more, I'd have those social security checks coming in. But with my husband sick, I can't get away from the house more than one day every week.

"I've never been able to meet that social security test. You know, the one where you are earning social security if you work for the same employer on two days a week and get $50 or more in cash wages during a three-month period."

Marge observed, "I think Annie's a little concerned about meeting her living expenses when she quits work in a few years. What we pay her for a day's work means a lot to her. It's a shame that Annie and others like her, who work only occasionally can't begin earning their social security."

"Now just a minute, Marge," I interrupted. "Under the 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act, Annie's going to start next year building for her future financial protection. The new law makes this possible for Annie and for practically all private household workers, even those who work only occasionally."

FOR YOU SEE, the test of 24 days in three calendar months, or as Annie mentioned, the two-day-a-week test, has been done away with. Beginning Jan. 1, 1955, the only requirement is that Annie be paid $50 in a three-month calendar period, and she will easily meet that requirement.

The three-month periods are those beginning on January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1. "And you, Marge," I added, "are going to help Annie earn that future protection. You will deduct two percent from Annie's cash wages and, at the end of every three-month period, you'll send that social security tax contribution and Tentative plans have been made to have "Old Sitting Bull," the city's 25-year old pumper, chug along in all its red glory during the Friday night parade.

The ceremony in tribute to Bob Colville at Court and Main was opened by Mayor Hedges, who introduced "the mayor of our suburb of Columbus". And Mayor Sensenbrenner, who gets more words per minute than many a public speaker, told how it felt for "a little boy to come back to the old hometown" for such a worthwhile occasion.

watch, the Columbus mayor assured him: "It can in no way show the love and appreciation held for you by the people of this community. . . . but as a token . . ."

Bob Colville explained why he declined to go into any sort of a formal speech of thanks. He remembers the Pumpkin Show that invited a vice-presidential candidate who talked for two solid hours. . . . "and spoiled the fun".

Perhaps few caught it and surely he didn't mean it, but "Mr. Pumpkin Show" finished with a "goodbye". For a moment that was, of course, because surely he is already secretly plotting something "bigger and better" for next year.

Up in the speakers' perch at Court and Main, when Bill Cook presented the mayor of Columbus with the huge pumpkin, hizzoner bounced it around in his arms so freely that it looked as though both he and Cook, and the pumpkin, were going over the side.

(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Advice to the Democrats: Keep plugging. Advice to the Republicans: Quit groaning.

These words of counsel have gone out in the closing days of the congressional election campaign from two men pretty high up in their parties—President Eisenhower for the GOP and National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell for the Democrats.

If the Eisenhower and Mitchell statements told the whole story, there would be no doubt the Republicans are in trouble and the Democrats riding high, with the election only 11 days away.

Party leaders, even presidents, don't always gauge the situation correctly, however. Besides, their campaign statements are designed for a specific purpose—in this case, to build a fire under party workers. Such statements don't necessarily reveal the speaker's private opinion of who's ahead.

The President spoke at a GOP rally in New York yesterday—a day that saw him wade much further into the thick of the campaign than he had done before. He even made a face for the politicians and the photographers, pulling down the corners of his mouth in a grimace of defeat.

And he declared the Republicans are never going to win if their leaders "are going around pulling their faces this way."

What the GOP needs, said Eisenhower, is a "fighting heart"—the kind Jack Dempsey had when, after being belted out of the ring by Louis Firpo in 1923, he came back and knocked Firpo halfway home to his native Argentina in the second round.

The President wasn't saying the Republicans are on the ropes, much less out of the ring entirely. But his picture of a glum GOP in need of more backbone was in sharp contrast to the picture Steve Mitchell was painting of the Democrats in Washington.

Mitchell said victory is "within our grasp." But the Democrats can still boost the election, he said, by relaxing too soon.

"I am deeply disturbed," he went on, "by reports of voter apathy and Democratic complacency. The two together could spell victory for the Republicans."

This is something new for the Democrats. They haven't been troubled by overconfidence since the first two Franklin D. Roosevelt terms. The Republicans seemed to have established a monopoly in overconfidence in 1948—to their bitter regret, since the Democrats beat them.

It wasn't just happenstance, by the way, that Eisenhower picked New York as the place to start campaigning in earnest. That's a state both parties are determined to capture—not only for its stake in this election, but because of 1956 presidential politics too.

On the face of it, the Democrats have more to gain—a governorship. They'd like to put their candidate, Averell Harriman, in the seat long held by the GOP's Thomas E. Dewey. If they do, Harriman will be a big man—and quite possibly a presidential contender—in the next Democratic National Convention.

On the other hand the GOP candidate for governor, Sen. Irving M. Ives, can keep his Senate seat if he loses. If he wins he can, and undoubtedly would, name another Eisenhower Republican to succeed him in the Senate.

But here is a Republican worry: What happens to its now-powerful New York state organization? Dewey, who has led it in the past, has in effect turned over the reins to Ives. What happens if Ives drops them? Could the Dewey element keep control of the block-busting 96 votes New York will cast in the Republican National Convention of 1956?

Drunk Condemned For Aiding Drunk

DETROIT (AP)—Virginia Thompson testified yesterday she took the car keys away from her companion because he was much too drunk to drive.

"That," said Traffic Judge John D. Watts, "was very commendable, but you should have given the keys to a third person."

Then the judge ordered Miss Thompson to sit all day in his court for seven days—for driving while drunk herself. Police had testified she drove across a street corner sidewalk and hit a parked car.

A-Power Plants Not Explosive

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP)—If you happen to live near an atomic power plant, there's no need to feel uneasy, a scientist said today. They can't blow up like an atomic bomb. In fact, said Harold W. Huntley, an engineer with General Electric Co.'s Atomic Products Division, nuclear reactors for production of peacetime power can be designed so they are as safe as conventional power plants.

He spoke at a meeting of the American Society of Engineers.

U. S., BRITISH ADMIRALS WARILY EYEING RAPID EXPANSION OF SOVIET SEA POWER

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Soviet sea power is coming so fast that it gives both British and American navy men the jitters.

According to their calculations, it will be firmly entrenched in second place among the powers in two or three years, having ousted Britain from the runner-up spot to the United States. In 10 years, at the present rate, it will be challenging Uncle Sam.

Ten years ago Russia ranked a mediocre seventh. In the spring of 1953 it was in third place breathing hot down the necks of the British fleet with a fleet still lacking in aircraft carriers but believed to consist of 14 cruisers, 84 destroyers, and 360 submarines.

Then things seemed pretty much askew among the Soviet sailors. Their pride was a battleship, the Soyuzetski Soyuz, which had been laid down in 1939 and not completed until 1950.

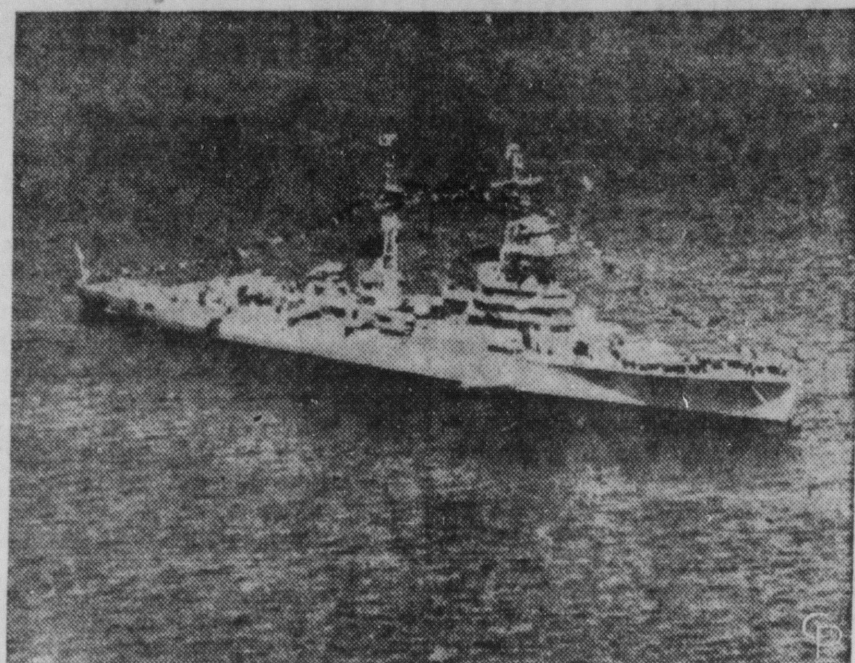

The authoritative guide to the world's war craft, Janet's Fighting Ships, ranked it the only first class vessel in the navy. There were reports that attempts to make use of the former German aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin had failed and the keel of the 40,000-ton ship laid down after the war was being scrapped.

IT ALSO leaked out that several Soviet naval engineers had been purged for failure to engineer a successful battleship program. When a few ships that had been loaned by the United States were grudgingly returned by Russia, they were found to be hardly shipshape and no tribute to Soviet seamanship.

Now the picture apparently has changed abruptly. Russia is believed to have been spending $35 billion on a big navy since 1945. Fourteen new cruisers have been added since the end of World War II, and the building time has been cut to about two and a half years. The 15,000-ton Sverdlov is rated as tops among cruisers.

The undersea fleet which always has impressed western strategists as the most potent Soviet bid, now is believed to total 400 subs, about 40 per cent of which are the latest type capable of a radius of 20,000 miles and speeds rivaling that of the new United States atomic sub.

Surmising that Russia would aim at severing the Atlantic life-

lines connecting western Europe with America, Anglo-American strategists rate the submarine menace as very great, particularly considering that ex-German technicians are playing a big part in the build-up.

It is not clear yet that Russia has supplanted Britain as second ranking power on the seas, but its naval manpower of 750,000 probably does that.

In addition, the Soviet sailors have been sprucing up. Part of the fleet stopped last summer at Helsinki for a call on the Finns who have held it in contempt ever since in the two short wars with Finland it could not even enforce an effective blockade on its tiny neighbor.

TO THE AMAZEMENT of the maritime Finns, the flotilla was sharp throughout. All the sloppiness noted in the United States exchange ships was gone.

Late last summer a Soviet task force of three cruisers and 12 destroyers cut quite a figure cruising down the Norwegian coast. These are ominous signs to navy men who have noted how quickly Russia came up with atomic devices after the war, and how her athletes now are challenging for dominance in the Olympic games to be held in 1956.

They predict that in two to three years the Soviet navy will consist of 300 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 500 submarines, 500 motor torpedo boats, 1,000 minesweepers, 300 escort vessels and 4,000 naval aircraft including the latest jet types. It has shipyards capable of building seven carriers.

As a result, American admirals have warned up 50 more ships to bring the fleet to 1,130 craft of all types in active commission. There are more than 2,000 in the moth-ball fleet.

HERALDING the fact that Congress inevitably will have requests for a big naval budget when it reconvenes, the admirals are warning that the United States must not let its fleet go to seed as it did the famous "great white fleet" that Theodore Roosevelt sent around the world after the Spanish-American war.

The current budget calls for spending a billion dollars for 30 new ships, and the Navy may ask for a three-billion a year budget over ten years. Its experts point out that most of the American ships slid down the ways in 1943-44, and their useful life may be pegged at 15-20 years.

There will be skeptics here who contend that our maritime allies will help offset Soviet gains. Britain has concentrated its power around 27 carriers, and has 11 in active commission with five building. Canada is building 87 new craft, including a carrier.

All hands are likely to agree, however, that the Soviet navy is becoming something to conjure with.

Commie Warships Seen In Pacific

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—Communist warships have been contacted in the Pacific, the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet says. Adm. Felix B. Stump declared that none of the Communist warships or submarines has acted in a hostile manner. He did not identify the Communist craft but he obviously referred to Russia. He indicated the Communist vessels were unaware that they had been seen, thus suggesting the contacts were made by U. S. submarines.

ONE OF THE big Communist transshipment points is Gdynia, Poland. From there Western goods go by rail to Peiping via the Trans-Siberian Railway, or are carried into Chinese ports by Red ships able to evade the Chinese Nationalist naval blockade.

Several shipments of strategic items from the West were recently held up at Gdynia by a transport bottleneck, according to information reaching Western diplomats.

The strategic ban on Red China, imposed by the United Nations during the Korean War, has always been tougher than the cold war embargo on Soviet Europe.

With tensions easing in Europe the West relaxed embargoes for the Soviet bloc last August, cutting the number of prohibited items from 250 to about 170.

But the Far East situation remained potentially explosive and similar action on the Red China lists was deferred.

Western European businessmen are urging their governments to let the Chinese Reds buy what European Reds can buy.

Crash Of 1929 Compared To Present Day

Collapse Of 25 Years Ago Not Likely To Happen Again, Belief

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty-five years ago the "era of wonderful nonsense" ended in a sickening thud at the corner of Broad and Wall Streets.

The bull market which started hesitantly in 1923 and gathered the speed and force of Hurricane Hazel in 1929, crashed in an October panic on the stock exchange. The symbols of those days of ruin became men jumping out of windows and blondes losing their Park Avenue apartments.

Will it happen again? Most unlikely, say the experts, because of far different conditions today.

The quarter-century anniversary of the collapse which changed the economy, social structure and living habits of America finds the majority today confident that the present bull market shows few signs of growing into something like the dizzy doings of 25 years ago.

Stock prices have been pointing higher most of the time since 1949 and have taken their steepest climb in the last 12 months, while general business activity was tending in the other direction.

But brokers point to many reasons why they think that stocks won't run away again—and eventually crack up—as they did in the 20's. Chief reason is that more than just the calendar has changed around Broad and Wall Streets, and along the nation's main streets.

Look at the changes in: The make-up and psychology of traders and investors, the trading rules, the value of the dollar, the size of the economy which stands behind the value of stocks, and the public agencies which ride herd on the market and the nation's money policies.

The shoeshine boys and song-and-dance men who rode the 1929 frenzy—mostly on paper-thin margins and borrowed money—aren't playing the big board today.

Professionals who formed pools to run up stock prices for unloading on other groups—like chain letters—aren't allowed to operate today.

Most of the big buying this year has been for investment, institutional of industrial pension accounts.

America's traditional flair for seeking a fast buck has largely centered in a fling in penny Canadian stocks or uranium wildcating.

A five-million share day on the New York Stock Exchange was considered normal in 1929 when everyone was buying—often without knowing just what he was buying. Brokers are content now with a two-million share day and often get less.

Government agencies now police the issuance of stock. In 1929 new issues poured out in huge volume, much of it never listed on the exchange.

Once you had to put very little cash—brokers carried most of the stock's price on margin. Now you must put up 50 per cent in cash, and brokers say most of their business is for all cash.

The dollar's purchasing power is about half what it was 25 years ago—so that today's stock price, while it may seem as high as in the 20's, actually isn't, compared to prices of other things.

The total number of stocks outstanding now is much higher than 25 years ago. Many of them rarely come out of the investors' bank boxes.

And the total both of industrial output and of corporate assets—which stocks represent in the market place and which backs up their value—has doubled in the last 25 years.

Still, there are some interesting points of similarity in this bull market and the one in the 20's before it took its last mad spurt in 1929. This time, however, the experts feel sure the situation won't develop into a speculative boom as it did in the late '20s.

Some of the similarities are: An easy money policy in the mid-20's led to more money around than there were places to invest it. A housing boom as on a lot of people thought that the pent-up civilian demands from World War I hadn't been filled yet. Science was busy applying what it learned in that war to mechanizing industry and filling American homes with gadgets new and wonderful in those days. And the conviction that the long-term trend of the economy was upward was as pronounced then as now.

The differences are many, however, and appear to outweigh the similarities.

Oppenheimer Gets Achievement Award

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer has received the Pyramid Club of Philadelphia's achievement award for "unselfish devotion of his own great gifts to the end of increasing man's knowledge."

Oppenheimer, head of the Institute for Advanced Science at Princeton, N. J. and credited with playing a major role in developing the atomic bomb, received the award last night. He said it reaffirms "that spirit of human brotherhood that is the hope of today's world."

Dr. Albert Einstein commended the club for honoring his colleague "in recognition of his exemplary conduct as a citizen of his country."

Earlier this year the Atomic Energy Commission ruled that Oppenheimer was a loyal American but denied him security clearance

Jury To Ponder Sheriff's Case

JACKSON (AP)—The grand jury will meet a month early to consider statutory charges lodged against Sheriff David L. Trago.

Common Pleas Judge James J. Kinnison said the jury will meet Nov. 1 instead of Dec. 1 as originally scheduled.

Two further charges were sworn before Mayor Holland Arthur against Sheriff Trago, now in Columbus hospital, reportedly suffering exhaustion.

Dr. C. C. Fitzpatrick of Jackson said the sheriff is on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

The sheriff had pleaded innocent Tuesday to two statutory charges sworn before Mayor Arthur by his parents of two boys, 14 and 15 years of age.

Curve Is Nemesis To Buffalo Driver

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP)—Herman Eldridge, 51, of Buffalo, N.Y., wrecked his car Oct. 11 when it went off the road at a curve near here. A woman passenger was injured.

Eldridge was fined Wednesday for careless driving. Yesterday he drove to Welland in a new car to collect bail money he had put up when arrested.

He approached the same curve and . . .

Damage was estimated at $500.

Cancer-Producing Chemical Found In Cigarette Paper

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A compound that causes cancer in mice—benzpyrene—has been found in smoke from cigarette paper, a chemist engaged in cancer research reported.

D. V. Lefemine, of the Cancer Institute at Miami, Fla., made the report at a regional meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Lefemine said benzpyrene has been proved in animal experiments to be one of the most powerful known cancer-producing agents. It also has been identified as a component in some studies on polluted city air.

The chemist said smoke and tars from burning enough paper to manufacture 80,000 cigarettes were collected in the tests. This quantity of paper, he estimated, would be the equivalent of 11 years' supply of cigarettes for the pack-a-day smoker.

Lefemine said 770 gram—1.7 pounds—of total tars were collected. The tar was purified, broken down into its chemical components and identified by spectroanalysis, he explained.

The chemist said this was the first scientific report of the recognition of an actual cancer-producing chemical in any form of smoking material.

He pointed out that in tests elsewhere the tar from burning whole

Workers In White Collar Class Need Not Wear Shirts Of White

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest mistake the white collar class makes today is to cling to the white shirt.

The white shirt for a couple of generations has been a genteel badge of superiority in America, a stuffy emblem of stuffy respectability.

When a guy had nothing else to boast about, he could at least feel proud in his heart because he earned his living indoors and wore a white shirt. For some obscure reason this made him feel a cut above the rough-handed skilled workmen who went boisterously to their jobs in dungarees or old leather jackets.

Whatever reason existed for this feeling vanished when the skilled workmen began dragging down more take home pay than the office workers, and that has been true for some time now.

A policeman wears a blue uniform so he can be readily identifiable when you have to yell for help. But the office worker's white shirt has become a uniform to him, too, although he doesn't realize it, and really doesn't need to wear a uniform at all. It seems to me his white shirt has become a symbol of interiority, not superiority.

For years I have been crusading against the out-of-date snobbery of the white shirt, which most men actually wear for one of three reasons:

1. Their fathers wore one.
2. They are afraid to wear a colored shirt because they don't want to stand out from their fellow white sheep in the herd.
3. Their wives tell them they look younger or cuter in a white shirt. But the wives should know better.

It is a pleasure indeed to note now that one of the nation's leading shirtmakers is attacking this old shibboleth in a series of ads entitled: "Never wear a white shirt before sundown." "A white shirt with a business suit is really the loudest thing you can wear," this firm asserts. "It looks clean in the morning, but by afternoon it gets soiled at the collar and cuffs. This looks awful. Wearing a white shirt at the office is a pitiful abdication of individuality. No well-dressed man should wear a white shirt before sundown."

This verdict makes sense, even if one is so unkind as to suspect that it is part of an insidious campaign to get us into the two-shirt-a-day class—a colored one at the office, a white shirt in the evening.

But something has to be done to lift the American male from the anonymity and monotony of his invariable white shirt.

Personally, I blame American women for the fact their husbands generally look like pen-

Zanesville Dog To Share Estate

ZANESVILLE (AP)—A Zanesville dog will get plenty of bones for the rest of his life.

Bunny Boy, an 8-year-old terrier, was willed $30 monthly by his late mistress, Mrs. Dell T. Dean.

Mrs. Dean, wealthy widow of a Zanesville mortician, left the bulk of her estate to four Zanesville churches, but made sure her dog would be cared for. She even added funds for a "suitable burial" for the dog at its death.

Bunny Boy was left in the care of a housekeeper.

BONUSES FOR BABIES

MUCH HAS BEEN heard recently about the increase in world population, some of the more fearful predicting that the time is not far off when not enough food can be produced to feed the earth's inhabitants. At the same time some nations have been conducting campaigns to increase the birth rate.

Two years ago Russia boasted about the rapid increase in population in the USSR, an announcement which caused concern in capitals which must keep a wary eye on Russian military and industrial power.

Eight times a year a Washington agency issues reports on world population by nations. The agency is maintained by Robert Cook and his wife, who spend their days studying population trends from official and non-official reports.

The Russian boast, they aver, is of a type with other Russian announcements. Instead of an increase, there has been a definite reduction in the birth rate, and population is decreasing.

The story in Italy under Mussolini was identical. Canada is the latest nation to start a campaign to increase its population, offering attractive rewards by putting parents who comply on the government payroll. The Cooks report the plan will fail, as it has wherever it has been tried.

At any rate, there is no reason to fear a food shortage. In fact, the United States could feed many times its number of citizens if it were necessary to do so and science really got on the ball.

FRENCH TO BOW OUT

SEVERAL MONTHS have passed since the surrender in Indochina, thousands of square miles of real estate and hundreds of thousands of natives have been taken over by the Communists.

The French have now agreed to a proposal advanced by Washington fully a year ago, while there was still chance of holding Indochina. The plan was then for French troops to disengage gradually from the fighting while native troops were trained to replace them. French sensibilities were then too tender to condone such thinking. Now they grasp at this straw.

Hence, if all goes well, the French will start withdrawing their 10-division expeditionary force from Viet Nam, while national troops of the new republic take over. The U. S. has agreed to pay the bill from funds previously allocated for the Indochinese fighting both for the support of remaining French troops and the training of natives.

Dismemberment of Viet Nam is water under the bridge. The next crisis coming up is the free election, less than two years away, when North and South Viet Nam must decide whether to unite under Communist or free world auspices.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Lattimore Case will be with us for some time, now that it is to come to trial. It is only fair to treat this as any other matter actually before the courts, without prejudice for or against the defendant or for or against the Government Controversy should end at the threshold of a courtroom, where only a jury and judge can render a decision.

The objection of the Department of Justice to Judge Luther W. Youngdahl as the sitting judge in the Lattimore Case arises from his decision of May 2, 1953, on a motion to throw out the indictment of that expert on Far Eastern affairs.

The unusual step taken by Leo A. Rover, the U. S. Attorney in the case, supported by Herbert Brownell, Jr., Attorney General, can hardly be understood unless one has read the testimony before the Tydings Committee, the testimony before the McCarran Committee investigating the Institute of Pacific Relations, and the decision rendered by Judge Youngdahl which not only threw out four out of seven counts of the indictment but contained unusual language amounting to obiter dicta.

Judge Youngdahl said in his decision: "Defendant in the first count is charged with lying in denying that he was a sympathizer or promoter of Communist interests. It seems to the court that this charge is so nebulous and indefinite that a jury would have to indulge in speculation in order to arrive at a verdict. Sympathies and beliefs and what they mean to different individuals involve concepts that are highly nebulous and speculative at best."

This language is difficult to understand. The question at issue was and is, did Owen Lattimore lie or did he tell the truth? If he told the truth, a jury could not convict him; if he lied, a jury might convict him. It is up to the Government to prove that he did lie; it is up to Lattimore to establish that the Government is wrong, that he did, in fact, not lie.

Therefore, what is here said by Judge Youngdahl gives the impression that he regards the question of lying too abstruse, too difficult for an American jury to understand. But our system of jurisprudence is based on the assumption that a man is tried by his peers who determine the issues, the judge only making sure that there is no violation of the law.

Why then is a charge "nebulous" and "indefinite" when it specifically and clearly states that what is before the court is whether a lie was or was not spoken. In millions of cases, particularly those pertaining to marital relations, "sympathies and beliefs" are always before a jury. Were there no "sympathies and beliefs," how could there be a marriage except by coercion or bargain?

The judge went further in this argument:

"... I presume a person could sympathize with a belief and yet still not believe. To probe the mind in a situation like this would give rise to nothing more than sheer speculation on the part of the prober. It is fundamental that a jury should not be asked to determine an issue which can be decided only on conjecture."

Hormone Lack Can Cause Nosebleeds In Women

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PEOPLE who watch boxing matches on television are well aware that the most common cause for nosebleed is a blow on the nose. But, of course, there are other causes.

When the nosebleed results from an injury, such as picking the nose, it usually can be stopped by holding the two sides of the nose together, thus putting pressure on the bleeding vessels. If this does not work, the nose may have to be packed by a physician. Or, if the bleeding comes rapidly from a blood vessel, this may sometimes have to be cauterized to clear the trouble permanently.

Different Treatment
There is one kind of nosebleed in women, however, which requires a different treatment.

One of the secretions in the body, known as estrogen, is formed by the ovaries in women. Lack of estrogen, it is believed, results in the formation of a substance which causes the blood vessels to dilate, damaging them so that bleeding occurs. Nosebleeds come from this cause, the bleeding is excessive, the pulse rate becomes rapid and the patient is agitated and fearful.

It is not recommended, of course, that estrogen be used for all nosebleeds. But when there is serious nasal bleeding, the use of this substance is given consideration, since it will cause no trouble and, if some other cause for the bleeding is discovered, the use of the estrogen will do no harm.

In the cases due to this cause, the giving of estrogen usually stops the bleeding within 20 to 30 minutes, the pulse rate slows down and the swollen blood vessels in the nose return to normal size. Of course, if the bleeding is slight, the simple measures explained above will, as a rule, suffice as treatment.

If bleeding continues for ten or fifteen minutes or longer, a physician should be consulted at once.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

M. F.: What is considered low blood pressure for a man 53 years of age? My blood pressure is 120.
Answer: Blood pressure of 120 is normal in a person of your age. There is no need for you to be worried about this matter.

SYNOPSIS

When the noted sleuth, Jim Bennett, accepted the invitation of his secretary, Sandy Hollis, to join with her family for a weekend of pleasant shooting in rural Ohio, he looked forward to a pleasant, quiet time. But when he met her family and friends, he realized that he was amid a drama of human conflict as tense as anything he'd experienced in his long crime-detection career. Sandy's young war-vet brother, Ralph, had "ditched" the spirited Judy Kirkland for docile Eileen Fortune, and the hate between these two women flew like sparks. But the pleasant hunt proceeds as scheduled, with the Hollis' Eileen Fortune and her father Jake, and Bennett, armed and equipped to bring down birds. On a ridge overlooking the Kirkland property, Ralph Hollis is felled by gun-shot and lies bleeding and unconscious on the ground. Judy Kirkland, wildly distraught, rushes to his side, admitting that she had been shooting back of the ridge, and that her gun may have accidentally got Ralph.

CHAPTER NINE

SANDY and I stood helplessly in the hospital corridor. After endless waiting, the doctor came to us and said "Ralph's got a chance. Two of the slugs penetrated the lung wall. How did it happen?" Sandy glanced helplessly at me, and I told the doctor all I knew about the accident. When I finished, he looked thoughtful and said quietly, "I see. Who are you, by the way?"

"My name's Bennett—Jim Bennett. Sandy said, "Doctor, he's my boss, in Cleveland. We came down together yesterday."

The doctor snapped his fingers. "Of course. The fact that Sandy works for you makes her a kind of celebrity around here." He smiled and held out a hand. "Glad to meet you, Jim."

We shook hands, and he said, "I've got to run, my office will be full. He glanced up at a big clock on the wall. "But first I've got to run out past your folks' place, Sandy. Can I give you a lift?"

"No, thanks," Sandy said. "I'll stay here for a while. Will Ralph be all right?"

He hedged, as all doctors must. "I'll check him in a couple of hours."

As he moved away, I saw Mr. and Mrs. Hollis and Eileen Fortune coming up the corridor. Sandy went to meet them and I heard her say, "Now, don't worry. He'll be all right."

Home! Hollis said, "Judy came over to Jake's place and told us. I got Mom and drove right in."

"You can't see him for a while," Sandy said, and the four of them sat on a bench along the wall. Mrs. Hollis looked as if she'd been crying, and Homer's lean face was grim. Eileen Fortune was sobbing openly. I moved down to them, and Homer said, "Jim, I'm sorry. This had to happen—to spoil your visit."

"Don't worry about me," Mrs. Hollis said brokenly, "To think what that boy went through in the Army, and then he comes home..."

Homer patted her plump shoulder. Eileen Fortune's sobs grew louder, and she bunched a wadded handkerchief to her nose. It seemed to me that she looked quite unattractive, but I sternly told myself that I should be more charitable. After all, Ralph was her betrothed.

I saw Dr. Mazzini, dressed in street clothes again, standing at the far end of the corridor. Sandy saw him, too, and she said to me, "Go with him, Jim. There is no need for you to wait around here. I'll see you at the house."

"All right," I moved down to the doctor, asked him if I could ride with him as far as the Hollis place. He nodded, and we went out to his Ford. As we drove away, he said, "I've got to see a patient on the next road past the Hollis place."

We rode in silence for a while, but after we left the village limits the doctor said suddenly, "Judy's too careless—about everything. All she was thinking about was killing that bird, and she didn't pay attention to anything else. She should have seen Ralph, standing like you said on the top of the ravine."

"Yes," I said, noting that we were in the country and approaching the lane leading up to the Hollis farm. "Let me out at the top of the hill."

He looked at me quickly. "Is that near where it happened?" "Fairly near. It was back off the highway, beyond the woods."

He compressed his lips and he didn't speak again until he'd stopped the Ford on the edge of the highway at the top of the hill overlooking the Hollis farm and the adjoining land where Jake Fortune and Eileen lived. And through the distant trees I saw the gables of a tall old house and decided that it was the Kirkland place, where Judy's aunts spent their days in what I imagined was decadent loneliness. And from the hill top the tree-fringed ravine wound across the land of all three farms.

Dr. Mazzini said carefully, "It was an accident?" I looked at him in surprise. "Of course."

He sat with his hands on the wheel and his eyes were bleak as they surveyed the countryside. "You wanted out here," he said, "and not at the Hollis lane. To me, that means you're going to look over the scene where it happened. You're a detective, with a big agency. You're almost the same as the law, and I know how your mind works. When I was just out of Western Reserve and interning I had a part-time job with the coroner's office. We had some homicides, of course. I helped on some of them, and I got to know some of the city detectives." He paused, his eyes on the horizon.

"Go on," I said gently. He turned toward me. "I assume that you are aware that Judy Kirkland is a hellion, that Ralph Hollis jilted her for Eileen Fortune?"

violently when the barkeep would serve him no more drinks. "I'll have yez know," he hollered, "that I'm the featherweight champion of the Emerald Isle!" "Be you now?" replied the barman grimly. "Well, one more peep out of you, me lad, and out you go—feathers and all!"

An intrepid British sportsman invaded the African jungle in search of big game, but ran afoul of a blazing native insurrection. A couple of pigeons flew over the annual Yale-Harvard game. "Who do you like?" asked one pigeon. "Well," replied the other with a knowing wink, "I've just put everything I have on Yale."

news behind the news

WASHINGTON—In a burst of pre-election spending and promises to spend, every Administration agency has labored night and day to replenish the pocketbooks and relieve the unemployment fears of millions of voters in every section of the country.

There is nothing sinister or unethical in timing the federal outlay so that it may contribute to election of a Republican Congress, or at least keep Democratic gains to a minimum. The strategy was stolen wholesale from the politico-economic books of the Roosevelt-Hopkins—Ickes era, when expenditures always boomed in the weeks before the opening of the voting booths.

But it is a fact that the Administration, not noted for prompt action or brilliant tactics in the past, has poured out the dollars at amazing speed and timeliness. While detailed estimates are not yet available, it is believed that the increased largeness for the September-October-November period will amount to several hundred million dollars, in addition to the ordinary government payments. The number of beneficiaries will run from six to ten million.

ACTION — The expanded Social Security bill, for instance, was not signed by President Eisenhower until Sept. 1. The measure provided that boosts in benefits become effective for the month of September.

Revising the records at Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby's office, making out the checks at Treasury and mailing them at the postoffice entailed a tremendous volume of tedious and complicated work.

But the September payments, which totaled $319 million for that month alone — a monthly jump of $36 million — were on the way to the recipients by Oct. 3. It is expected that the October checks will reach the 6.6 million retired workers and dependents before Nov. 2, Election Day.

HIGHWAYS — The 1954 Federal

Highway Act did not become law until a few months ago. The largest measure of its kind in legislative history, it appropriates almost $1 billion for new roads. The amount will reach approximately $2 billion as a result of state and local contributions.

The various Washington agencies involved on the basis of plans and blueprints on the shelves for several years, have given authority to the local government units to make contracts already. It will mean the hiring of men and the purchase of materials. Although necessary delays may hold up actual employment, it holds out the promise of work fairly soon in this field.

DWELLINGS — Despite extra work in ferreting out and cleaning out the "scandal" in the Federal Housing Agency, Administrator Albert M. Cole has rushed the preparation of new forms for real estate construction, purchases and mortgages, based on the milder terms provided by the recent Congress. The government's financial policies have been geared to making money cheap and plentiful.

Cole anticipates that about 1.2 million new homes will be constructed in 1955, which will equal the 1954 figures.

CONTRACTS — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson is preparing to award contracts totaling many hundreds of millions of dollars. In a generally unnoticed paragraph of his "kennel and bird dog" interview, he said that he expected the contracts to relieve unemployment in many industrial centers by December.

Finally, although its effect may not be felt by Nov. 2, Eisenhower has a staff of advisers and experts framing a 10-year public works program—highways, hospitals, schools and colleges, military bases, waterways, maintenance, etc.—that will dwarf the Roosevelt-Hopkins-Ickes expenditures. The total cost is now placed at between $125 and $200 million.

Baum, Eitel Pumpkin Pies Take Top Honors Thursday

Winners To Vie For Grand Prize

Mrs. Frank Baum of Duval's Thursday's Champion Betty Crocker Pumpkin Pie baker. Mrs. George Eitel took top honors in the contest sponsored by the Pumpkin Show, Inc., using her own choice of ingredients.

Mrs. Baum and Mrs. Eitel will vie with Mrs. Wilbur Neff and Mrs. Florence Rutherford, Wednesday's winners, and the Friday and Saturday champions in the Saturday evening bake-off. Grand prize in the contest is a Crosley Refrigerator, awarded by Ben Gordon with the cooperation of the Scioto Sales, Inc.

Mrs. Baum received a West Bend Fryer as her award in the daily contest, while Mrs. Eitel was awarded a cash prize of $5. Mrs. Bill Lockard of 142 1-2 W. Main St. took second place in the Betty Crocker contest, and was recipient of a set of four aluminum cake pans.

Mrs. Jay Seaburn of Williamsport as second prize winner in the Pumpkin Show, Inc. contest, and received a cash award of $3.

Mrs. Don Miller of Circleville Route 1 won third place in both the General Mills Betty Crocker contest and the any-ingredient division. She was awarded a Betty Crocker Cook Book and a cash prize of $2.

Judges in the Thursday event were Miss Gulielma A. Fisher, dietitian at Chillicothe Veterans Hospital; Mrs. Ernest Harper of Good Hope, former Home Economics teacher in Fayette County, and Mrs. Ruth Peters of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company.

Mrs. Sterling Poling and Mrs. John Griffiths, chairmen of a Junior Woman's Club committee in charge of the event, stated that Mrs. Baum revealed that her pie was baked with the magic formula of Mrs. Everett Peters of Ashville, champion of the 1952 and 1953 contests. This recipe was published at the close of the 1953 contest and again this year in the Thursday edition of The Circleville Herald.

Entries in each of the daily contests must be made in the Lutheran Parish House between 11 a. m. and 12 noon on the day of the judging. All pies become the property of the Pumpkin Show, Inc. and are sold in a booth sponsored by the show officials and the Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Richard Penn is booth chairman.

Entries in the Betty Crocker contest, sponsored by General Mills and the merchants of Pickaway County, must be made either with Betty Crocker Stir-n-Roll crust, using Gold Medal Flour and Wesson Oil, or with Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix.

The pie filling must be made with either Country Colonel or Winorr Canned Pumpkin. All entries must be accompanied by the labels of the products used.

Entries in the cash award contest may be made with any type crust, and may contain any ingredients, according to the wishes of the baker.

Winners in each of the divisions of the final contests are eligible to compete in the final bake-off Saturday evening. All entries in the grand prize contest must be made with Betty Crocker Stir-n-Roll crust or with Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix. The filling must be made with either Country Colonel or Winorr Canned Pumpkin.

All entries in the final contest must be accompanied by the labels of the products used and must be in the parish house by 6 p. m., when the contest closes.

Winner in the final contest will have her name inscribed on a Betty Crocker Annual Award Plaque, fast,

Ashville Women Conduct Meeting Of Church Group

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Ashville Methodist church held a regular meeting in the church with 38 members and guests present.

Mrs. J. E. Courtright conducted the devotionals, using as her subject, "Christ, The Way". Mrs. T. R. Acord, program chairman, presented The Rev. Emerson Abts, Seibert Duval, Richard Cook and Chester Hedges in two vocal selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Duval at the piano.

Miss Mary Lou Cloud sang, "Enough to Know". She was accompanied on the organ by Mrs. John Hardin.

Mrs. Elliot Crites gave a brief summary of the Fourth Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, which was held at Milwaukee, Wis. The three main subjects discussed were: Peace, Missions and the World Church.

Following an organ selection presented by Miss Carolyn Stout, Mrs. John Dick, district treasurer of the society, gave a few remarks on her work.

The members voted to sponsor a chicken pie supper in November and Mrs. Roy Teegardin urged members to contribute toward a pair of shoes for a Korean child. This collection will be taken at the next meeting.

The session closed with the theme song, "The Christian Life". Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Courtright and her committee.

Committees Are Named At Meet Of Auxiliary

Committees for the coming year were named by Mrs. Charles Bartholomew, president of the Auxiliary of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, during the regular meeting held in the Legion home.

Mrs. Clark Martin was appointed chairman of a membership committee; Mrs. Ola Steele, flower committee chairman; Mrs. Dudley Coffland, head of entertainment; Mrs. Robert Liston, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Carl Radcliff, head of sales tax stamp collections.

Mrs. Martin was also appointed to head a membership drive for the auxiliary. She will be assisted by Mrs. Robert Valentine, Mrs. James Morrison and Mrs. Clifford Kerns.

A Pumpkin Show exhibit committee announced that the group is entering a decorated car in the parades during the annual event.

Mrs. James Price and Mrs. Fred Boggs gave a report on a successful rummage sale sponsored by the group. A resume also was given on a social party held to honor members of the Drum and Bugle Corps.

which will remain in her possession until a new champion is declared.

Mrs. Everett Peters of Ashville, present holder of the plaque, will make the award during ceremonies to be held at 8:30 p. m. Saturday on the platform at Court and Main Sts.

The winner also will be awarded the grand champion prize of a Crosley Refrigerator, through the courtesy of Ben Gordon with the cooperation of the Scioto Sales, Inc.

100 Attend Republican Dinner Meet

Over 100 persons attended a carry-in dinner sponsored by the Pickaway County Women's Republican Club in the Scioto Grange Hall.

Music was provided by the Ashville High School Band and Fred Brown presented four vocal solos during the evening. He was accompanied by Miss Ann O'Hara.

Mrs. H. O. Caldwell, club president, introduced the speakers, who included: Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, Wilbur Shull, Robert Shaw and George Lutz. The offices of Ted W. Brown and C. William O'Neil also were represented.

Hostesses for the event were: Mrs. Elmer Payne, chairman, Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey, Mrs. A. D. Pettibone, Mrs. Earl Kissell, Mrs. Ethel Valentine, Mrs. Donald Watt, Mrs. Paul Peters, Mrs. Arthur Swingle, Mrs. Elliot Crites, Miss Doris Cook, Mrs. W. J. Whitehead and Mrs. Isaac Miller.

A little leftover ham and chicken will make a fine luncheon dish this way: Scoop your baked potatoes and mash with butter or margarine, a little hot milk or cream, salt, pepper and minced parsley. Now dice the chicken and ham fine and add. Pile the mashed potato back into the shells, sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in the oven or under the broiler.

Gingerbread In Party Quantity Molasses And Fruit Enriched

Gingerbread, with its colonial flavor-touch of unsulphured molasses, ranks as a classic American dessert. Here it is baked in quantity for 24 servings at a party or neighborhood social, and dressed up with applesauce and whipped cream.

Unsulphured Molasses Tops In Flavor and Color

Gingerbread invites by its molasses spice and aroma. Here the party gingerbread comes of mellow color and with the sweet flavor perfection of unsulphured molasses. Baking soda has been used, and baking powder, too, as the extra leavening agent to account for the dessert's feathery lightness.

This gingerbread can be served economically and with a variety of toppings. It is excellent with applesauce and other fruit, ice cream or chocolate, lemon or hard sauces.

Party Gingerbread

4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons each, ginger, cloves and cinnamon

1½ cups shortening
1½ cups sugar
1½ teaspoons soda
1½ cups unsulphured molasses
2 large eggs
1½ cups butter-milk

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and spices. Cream together shortening, sugar and soda; blend in unsulphured molasses. Stir in ¼ cup flour mixture. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add buttermilk alternately with remaining flour mixture. Beat ½ minute. Turn into a well greased and lightly floured 15½ x 10½ x 2½-inch baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 50 minutes.

YIELD: 24 servings.

Williamsport Child Study League Hears Rev. Zehner

The Rev. Carl Zehner of Trinity Lutheran church of Circleville was guest speaker at a meeting of the Child Study League of Williamsport.

The Rev. Mr. Zehner spoke on the subject of religion for children, and presented copies of several books on religious subjects which he recommended to his listeners.

The Rev. Mr. Zehner said a child's religion should not devour his emotional life and God should not be presented to the young child in the image of his parents.

He stressed the need for simplicity of presentation, stating that even a small child can understand that God loves us and watches over us in our every-day living.

The speaker urged his listeners to remember that parents must play the largest part in teaching religion to their children. He also spoke of the influence of television programs on the religious habits of the child.

The Rev. Mr. Zehner presented, as phases of good religious training: life guidance, truthfulness, honesty, and love of God, rather than worship through fear.

In conclusion, the speaker stated

Guidance for Family Living

A FATHER EXHORTS HIS SON TO KEEP THE LAWS OF LIFE WHICH HAVE SERVED HIM WELL

Scripture—Proverbs 4; 6:20-7:37; 17:1; 19:13-14; 31:10-31.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
WHAT ARE the rules of life, if followed diligently, will lead us to make the most of our lives? We know we need not be rich in money and goods to be happy. We may even be poor in this world's goods, but rich in love and happiness.

Solomon, that wise man of old, tells us how his conduct was guided by his father, King David, which should be helpful to us.

We have been shocked in recent months to read or know about the vicious behavior of some groups of children. According to the accounts, many of these youngsters did not come from the slums. Some were children of people who lived in comfortable homes and were considered good, upright citizens.

Some were from broken homes, where the father, perhaps, had deserted his family or his actions had caused the mother to separate from him or divorce him. Two married people may not be happy together, but, surely, when there are children to consider, their love for them and the knowledge that they need both parents, should make the parents unselfish enough to try, and keep on trying, to make adjustments so that the home may be maintained.

Let us read the words of Solomon.

quietness therewith, than a house full of sacrifices with strife," we read. Strife in the home is often the cause of children's misbehavior. A home may be filled with children's laughter and fun, which the parents may share, but underneath there is a quietness that soothes. It may be a very humble home, but where this quietness is, there is peace and happiness.

The other side of the picture is shown in Proverbs, Verse 13 of Chapter 19: "A foolish son is the calamity of his father: and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping."

A foolish son is one who does not reciprocate his parents' love or recognize their wisdom. And what is worse in a home than a contentious person—whether it be wife or husband—one who is irritable and scolding and a curse, instead of a blessing, in the home.

Solomon pays the greatest and most beautiful tribute to a good woman to be found in all literature in the last chapter of his Proverbs.

"Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life."

Then he recounts her activities;

MEMORY VERSE

"My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother."—Proverbs 6:20.

mon: "My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother: Bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck. When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou wakest, it shall talk with thee."

We who are fortunate enough to have come from happy homes, with parents who were upright and God fearing and loved each other, know how the admonitions of our parents follow us through life. We remember even their trivial sayings with happy recollections and affection.

Not only their sayings, but their actions have made a deep impression on our minds when we were very young, and they help us all through the years, just as King David's counsel was so well remembered that his son wrote it down for the world to read. He and his father and mother must have been very close to each other. Such a tie reminds us that God is our Father who is even closer to us than a living human father.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding," we read in last week's lesson. Wisdom and its understanding will keep the man true to his own soul as well as to his family. He may be tempted, but will not yield to the evil.

"Better is a dry morsel, and providing good food and clothing for her family, which meant weaving cloth (as our pioneer mothers did, making it into comfortable garments). Rising in the early morning to send husband and children off to work or school with a good meal; stretching out her hands to the poor.

"She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praiseth her. . . . Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain; but a woman who feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."

Such a woman reminds us of the poet Lord Tennyson's words in his poem, "The Princess." "Happy be with such a mother: faith in womankind beats in his blood, and trust in all things high comes easy to him."

In a home with such parents, even if a man "trip and fall," as the poet says, he will not be lost, but will return again to the paths of righteousness, avoiding evil, clinging to that which is good.

If we carefully read the words of Solomon's, written so many years ago, but still full of wisdom for us of the modern world, and if we memorize them and try to follow them throughout our lives, we will not only be better citizens, but better Christians, and surely our conduct will be pleasing to God, our heavenly Father.

Bible Words To Live By

PSALM 46:10—"Be still, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth."

To me this is a favorite verse of Scripture because it serves to turn God who made him, and Who is far more able to deal with the crucial issues of our time than any of us who are finite beings and subject to definite limitations. Sometimes we are tempted to wonder how matters are going to turn out in the midst of a tragic world, and then as we read these lines of the Psalmist we are reminded that the last chapter of history will not be written by evil men, but that in due season God's name and way will prevail.

A great deal of our discouragement is due to an inadequate conception of God, and to insufficient faith to believe that the forces of evil are subject to the sovereignty of God. The New Testament verse

AUSTRALIA'S CAPITAL, DESIGNED BY AMERICAN, IS A TIE TO U. S.

Parliament House is most imposing government building in Australia's made-to-order capital, Canberra.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Australia and the United States, already closely linked in the new Southeast Asia Treaty organization and the Anzus Pact of 1952, have another sentimental attachment—their two capital cities were struck off the same mold.

Canberra, the gleaming white metropolis which holds the unique distinction of being the only capital of an entire continent, was designed only 40 years ago by a famous American architect and city planner, Walter Burley Griffin of Chicago.

Just as Americans honor the memory of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant and glory in seeing Washington still emerging in the grand design he drew, Australians celebrate Griffin as a national hero.

Actually Griffin and his wife, Marion, who helped him bring Canberra into being off the drafting boards, have won places in the hearts of those who live "down under" such as have few Americans among a foreign people.

That is because not only did the disciple of the great Chicago town planner, Daniel Burnham, and of the famed Frank Lloyd Wright win the dramatic world-wide $10,000 competition Australia held for a design of its new capital city, but in 1913 he and his wife went there to superintend the initial construction.

THEY REMAINED to design many notable buildings that stand today, and a visitor from the United States to Castlereag, Sydney's exclusive suburb, will rub his eyes and think he is back in Illinois or Wisconsin looking at specimens of the Wright school of design.

Canberra was created when Australians could not decide between Sydney and Melbourne, and undertook to emulate the United States in building a federal city on an idyllic site at the foot of the Australian Alps.

The idea of building a national

Frank Lloyd Wright, had integrated their design with the actual terrain.

Washington provided the master pattern for the city layout, as the many circular parks and radiating thoroughfares in Canberra indicate. Moreover, in Griffin's estimation, Canberra like Washington, was not to be a city of industry and commerce, "but a dream-fed metropolis realizing in its plan the ideal of a nation."

GRiffin lived to see his dream well on its way toward fulfillment. A city of 7,000 quickly sprang up. Waterworks were built to supply an eventual population of 70,000.

Excavations revealed that seven prehistoric lakes had existed in the very spots he marked out for basins in an immense layout of parks among the governmental buildings, indicating how closely he had sensed the contours sight-unseen thousands of miles away!

Canberra today, a city of 15,000, lies in a beautiful valley 2,000 feet above sea level, as though in an amphitheater overlooked by surrounding hills and mountains. Thousands of American visitors to the Olympic Games of 1956 may visit the brain child of their countryman.

It bids fair to become one of the most beautiful cities in the world. A fitting tribute to the genius of Washington's designer, L'Enfant, it constitutes a challenge for the famous French architect, M. Le Corbusier, as he works on Punjab's $36 million undertaking at Chandigarh, and for Prof. Donald J. Belcher of Cornell university as he projects a proposed new capital for Brazil.

Badger-Buckeye Joust May Tell Big Ten Title

Arkansas And Ole Miss Pitted; Each Also Has Eye On Bowl Trip

The Associated Press
The time has come for Wisconsin to start thinking seriously in terms of winning the Big Ten championship and making the jaunt to the Rose Bowl next Jan. 1.

The Badgers, who weren't considered any great shakes in pre-season estimates of the Western Conference, meet rough, tough Ohio State tomorrow in a game that could make or break their hopes. The Buckeyes, too, are very much in the race for league honors.

Ivy Williamson's lads still would have to get past Iowa, Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota even if they do beat Ohio State. But there's no denying that this is the big one.

For Ohio State, the game represents another big stumbling block in its bid for the title. Even if the Buckeyes do win, they'll still have to whip Purdue and Michigan.

In the South, the big interest will be the battle between Mississippi and Arkansas. Ole Miss is co-leader of the Southwest Conference and Arkansas is the surprise of the Southwest Conference.

Both teams are looking ahead to New Year's Day and a bowl game. But even more important at this stage, the game should provide a good insight on Mississippi's strength. The school has been tabbed as one with a weak schedule and this accusation has hurt its national standing.

Meanwhile, there's a game with national implications on tap for tonight when the undefeated University of Miami entertains Maryland. The Terps, mythical national champions last year, took a nose-dive at the start of the current campaign but looked good beating North Carolina 33-0 last week.

William and Mary tangles with George Washington. Detroit engages Tulsa and Houston plays Villanova in other important games tonight.

Oklahoma the No. 1 team in the country in the weekly Associated Press poll, takes on Kansas State. UCLA, No. 2, also has an easy one against Oregon State, beaten three times.

Colorado, which very well could get the Orange Bowl assignment, meets Nebraska, and Southern California, which could be the Rose Bowl host, takes on California.

Among the other top-ranked teams in the nation, Minnesota goes against Michigan; Army plays Columbia; and West Virginia figures to toy with Virginia Military Institute. Notre Dame isn't scheduled.

There will be three television games of the week under the NCAA program tomorrow. The one that will be seen in most sections will pair Pitt against Northwestern. The Boston University-Holy Cross game will be beamed to the New England states and the Brigham Young-Montana contest will be seen in the Far West.

There was one game yesterday and it came out as expected. South Carolina, the team that upset Army at the start of the season, defeated Clemson 13-8.

$4,000 Mare Wins Lush Gotham Trot

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP)—Katie Key, a bargain $4,000 purchase in the fall of 1952, may not be voted the best aged trotting mare of the season, but she'll get plenty of support in the final reckoning.

The 7-year-old daughter of Long Key took command in the stretch last night to win the $29,375 mile-and-one-half Gotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway by 1 1/2 lengths over Faber Hanover.

Faber Hanover, 4-year-old colt owned by the Farmstead Acres of Brookville, and driven by the nation's top reinsman, Billy Haughton, set most of the pace and would have won except for breaking stride in the stretch.

Whitey Lockman, Giant's first baseman, made 40 putouts in the World Series. He played errorless ball.

These boys can eat up $11,000 worth of food in one month.

WHAT price fame—grid fame, that is? Plenty!

COLLEGE FOOTBALL is big business and if you don't think so, consider what it costs to outfit a team, feed it and transport it through a season.

For example, did you know it cost the University of Michigan $10,000-$11,000 to feed the boys during the one month pre-school training period? That's three meals a day and those husky lads can really work up an appetite after several hours of hard practice. During the school season only one meal a day is furnished the boys but it's three meals at $10 to $12 a head each day when the team plays an out-of-town game and an added $15,000 is doled out by the athletic department for travel and payment to game officials during one season.

Although an average of 33 players make up a varsity team, some 65 behind-the-scenes employees are needed to operate a football team successfully. To give you an idea here's the breakdown at the University of Michigan: 2 in the athletic director's office, 2 in publicity, 9 on the coaching staff, 3 trainers, 4 in the equipment room (they take care of the uniforms and equipment, shoe repair, sewing and laundry), 2 movie cameramen, 10 on the ground crew, 15 in the ticket office (4 used the year-around), 12 head ushers (they are paid), 4 press box employees and one physician.

Floyd Patterson, 19-year-old light heavyweight contender who has been nurtured as carefully as a hothouse plant, is favored to make ex-cop Joe Gannon of Washington his 17th pro victim tonight in Madison Square Garden.

College runners from schools in six midwestern states have been invited to compete in the Cincinnati Elks' 44th annual six-mile cross country run on Thanksgiving Day. The race will be from Port Thomas, Ky., to downtown Cincinnati.

Tailback Bill Engelhardt of unbeaten Omaha and fullback Ralph Capitani of Iowa Teachers are waging a close duel for top honors in the small-college total offense race. Engelhardt has accumulated 831 yards rushing and passing as compared to Capitani's 823.

Bert Curtis, 76, former professional baseball player and sports official, died in Marion yesterday. He played football at Ohio Wesleyan University as a teammate of Branch Rickey, under Coach Fielding Yost, near the turn of the century.

But the issue is not one of sympathy or belief. It is whether the truth or a falsehood was told under oath. Maybe to the layman all this is too simple, but it appears that the Department of Justice is also surprised at the nature of Judge Youngdahl's opinion.

Minor League Club Chiefs Eye Finances

COLUMBUS (AP)—Added financial aid to smaller baseball clubs was discussed here at a three-day meeting which closed yesterday. Major League farm directors and minor league leaders attended the closed sessions.

They declined to say what problems were discussed or what legislation was formulated for presentation to the minor league convention in Houston, Tex., Nov. 29 through Dec. 3.

Reports that leaked out of the meeting, however, cited: An earlier recall deadline, possibly June 30, after which no major league club could take a player from a minor league club which it owned or with which it had a working agreement.

Reduction of the major league player limit from 25 to 23 with AAA teams limited to 20 or 21. Revision of working agreements between majors and minors to give the smaller loops more financial aid.

Restriction of radio and television broadcasts by major league clubs into minor league territory.

under the safeguards of the rules of evidence. As it stands at the moment, Owen Lattimore is guilty of nothing under the law. He may never be. But it is not to his advantage that he should be tried by a judge who could say in 1953: "In our proper concern for the internal and external threat of Communism and in pursuing our efforts to strike down this threat, we should endeavor to be consistent and not attempt to require a conformity in thought and beliefs that has no relevancy to a present danger to our security..."

This obiter dicta had nothing to do with the indictment in the Lattimore Case. It had nothing to do with the facts of American life after the theft of the atom bomb and the failure in Korea.

Kittens Record 6th Straight; Defeat Wilmington 26 To 7

CHS Reserve Footballers Keep Slate Clean; Wilmington Had Previously Been Unbeaten

Playing their best game of the season, Circleville High School's footballers rolled to a 26-7 victory over Wilmington's reserves in that city Thursday afternoon.

It was the sixth consecutive win for the unbeaten Kittens and they have a 3-0 record against South-Central Ohio League teams, with Greenfield yet to play. The only other game standing between the Kittens and a perfect season is one with Chillicothe, whom the reserves defeated here earlier in the season by a 14-6.

Until Wilmington's reserves also had been unbeaten. Circleville scored the first time it had the ball, however, and jumped to a 26-0 lead early in the fourth quarter before Wilmington could push over a touchdown against the second and third team defense.

The Kittens actually marched 105 yards to score their first touchdown. Wilmington kicked off to start the game, and Jim Beck returned the ball only to the Circleville 10-yard line.

FROM THAT POINT, CHS marched steadily upfield to the Wilmington 15, only to have a clipping penalty move the ball back to the 30.

Undaunted, the Kittens scored on two long running plays, with Dave Carpenter lugging the ball on both occasions. The score came with Carpenter carrying off tackle and rambling 15 yards into the end zone. Jim Beck's placement kick was good.

CHS wasted a couple of scoring opportunities later in the half when passes were dropped. But they made the score 13-0 on the last play of the first half when Quarterback Wendell Emerine pitched to End Fred Garner across the goal line. Beck's attempted placement was blocked.

Bee Stings Fatal

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP)—A swarm of bees stung James J. Fagan nearly 100 times yesterday while his wife watched. She ran to neighbors for help. They lit torches and smoked off the bees, but Fagan, 55, was dead.

William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were the opposing lawyers in the famous Scopes trial of 1925.

tempted placement was blocked.

The second half was a continuation of the first, with halfbacks Dave Carpenter and Gary Phifer ripping off several long gains with the aid of blocks thrown by Fullback Larry Lemley.

Midway through the third quarter, with the ball resting on the Wilmington 22, Carpenter again blasted off tackle, cut back, and crossed the goal standing up to make the score 19-0. Beck's attempted placement was again blocked.

THE LAST CIRCLEVILLE touchdown came early in the fourth quarter when a long pass from Quarterback Roger McConnell to End Bill Johnson moved the ball all the way from the Circleville 40 to the Wilmington 5. On the second play, Phifer took a pitchout and raced around end to score. Beck's placement was good and the score read 26-0.

At this point, a completely new defensive team was placed on the field for Circleville and Wilmington got its only TD soon after.

The victory was particularly encouraging in that Dick Banks is being given a shot at the varsity quarterback job and Sophomore Wendell Emerine was handling the club by himself—and did a nice job, according to coach Dick Boyd.

Kendall Dawson, Circleville's middle guard on defense, was praised after the game by the Wilmington coach for his work on defense.

Fullbacks—Lemley, Magill.

2 Gls Knotted In AF Tourney

EGLIN BASE, Fla. (AP)—Service-men from two Texas Air Force bases were in first and second places in the AF worldwide golf tournament today on the strength of two sub-par rounds.

Airman IC James L. Brass of Lackland AFB toured the difficult par 72 Eglin course in 71 yesterday to add to his 68 first round figure for a 139 total.

Right behind him at the halfway mark was 2nd Lt. Joe W. Conrad, Gary AFB, with 140.

Santa Claus Pays Another Early Visit To Mr. Saxton

NEW YORK (AP)—It was December in October for Johnny Saxton today.

Santa Claus paid another visit to the freshly crowned welterweight champion and dropped another present down his chimney—

THREE high-flying gridders attempting to catch a pass intended for the Stanford player at left provide a fine picture for the photog covering the Stanford-U.C.L.A. game in Los Angeles. U.C.L.A., however, didn't provide an entertaining afternoon for Stanford for the Bruins walloped the Indians by a 72-0 score. (International) a suspension of his 15-day jail sentence for 12 traffic violations.

But just how long Santa will continue to bestow favors on the 24-year-old Negro champ remains to be seen.

There was talk of a possible title bout between the New Yorker and Carmen Basilio, the No. 1 contender from Canastota, N.Y., but that was clouded by the shoots of ex-champion Kid Gavilan's handlers that the Cuban has "an ironclad return bout contract."

Norm Rothschild, the Syracuse, N.Y., promoter, has offered Saxton $40,000 to put his title on the line against Basilio in Syracuse. But there's the big question of whether Saxton would draw a gate with anybody, including a hot local attraction.

The reluctant champion, about as cautious and boring a fighter to come on the scene in modern days, has been a party to four prize "stinkers" in the last three years. He reached the apex of his career of etherizing the customers in Philadelphia's Convention Hall Wednesday night when he decided Gavilan.

Gavilan, Manager Angel Lopez and trainer Mundito Medina had cooled down somewhat yesterday from their high fever at post-fight time. Then, in the heat of the announcement that the Kid had lost his crown, they had shouted the old refrain of boxing: "We wuz robbed."

The dapper manager and night club owner insisted, "We have an ironclad return bout contract for New York City. Saxton can fight nobody else until he fights the Keed first."

Frank (Blinky) Palermo, the Philadelphia manager of Saxton, who once said his buddy Lopez didn't have to worry about a return—"He has my word"—now was singing another tune.

"We ain't signed for nobody," said the Blinky. "All we want is dough."

Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, said as far as the IBC knew there was no return contract. He shuddered when the question was put to him. He said the IBC was interested in a Basilio-Saxton match.

Saxton, who had $600 in fines for his traffic tickets, paid another $50 for a speeding charge.

"Don't let it happen again," warned Chief Magistrate John Murtagh when he suspended Saxton's jail term.

An eloquent plea by Saxton's lawyer, John J. Duff, helped get Saxton off. The attorney said Johnny's dull performance was the result of worry about his pending jail sentence.

"Even the defendant's best friend could not say he fought his best fight," said Duff.

Browns To Test Cardinals Again

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland's Browns, just another football team for the first time in their history, move to Chicago tomorrow for a return match against the Cardinals, their only victim this year.

Coach Paul Brown, never a losing coach this deep in a professional season, contends his club is better than it has looked.

After reviewing motion pictures of the 55-27 shellacking Pittsburgh handed the Browns last Sunday, the coach said the team, nevertheless, "played some pretty good football, shockingly so considering the score."

Brown remarked that "actually, the pictures were reassuring" and then blamed the outcome on "some terrific errors."

Ray Schanen of Milwaukee bowl-er a 300 game while testing new equipment. It will not receive official recognition.

Mrs. Harold Norris Receives Trophy For Arrangement

By GRACE SCHELB
Herald Staff Writer

Mrs. Bertha Porter was declared sweepstakes winner with the most ribbon points for entries in the annual Pumpkin Show Flower Exhibit.

Loring Hill and Mrs. Turney Pontius were tied for second high in ribbon points in the display. Cash awards have been presented these winners by the Pickaway Garden Club.

Mrs. Harold Norris has been awarded a Pumpkin Show trophy for the best arrangement in the show, according to an announcement by Mrs. G. G. Campbell, chairman of the exhibit.

Assisting Mrs. Campbell with the huge display of 576 entries, 69 of which are Junior Gardener displays, were:

MRS. OSCAR ROOT, Mrs. D. J. Carpenter, Mrs. Luther Bowers, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. Turney Pontius, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Harold Anderson and Mrs. James Moffitt.

The Fall rains and the late frost both were in favor of the exhibitors, who garnered the best of their late Fall flowers to form a huge and colorful display in the Hill Implement Company on E. Franklin St.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Frank Cooper of Piketon and Mrs. John Butler of Columbus, both nationally accredited judges.

Cash awards were presented to the three top winners in each of the classes in the various sections. Winners in the various classes are as follows:

Cactus Jack Ups Pledge To Charity

UVALDE, Tex. (AP)—Former Vice President John Nance (Cactus Jack) Garner, who'll be 86 a month from today, has boosted his annual donation to the Community Chest by $100.

His liking for old-fashioned "cowboy stew" apparently was a factor.

Garner first upped his contribution $50. Then the volunteer solicitor, Uvalde newspaperman J. A. Scarborough, asked if Garner still liked "cowboy stew."

After Garner, with keen interest, said yes, Scarborough told him he had just killed a calf and would bring Garner the stew ingredients. Cactus Jack immediately raised the Community Chest ante another $50.

Bishop Says Reds Show Varied Colors

BOSTON (AP)—Catholic Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston says, "The Reds have taken on so many colors it is sometimes difficult to spot them."

Speaking yesterday at the convention of the CIO Utilities Workers Union, he said:

"Some Communists are pink professors. Some are blue bloods. Some are lavender old ladies. At least one has donned the scarlet of a dean. Some are green youngsters, freshly sprouted in the field of politics and social action."

"Yellow is a color not unknown among the Reds, especially when citizens become aroused and the white light of publicity is turned on the Reds in government bureaus and elsewhere."

McArthur School Robbed Of $750

McARTHUR (AP)—A thief entered McArthur High School through a basement window and stole about $750 from the office of Supt. George Steele.

The money had been collected for school lunches, class rings and candy bars, and from athletic events. Nothing but the cash was disturbed, and Sheriff William Brown observed:

"It looks as if someone who knew about the school did it."

SHOW RATED GOOD CHANCE FOR RECORD

Mr. Pumpkin Show Has His Big Night

Honored By City, Has Picture Painted, Given Navy Tribute

By DAVE BROWN
Herald Staff Writer
Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show," was treated to three surprises Thursday night during ceremonies honoring his 22 years of official service with the show.
First of all, two five-ton elephants from the Mills Brothers Circus were in the huge parade which preceded the presentation activities. To everyone's recollection, this was the first time elephants had ever been in a Pumpkin Show parade.
Secondly, Colville was commissioned an honorary Navy recruiter. Lt. Cmdr. David W. Ralston presented Colville with a scroll.
Third, Dick Martin, a local painter, "painted" Colville's portrait. The art work, done with a standard automobile spray gun, proved to be a splendid likeness and was left on display at Court and Main.
AFTER OUTLINING Colville's features on white cloth, Martin proceeded to use the spray gun and filled in the sketching. Martin said he believes he is the only person who paints by this method.

Colville was presented with a pocket watch by Columbus Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, a native of Cincinnati. Mayor Sensenbrenner eulogized Colville's efforts over the years.
Cincinnati Mayor Robert E. Hedges introduced Sensenbrenner.
Sensenbrenner, in turn, received a surprise presentation. William Cook, who again had some of the best pumpkins this year, gave a big one to the mayor.
THE ELEPHANTS were a last minute but welcome addition to the parade.
Jack Mills, owner of the circus, called The Herald to say he was passing through on his way to Chillicothe. Arrangements to include the animals were quickly made with Roy C. Marshall, parade chairman.
Efforts to get Mayor Sensenbrenner to ride one of the huge animals ended suddenly when someone pointed out the Democratic mayor would be riding on the symbol of the Republican party. Big Burma, therefore, did not get the ride. Instead, she celebrated her 101st birthday Thursday. She is reputed to be the oldest elephant in captivity. Big Burma is a mere 43.

Burma is quite a performer. She "saluted" President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Washington, D. C. And she loves to play the harmonica.
MANY local people remember that the Mills Brothers Circus used to have winter quarters here at the fairgrounds. Some residents will also remember the fire at the barns there, reportedly set by Robert Dale Segee, who later admitted setting the catastrophic circus fire in Hartford, Conn.
As the barns were burning here, the elephants were released in order to prevent a stampede. Several farmers in the area will recall that the animals made a vivid impression while roaming the vicinity.

Change in Lord's Prayer Is Shelved
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A meeting of Episcopal Church leaders has ended with no action taken on a proposal to change the wording in the Lord's Prayer.
The proposal did not come to a vote yesterday in the closing session. The change was suggested by Lt. Gen. John Courthouse Lee of York, Pa., vice president of the Laymen's Brotherhood of St. Andrew. He said the almost universally used phrase "and lead us not into temptation," should be reworded to read "Let us not fall when tempted," arguing that the present wording is wrong "since no Christian can expect to be spared temptation; but instead the strength to resist temptation," should be prayed for.

Robbers Work Cemetery, Church
CLEVELAND (AP)—Two women, one attending church and the other putting a wreath on a grave, were robbed here yesterday.
Mrs. Ilse Merkle was struck from behind and robbed of more than $20 as she bent over her father's grave at Lake View Cemetery. She told police a man in his 20s grabbed her purse.
Mrs. Margaret O'Boyle said someone took a wallet from her purse while she was in St. Philomena's Catholic Church. She said the thief got personal papers and some change, but missed $20 in another section of the purse.

Most Of U.S. Gets Pleasant Weather
CHICAGO (AP)—More pleasant fall weather covered nearly all of the country today.
There were a few bands of showers and thunderstorms. One extended over a small area of southern Missouri, eastern Oklahoma and most of Arkansas. Another belt of light rain covered area from the Oregon coast to Montana.
Clear or partly cloudy skies prevailed over the rest of the nation.

"MR. PUMPKIN SHOW", Bob Colville, is pictured at left receiving a gift from Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner Thursday night as Cincinnati Mayor Robert E. Hedges looks on. Colville was presented with a pocket watch as a token for his 22 years as treasurer of the Pumpkin Show. Colville was also made an honorary Navy recruiter and had his portrait painted by a unique process.

Wilson's Mail Still Heavy On Bird Dog Tale

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson is still answering letters from people who agree or disagree with his recent controversial comment on unemployment, bird dogs and kennel dogs.
He has received more than 2,100 letters and telegrams since Oct. 11, when in a Detroit news conference he touched off an uproar which brought demands from politicians for his resignation and, a few days later, an apology from Wilson for "inept" remarks.
His friends say that of the approximately 2,100 letters and telegrams received so far, over 1,750 have been favorable, slightly over 360 unfavorable.

Wilson is replying, with somewhat different forms, but with a transcript of the pertinent part of his news conference set to all. The transcript is a reproduction of one published by newspapers.
By the day after the Detroit news conference, telegrams and letters were beginning to arrive at Wilson's office.
When the defense chief met reporters at Washington Oct. 14 he said he was suffering "foot-in-mouth" disease, hoped he was through campaigning. But he looked over his mail, apparently talked with friends and decided recently to make another sortie into politics, with a speech Oct. 29 in Dayton, Ohio. By the time he had come back to Washington, his associates say, there were at least three new invitations to make political talks. Wilson currently is making an inspection tour on the West Coast.

Beloved Animals Strut Stuff In Show's Gala Pet Parade
Accompanied by their beloved dogs, Johnny Christian and Phyllis Ulmann strolled along in the Pumpkin Show Pet Parade Thursday afternoon and received top honors as the most typical boy and girl.
Johnny, of E. Main St., had a mongrel dog, while Phyllis brought along an energetic coon dog.
A colorful parade preceded the judging. Spectators who jammed the parade route, witnessed many hilarious entries in the ever-popular attraction.
One little pooch just got "dog tired" and set himself down in the middle of W. Main St. It took quite a bit of coaxing to get him going again.
ANOTHER gleeful sight was that of a dog hanging onto the back of his master who was riding a bicycle. One dog wore a neat hat while another was all dressed up in a dress that was not strictly Dior.
Second in the typical boys' division was Mike Johnson, of E. Corwin St. Third was Bruce Cook, of E. Mount St.
Linda Stiers, of N. Pickaway St., was second in the girl's category.

Radio Station Helps Drive Starlings Out

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—A radio station and residents of two Illinois cities have ended a novel campaign to get rid of starlings and are hoping the experiment in bird pest control was successful.
For four days this week, in 15-minute programs, the radio station broadcast the distress call of the starling. Preceding the recording were a few minutes of recorded selected noises, gun shots, bomb explosions and miscellaneous pops and bangs. They were described as the "awfullest sound you ever heard."

Radio throughout the twin cities of Champaign-Urbana, home of the University of Illinois, were turned on full blast during the broadcasts. Many persons placed portable radios in yards or open windows.
Motorists, joining in the community project to rid the cities of the birds, parked under trees in which hundreds of the starlings roosted, and turned on car radios.
The recorded starling distress call, described as sounding like "eek-eek, eek-eek, eek," was obtained in cooperation with police and the University of Illinois.
The police captured a starling and the university's electrical engineering school strung the bird up by the heels, then cut a tape of its distress squawk.
Larry Stewart, manager of radio station WDWB, which made the broadcasts, said residents reported good results. But, he added, he didn't know where the departing birds went. He said: "We're keeping the distress call on file in case they come back."

THIS AMOUNTED to a rebuff to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who has lined up against Case.

Ike Sounds Appeal For Enactment Of His Health Plan

President Says American People Will Not Be Denied; Al Smith Lauded In New York Memorial Talk

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower, winding up a two-day visit to New York, has sounded new appeals for enactment of his health program and for election of another Republican Congress.
In the final address of his New York visit, the chief executive declared last night his program for expansion of the nation's voluntary health insurance plans, pigeonholed by the last Republican-controlled Congress, is "the logical alternative to socialized medicine."
Speaking to 2,000 persons, who paid $100 each to charity at the annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation Dinner, Eisenhower said the program will be resubmitted to the new Congress convening in January.
"We know that the American people will not long be denied access to adequate medical facilities," he said. "The program for voluntary health insurance is one further step in achieving this objective in the American way."

UNDER THE program the government would underwrite up to 75 per cent of the losses suffered by private and nonprofit insurance firms as a result of voluntary expansion of their health and medical programs.
Eisenhower, speaking to the nation by television and radio, touched obliquely on a hot campaign issue, handling of the subversive problem, in a talk tabbed "non-political" by the White House.
The President devoted much of his address to praise of the late Al Smith, who was a New York governor and 1928 Democratic presidential nominee.
He said "Smith would have supported and applauded, if alive in 1954, every one of the laws of the recent Congress to make more certain the discovery of subversives, to speed their removal from influential positions, and to mete out to them legal punishment."

The President will pick up the political trail again tomorrow at an outdoor luncheon at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm to promote the candidacies of Pennsylvania Republicans seeking office.
Yesterday Eisenhower spent much of the day plugging in and out of a GOP victory.
Moving to help out in a hard-fought New Jersey contest, he authorized a statement that he "has not changed one iota" in his earlier endorsements of former Rep. Clifford P. Case, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate.

THE two elephants were a late addition to the parade, and a sensational surprise indeed. Tom Bennett, riding one of the jumbos, tried in vain to coax the animal to wrap his trunk around a cigar held by a bystander.
One of the most impressive floats in the smaller class was the "Raising the Flag on Iwo" feature sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Parade displays by the Methodist Youth, Lutheran Family Circle, St. Joseph's Catholic Church and others are doing a splendid job in weaving a serious thought through the fabric of fun which makes up most of the annual program. A tremendous amount of work might well be done.

To the lady who phoned and any others who think they will do the same: There is no use asking for the baking temperature which we "forgot" to print in the magic pumpkin pie recipe. We would like to know what it is ourselves!

Britain Warns Dock Strikers

LONDON (AP)—The government today warned Britain's 44,000 striking dock workers to return to work by Monday morning or troops will move into the waterfront.
The ultimatum was announced in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton. He said the strikers would not prejudice their position in any way by getting back on the job.
While reluctant to use troops, Monckton also made it clear the present tieup could not continue much longer. A demand by dock workers for the right to reject overtime work touched off the strike.

Ohioan Gets Virgin Island Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Richard L. Krabach, 40-year-old Lima, Ohio, attorney and Republican leader, today was named government comptroller of the Virgin Islands.
Secretary of the Interior McKay said Krabach, who will be paid $12,500 a year, fills a new post carrying a term of 10 years. The office is under the general supervision of the secretary of the interior but is not a part of any executive department of the island government. A native of Wapakoneta, Krabach has been active in civic affairs in Lima.

Stray Sauce From The Pumpkin

The wide-eyed wonderment of 1954 Princess Shauna Humphrey and her attendants brought big smiles all along the line of march as the Lodge and Musical Parade furnished one of the top attractions Thursday night. A penny for your thoughts, beautiful ladies!

Former Police Chief Bill McCrady, who can remember many a Pumpkin Show and many of the city's eventful times, rode in one of the city police cruisers at the head of the Thursday night procession.
Side glances as the front of the parade came around the turn at Pinckney and Court; Pickaway County Sheriff Charlie Radcliff offering a ride to a man with flat feet. . . State Patrolman Gene Miller, off duty among the spectators, eating peanuts like nobody's business. . . squealing passengers being dumped upside down in that wild version of the ferris wheel. . . and a man biting on one end of a long hot-dog while the mustard dripped out the other. . .

Nobody got a bigger kick out of the night's fun than Mayor M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner of Columbus. He and Cincinnati's Mayor Bob Hedges flanked the hero of the evening, "Mr. Pumpkin Show himself" Colville, in one of the parade's first cars.

The two elephants were a late addition to the parade, and a sensational surprise indeed. Tom Bennett, riding one of the jumbos, tried in vain to coax the animal to wrap his trunk around a cigar held by a bystander.
One of the most impressive floats in the smaller class was the "Raising the Flag on Iwo" feature sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Colville Says Crowd Saturday Night May Mean All-Time High

Cincinnati's 48th annual Pumpkin Show boomed past its half-way point Friday, reaching for an all-time attendance record and getting itself set for a glorious jam on Saturday night.
Good prospects for a new attendance figure were disclosed by Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show" and official keeper of the festival's books. He bases his estimates on personal observation, he explained, and on the story told by the show's financial ledgers.
Colville, who estimated 60,000 people pushed their way through the downtown streets Thursday, said: "If this keeps up, we might really break the record. Right now we're in very good position to top last year's turnout."

"THE REASON? Well, offhand I don't know. But I guess it's because we have more concessions, more enthusiasm, and more things to look at this year."
"Mr. Pumpkin Show" had estimated earlier that approximately 15,000 attended the show Wednesday, the traditionally "slow" opening day. One of several ways he uses to measure the attendance by personal observation, Colville said, is by spot-checking the business being done by the "rides."
"They're a good way to help figure it," he said, "because you can usually tell when a ride should have a waiting line and when it shouldn't. And the size of the waiting line means a lot, too."

Colville issued his glad news on the 1954 show after being honored Thursday night for his long service in behalf of the celebration. It was "Bob Colville Night," and the high mark of this year's event—although many top attractions remain.

The show will close Saturday midnight.
Among highlights still remaining are:
Parades, the baton twirling contest, competition by the pumpkin pie eaters and hog callers, and the

3 Yank Doctors Share Nobel Prize
BOSTON (AP)—Three American doctors today shared the Nobel Prize for Medicine in recognition for research which may make possible mass polio vaccination.
Dr. John F. Enders, 57, of the Harvard Medical School was leader of the three-man research team which included Dr. Thomas H. Weller, 39, of the Harvard School of Public Health and Dr. Frederick C. The trio made possible the test tube development of polio virus in ordinary body tissues and opened the way to the Salk method of preparing polio vaccine.

Doubling Of U.S. Production Seen

COLUMBUS (AP)—American production of goods and services could double in the next 20 years, Battelle Institute President Clyde Williams said yesterday.
Williams said Ohio may reasonably expect more than a proportionate share of the increase.
Williams said basic industries centered in Ohio plus its position in respect to raw materials and markets make it a logical area of location of new enterprises.
"If the country maintains its present research effort, and if business is given full freedom to move ahead," he said, "a 97 per cent increase in gross national product is feasible by 1975."

Filipino Huk Lose In Skirmish

MANILA (AP)—Sixteen Huk Rebels and four soldiers were killed yesterday in a flareup of the Philippines' Communist-led rebellion.
The Philippine army reported a patrol was ambushed near Sampaloc, in Quezon province southeast of Manila. It was the bloodiest incident in the resistance fighting since mid-1953.
The sudden attack punctured earlier government claims that the rebellion had ended.

Hope For Lost Dakota Lad Fades

POWERS LAKE, N. D. (AP)—A dwindling band of searchers today continued hunting for a 4-year-old boy who Sunday wandered away from his farm home in the vast, rough prairies of northwestern North Dakota.

As the hours dragged on, hope that LaVern Enget is still alive gradually faded. The child has not been seen since he left the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Obert Enget. Apparently the boy tagged after his father when Enget went after the cows in a pasture. Search pilots were convinced the boy must have halted somewhere. They felt certain they would have spotted the lad if he were still walking.

Another Puerto Rican Red Nabbed

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP)—Ramon Mirabal Carrion, 41, secretary general of the Puerto Rican Communist party, was nabbed by the FBI yesterday near the bridge between the U. S. and Mexico.

It was not clear whether the Puerto Rican was attempting to enter or leave the United States. FBI agents said his arrest tied in with the seizure of 10 other leading members of the Puerto Rican Reds. He was charged with conspiring to advocate overthrowing of the U. S. government by force.

Wooing Of Voters In Ohio Increased By GOP And Dems

COLUMBUS (AP)—As the Nov. 2 election nears, Republicans and Democrats rallied for a final wooing of the Ohio vote.

The Republicans are offering some national officials, while Democrats are showing a little more of hardy, four-time Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The GOP announced this late campaign schedule: Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse will tour Northern Ohio today and Saturday; Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield will dedicate Mansfield's postoffice Oct. 28, the same day Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont will visit Southern Ohio.

Last night, Sen. John W. Bricker of Ohio chose a Republican rally in Canton for an all-out endorsement of James A. Rhodes for governor. Lausche, opposing Rhodes for a fifth time, has stepped up his campaign pace after a quiet, almost reticent beginning. The governor appeared on a television and radio broadcast last night in Cleveland.

He is scheduled to visit Ashland and Medina today, and participate later at Akron University in greetings for President William V. S. Tuhman of Liberia.

Tomorrow night Lausche will attend the annual Circleville Pumpkin Show and will dedicate a highway garage Sunday in Guernsey County. He returns to Columbus later Sunday for the 100th anniversary of the Mannerchor Society.

Undersecretary Morse will visit Van Wert tomorrow, speak at the Paulding County courthouse and in Sherwood and Bryan. After a tour

Outlook Dim For Signing Of Western Pact

Paris Premier Demands Assurances On Control Of Vital Saar Basin

PARIS (AP)—With the threat of complete failure of French-German talks on the Saar overshadowing their decision, the 14 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today invited West Germany to join their alliance.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France joined in the invitation. Earlier he declared he will not sign any agreements reached here this week unless he gets a satisfactory settlement of the Saar Basin dispute.

As the NATO council voted, French and West German negotiations were deadlocked. Mendes-France said his statement on the Saar had the full backing of his cabinet.

His statement, in effect, set a 24-hour deadline for France and West Germany to come to terms over the future status of the tiny frontier area, which is wealthy in coal and steel.

Plans had been made for the signing tomorrow afternoon of accords to restore West German sovereignty and enlist the Germans as a full partner in the Western defense system.

The French premier already has made it plain he will not submit these accords for the new Western European Union to the French Parliament unless there is a Saar settlement.

AS MENDES-France emerged from the cabinet meeting, West Germany's government and opposition leaders agreed on a joint position on the Saar, reaffirming German demands which the French thus far have rejected.

The French cabinet scheduled another session tomorrow to hear reports from Mendes-France on the continued Saar negotiations he is to have with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The premier said the West Germans had confronted France with "a new set of conditions" for a Saar settlement which he could not approve. This apparently was a reference to the bipartisan German statement handed to the Western Big Three high commissioners earlier in the day.

German sources said the Saar negotiations are deadlocked despite a lengthy meeting between deputies of the chancellor and for the premier late last night.

Before the premier left the cabinet session, a government spokesman said the German position had "stiffened" much beyond what had been feared. He said that if Mendes-France signed other agreements without getting a settlement of the Saar issue, it is "evident" that the National Assembly might refuse to ratify them.

Adenauer met for more than an hour today with Socialist party chairman Erich Ollenhauer to frame the German bipartisan approach on the Saar. Their demands were reported to include political freedom for pro-German parties in the Saar, closer economic relations with Saarlanders and French recognition that the Saar regime is only a provisional one subject to review in a final German peace treaty.

Pumpkin Farm Exhibit Winner Of Window Trimming Contest

An exhibit of a pumpkin farm, made by Pickaway Township School, won first prize in the window trimming contest.

The display appears in the window of the J. C. Penney store on W. Main St. Top honors carry a prize of $50.

Second prize of $35 was awarded to the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., 1953 winners. The power firm displayed two windows, one of which celebrated the Diamond Jubilee of Lights.

Rothman's Department store won third prize, $25. The display showed the store's growth since 1910 and other improvements, such as in roads.

THE FARM LAYOUT, complete with house, barn and fence, shows a very well planned farm. A sign on the road tells that Circleville is nearby.

Fourth prize of $15 went to Mil-

liron's Barber Shop. Fifth place, carrying a $10 award, went to Cub Scouts Pack 52 for their display in the Kochheiser Hardware window.

Girl Scout Troop 24 took sixth place money, $7.50. It was displayed in the B. F. Goodrich store. The Welcome Wagon exhibit in the Barnhill Dry Cleaning company window won $5 for seventh place.

Walnut Township Future Farmers of America took eighth place, $2.50, for their display in the window of Mac's Goodyear store.

Frank Sosa, director of the window trimming committee, stated cards would be put in each of the above windows noting the position in which they placed.

Judges for the Wednesday night contest were: William Lucas, of the F & R Lazarus Co. in Columbus and F. S. Benson, general manager of the Hickie Co. in Lancaster.

2 Breakins Reported Thursday In County Area Near Circleville

Two breakins in the county area near Circleville were reported Thursday night to the sheriff's department here.

I. N. McFarland, who lives at the intersection of Routes 56 and 104, told Deputy Dwight Radcliff that a fully loaded six-shot 12-gauge shotgun was missing from his house.

Later in the evening, Paul Fleming, of Circleville Route 3, reported a ladies' wrist watch taken from his home, located on Florence Chapel Pike at Goosepond Pike.

McFarland had returned to his house at 7 p. m. His dog was "creaking quite a racket barking". After quieting the dog, McFarland entered his house.

HE WATCHED TELEVISION for a few hours and then prepared to retire. It was then that he found the front door open. A window in the storm door was broken.

Apparently, the intruder attempted to force the front door by breaking the window and reaching in to open the door. However, the door was bolted from the inside.

Actual entry was made through a second story window. Escape was probably made through the same route.

Only one drawer in a bedroom was ransacked which has led deputies to believe the intruder may have been interrupted unknowingly by McFarland.

The Flemings had returned home from the Pumpkin Show at approximately 10 p. m. According to a report by Deputy Carl Radcliff, a bathroom window was found open.

HOWEVER, Deputy Radcliff pointed out that money, which was lying on a kitchen table, was not touched.

In this instance also, deputies indicate that the intruder may have been in the house when the Flemings arrived. The Flemings had a complete view of all other exits from the house—with the exception of the bathroom window, the deputy explained.

A mobile criminal investigation unit from London, in town for exhibition during the Pumpkin Show, is checking for possible fingerprints.

Pumpkin Show Does Not Slow Circleville's City Court Tempo

Pumpkin Show activities has not slackened the tempo at Municipal Court. The following cases were among those tried:

James E. Carey, 56, of Chillicothe; $25 and costs for disturbing the peace; arrested by State Patrolman R. L. Porter.

Glen Huggins, 27, of Lancaster; $15 and costs for speeding at 65; arrested by State Patrolman R. C. Wilson.

Jim Anderson, 21, of Columbus; $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; arrested by State Patrolman Kyle Reed.

Robert E. Miller, 28, of Dayton; $30 and costs for speeding at 80; arrested by State Patrolman W. A. Egerton.

Ernest T. Fugate, 45, of Columbus; $20 and costs for speeding at 70; arrested by State Patrolman R. E. Brandon.

James R. McDonald, 27, of Cincinnati; $25 and costs for speeding at 75; arrested by State Patrolman J. F. Duncan.

David H. Longmire, 20, of Andersonville, Tenn.; $15 and costs for speeding at 65; arrested by Duncan.

Roger W. Gheen, 18, of Grove City; $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; arrested by State Patrolman Gene Miller.

Arthur Gibson, 20, of Columbus; $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; arrested by Miller.

Green Hall, 47, of Columbus; $100 and costs, three days in jail and a six month's license suspension for drunk driving; arrested by Miller.

Theodore Tilton, 24, of Kingston; $15 and costs for speeding 50 in a 35 miles per hour zone; arrested by Officer Ludwell Mills.

Robert L. Laessle, 20, of Chillicothe; $100 and costs, three days in jail and a six month's license suspension for drunk driving; arrested by Mills.

Bandit, 19, Shot

HAMILTON (AP)—Kenneth Hensley, 19, of New Miami, was shot in the groin this morning while attempting to rob the American Sanitary Laundry. Nightwatchman David Adams, who wounded Hensley, said he shot at another man, who escaped.

Before the Roman Colosseum was built, the site was an artificial lake on the estate of the Emperor Nero.

Sensenbrenner Replies To Rap By Prosecutor

The mayor of Columbus said Thursday night he wanted to set "a few of the facts straight" in a controversy launched by Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer over Circleville's comic books.

Ammer recently criticized the Columbus mayor, M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, after the latter was quoted as saying the fake "comic book" menace had yet to be cleared up in this city. Sensenbrenner is a native of Circleville.

Ammer demanded to know on what basis the reported assertion was made.

Sensenbrenner, however, declared here Thursday night that he had never made the statement attributed to him by a Columbus newspaper. He sharply denounced the newspaper.

"I DON'T know what Circleville is doing about the comic book situation," the Columbus mayor said. "I hope you are handling the problem here in fine shape."

"I have never made a survey here, and consequently don't know what the situation is in Circleville. I never made the statement upon which Ammer based his criticism. As a matter of fact, his action greatly surprised me. I don't quite understand it."

Sensenbrenner made it clear at the same time that he will push for a Columbus ordinance to supplement the state statute against the sale and distribution of harmful literature.

The present state law, he reiterated, is not doing an efficient job in the larger cities when it comes to checking the fake "comics."

Amateur Exhibitor Gets Valuable Tips How To Improve

Tips on how amateur exhibitors can improve their vegetable displays were given by the Rev. S. C. Elsea, chairman of the committee for the Pumpkin Show.

"We find that exhibitors have a lack of knowledge on how to prepare their displays," the Rev. Mr. Elsea remarked. "Care should be taken in selecting each item as nearly alike in size, shape and color."

He added that the most perfectly matched and uniform display usually is judged the best. Largeness is not considered unless being judged on size alone.

"Our exhibits were bigger a d better than last year," the Rev. Mr. Elsea declared. "There were 62 different entries in the vegetable department with 438 exhibits. Premiums totalled $228."

"IN THE FRUIT division, we had 18 entries with 82 exhibits. Premiums amounting to $39 were paid out."

Largest entries were made by: Fred Fee Sons, of Stoutsville; Walter Fee, of Stoutsville; Bowers Fruit Farm, of Laurelville; and the Laurelville Fruit Co.

Silent Film Star Labeled Deserter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The husband of silent film star Leatrice Joy obtained a divorce yesterday. Arthur K. Westmark, aircraft engineer, testified she left for New York in 1950 for a television role and never came back.

Westmark, 60, obtained the decree on desertion grounds set forth in his cross complaint. She had filed a divorce suit but left for New York before the trial came up.

The couple married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1946. She formerly was married to the late actor John Gilbert.

11 Persons Picked So Far For Sheppard Murder Jury

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 40-year-old mail carrier, Gerald L. Liederbach, was tentatively seated today as the 11th juror for the first-degree murder trial of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, 30.

He brought the count to five men and six housewives and the list of prospective jurors still to be examined is dominated by women.

Defense Attorney Fred Garmore is on his mail route. Four consecutive housewives had been given positions in the jury box before today's session.

John J. Mahon, assistant prosecutor, questioned Liederbach as to whether the fact Garmore was on his route would have any influence on him. The mail carrier said he knew Garmore's wife but was not personally acquainted with the attorney.

As today's session got underway the defendant's father, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, greeted him in the courtroom with an affectionate pat and then took a seat at the back of the room.

The young osteopath is accused by the state of clubbing his pretty young wife to death in their B. village home. She was four months pregnant when she was killed July 4. The prosecution identifies the "other woman" in the case as Susan Hayes, a pretty young laboratory technician.

The state is expected to start presenting evidence some time next week.

All of the jurors are subject to peremptory challenges, which remove them automatically from the jury box. The state can use as many as six of these challenges and the defense the same.

For the juror picked as an alternate, each side has two peremptory challenges.

Questioning of the prospective jurors has indicated that sex and circumstantial evidence will play big roles in the trial.

Defense Attorney William Corrigan and Fred W. Garmore have hammered away with questions on whether the jurors would be prejudiced against Sheppard because of his purported romance with Miss Hayes. The prosecution has stressed that Ohio law permits a first-degree murder conviction and a death sentence on only circumstantial evidence.

CORRIGAN AND Asst. Prosecutor Thomas Parrino turned to talk of sun and snow yesterday in the efforts to make sure the jurors knew the meaning of circumstantial evidence.

Corrigan called attention to ray of light coming in the courtroom window and observed that "even though you don't see it, you know from the light that the sun is outside."

Parrino explained: "You see snow on the sidewalk on the lawn. You didn't see snow, but you know from what you have seen that snow has fallen. That's circumstantial evidence."

TV Starts Rumor Ted Coming Here

An apparently false report that Ted Lewis planned to attend this year's Pumpkin Show caused no end of hurry and talk—and wasted time—in this city Friday.

Early morning television viewers said it was definitely announced by a TV newscaster that the famed maestro, Circleville's best known native son, was "flying in to Columbus" sometime Friday. And that he was expected here later in the day.

The report was without foundation came from Ben Gordon, one of the Pumpkin Show mainstays and close personal friend of Lewis. "It's the first I've heard of it," Gordon said.

If Ted Lewis is coming to Circleville for the Pumpkin Show, it had yet to be officially announced.

Barkley-Cooper Race For Senate Seat Seen Pitting Favorite Sons

By DON WHITEHEAD
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The people of this mint julep and blue grass country are approaching the difficult political choice of having to send only one of two favorite sons to the U. S. Senate.

The decision must be made on Nov. 2 between Democratic former vice president Alben W. Barkley, 76, and Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, 53. No matter which one wins, there's going to be considerable sadness that the other had to lose.

Barkley and Cooper are the Kentucky strong men of their parties with big personal followings. Their collision dramatizes the full force of the struggle for control of Congress, and for control of Kentucky politics.

Democratic chiefs called Barkley out of political retirement as the only man who could recapture the Senate seat which Cooper won two years ago after the death of Democratic Sen. Virgil Chapman.

They are counting on Barkley's enormous personal popularity plus a voter swing-back to the Democrats to turn the trick and put their party in a stronger position for the state elections next year. At this point there is general agreement the odds are in favor of Barkley winning.

But Cooper is making a strong race and there are some—even a few Democrats—who say he may pull the biggest surprise of the entire national campaign.

Here are some of the factors on both sides:
Barkley's name is known to practically every adult in Kentucky—and he's running in a state that normally is Democratic.

The voters from 1913 to 1925 sent him regularly to represent them in Congress and from 1927 to 1948 they kept him in the Senate. Then in 1948 they voted for him as vice president.

Over the years, Barkley became a political legend in Kentucky and he was considered invincible at the polls. He won his first Senate race by a 30,000 majority and after that his majorities always ran well over the 100,000 mark.

Unemployment, particularly in the coal fields, would appear to be a factor working in Barkley's favor. Another would be the fact that about 70 per cent of the county offices in Kentucky are controlled by Democrats, in addition to the state government.

On the other side, Cooper has proved he has a great deal of appeal to the voters. He won a short-term Senate seat in 1946 when former Democratic Sen. A. B. "Happy" Chandler resigned to become commissioner of baseball.

Cooper was nosed out by Virgil Chapman in 1948, but he came back two years ago to capture the seat vacated by Chapman's death, although President Eisenhower lost Kentucky to Adlai Stevenson by 700 votes. Meanwhile, he served as a U. S. delegate in the United Nations.

As a Senator, Cooper didn't achieve the national position of Barkley, but he did make a record which even Democrats say made friends for him.

Cooper's age is in his favor, too. Even a casual visitor to Kentucky soon finds that Barkley's 76 years have become a beneath-the-surface issue which could have a strong influence on the outcome of the race.

For spectator interest, the Barkley-Cooper race has been a gentlemanly and rather staid affair with neither candidate whooping it up into a name-calling contest. For the most part, they've stuck to issues.

Barkley has centered his attacks on the Republican administration and its record during the past two years—comparing it with what he calls more prosperous years under Democratic leadership. He assails the administration as representing the privileged few and not the masses of people—although he doesn't include Eisenhower himself in the indictments.

Cooper has hit hard on the theme that the nation is at peace because of Eisenhower's leadership and

The 1954 Pumpkin Show's Amateur Photography Contest, listed for the Armory, has been cancelled.

Leaders in the planning disclosed late Thursday that last-minute efforts to carry through arrangements made for this year proved unsuccessful.

They said new and more elaborate plans, "with a number of important changes", were already being discussed for next year's festival.

1954 Winter Eats Outlook Labeled Good

Prices Reasonably Low, Supplies Plentiful, Surveys Indicate

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The outlook for eating this coming winter is pretty good today.

Prices of most foodstuffs are down—at the farm level—to about where they were before the start of the Korean War sent them scampering upward. Large surpluses of many of the primary foodstuffs tend to keep them stable.

The chief upward pressure on food prices at the grocery level comes from the creeping rise in costs of preparation and distribution.

Drought or disease or tropical hurricanes have cut some crops in some sections—but shortages exist in very few commodities. Storms hurt the apple crop in the East. Rains cut into the onion crop in the Southwest and on the West Coast. Unseasonable hot weather took a toll of lettuce in California.

But the story in general is one of plenty. And when a major crop has been cut this year by weather or governmental planting restrictions, there is usually a sizable hold-over from previous years on which to fall back.

Another round in coffee price cutting started this week on the Pacific Coast and spread to the East. The turkey crop in this country is close to the record set in 1952, while wholesale prices are reported the lowest in 12 years, offering consumers something to be thankful for come Thanksgiving. Poultry prices are down and so are eggs, although chicken farmers are expecting the price to stiffen with the moulting season.

Meat supplies are abundant this fall. Bargains are advertised every week by the butchers.

All this is pleasant for the consumer. For the farmer it's something else again.

Prices of farm products climbed steeply after the Korean War started in June of 1950. They reached a peak in early spring of 1951. Since then they have slipped back 21 per cent.

This has come about in spite of government price support programs and is due largely to bumper crops which produced more than the American public consumes.

Household Workers Can Benefit Under New Social Security Rule

Following is another in a series of articles dealing with the new amendments to the Social Security Act. The information is prepared by the agent assigned to handle social security claims from Pickaway County.

By ROSE C. FORQUER
Social Security Field Representative

Under the 1954 amendments, the social security program has grown upward in benefits and outward in extending the range of old-age and survivors insurance protection to millions more.

I have tried to picture the vertical and horizontal growth in this series, as well as the effect that it will have on you. Now let me tell you how the new law will affect a friend of mine. . . . we'll call him Bill, and his wife, Marge. You may know of similar cases.

For many years, Annie, their part-time maid has been like one of their family. Every Friday—bright and early—she comes to help Marge with the housework.

They've become somewhat dependent upon her. And I tease Bill about those extra pounds he's been putting on over the years. He says it's because of his fondness for those beautiful cakes and pies that Annie always finds time to make before she leaves.

I ALSO SAMPLED some of Annie's cooking on a recent evening when Marge invited me to dinner. It was during that dinner the discussion got around to Annie.

Marge related this story: Just before Annie had left that day, she had said to Marge, "I suppose I won't be working for you folks much longer. You people are the only family I've worked for in the last five years."

Annie, who is in her late fifties, continued, "In a way I wish that

I had worked more steadily since 1951. Then, when I couldn't work any more, I'd have those social security checks coming in. But with my husband sick, I can't get away from the house more than one day every week.

"I've never been able to meet that social security test. You know, the one where you are earning social security if you work for the same employer on two days a week and get $50 or more in cash wages during a three-month period."

Marge observed, "I think Annie's a little concerned about meeting her living expenses when she quits work in a few years. What we pay her for a day's work means a lot to her. It's a shame that Annie and others like her, who work only occasionally can't begin earning their social security."

"Now just a minute, Marge," I interrupted. "Under the 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act, Annie's going to start next year building for her future financial protection. The new law makes this possible for Annie and for practically all private household workers, even those who work only occasionally."

FOR YOU SEE, the test of 24 days in three calendar months, or as Annie mentioned, the two-day-a-week test, has been done away with. Beginning Jan. 1, 1955, the only requirement is that Annie be paid $50 in a three-month calendar period, and she will easily meet that requirement.

The three-month periods are those beginning on January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1.

"And you, Marge," I added, "are going to help Annie earn that future protection. You will deduct two percent from Annie's cash wages and, at the end of every three-month period, you'll send that social security tax contribution and

"Vote For Fire Engine" signs are beginning to appear around town, reminding the public that approval of the fire levy is just as vital to the community as the highly important school bond issue. Tentative plans have been made to have "Old Sitting Bull," the city's 25-year old pumper, chug along in all its red glory during the Friday night parade.

The ceremony in tribute to Bob Colville at Court and Main was opened by Mayor Hedges, who introduced "the mayor of our suburb of Columbus". And Mayor Sensenbrenner, who gets more words per minute than many a public speaker, told how it felt for "a little boy to come back to the old hometown" for such a worthwhile occasion.

watch, the Columbus mayor assured him: "It can in no way show the love and appreciation held for you by the people of this community. . . . but as a token . . ."

Bob Colville explained why he declined to go into any sort of a formal speech of thanks. He remembers the Pumpkin Show that invited a vice-presidential candidate who talked for two solid hours. . . . "and spoiled the fun".

Perhaps few caught it and surely he didn't mean it, but "Mr. Pumpkin Show" finished with a "goodbye". For a moment that was, of course, because surely he is already secretly plotting something "bigger and better" for next year.

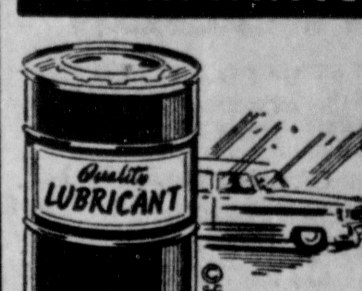

Up in the speakers' perch at Court and Main, when Bill Cook presented the mayor of Columbus with the huge pumpkin, hizzoner bounced it around in his arms so freely that it looked as though both he and Cook, and the pumpkin, were going over the side.

(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Advice to the Democrats: Keep plugging. Advice to the Republicans: Quit groaning.

These words of counsel have gone out in the closing days of the congressional election campaign from two men pretty high up in their parties—President Eisenhower for the GOP and National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell for the Democrats.

If the Eisenhower and Mitchell statements told the whole story, there would be no doubt the Republicans are in trouble and the Democrats riding high, with the election only 11 days away.

Party leaders, even presidents, don't always gauge the situation correctly, however. Besides, their campaign statements are designed for a specific purpose—in this case, to build a fire under party workers. Such statements don't necessarily reveal the speaker's private opinion of who's ahead.

The President spoke at a GOP rally in New York yesterday—a day that saw him wade much further into the thick of the campaign than he had done before. He even made a face for the politicians and the photographers, pulling down the corners of his mouth in a grimace of dejection.

And he declared the Republicans are never going to win if their leaders "are going around pulling their faces this way."

What the GOP needs, said Eisenhower, is a "fighting heart"—the kind Jack Dempsey had when, after being belted out of the ring by Louis Firpo in 1923, he came back and knocked Firpo halfway home to his native Argentina in the second round.

The President wasn't saying the Republicans are on the ropes, much less out of the ring entirely. But his picture of a glum GOP in need of more backbone was in sharp contrast to the picture Steve Mitchell was painting of the Democrats in Washington.

Mitchell said victory is "within our grasp." But the Democrats can still boot the election, he said, by relaxing too soon.

"I am deeply disturbed," he went on, "by reports of voter apathy and Democratic complacency. The two together could spell victory for the Republicans."

This is something new for the Democrats. They haven't been troubled by overconfidence since the first two Franklin D. Roosevelt terms. The Republicans seemed to have established a monopoly in overconfidence in 1948—to their bitter regret, since the Democrats beat them.

It wasn't just happenstance, by the way, that Eisenhower picked New York as the place to start campaigning in earnest. That's a state both parties are determined to capture—not only for its stake in this election, but because of 1956 presidential politics too.

On the face of it, the Democrats have more to gain—a governorship. They'd like to put their candidate, Averell Harriman, in the seat long held by the GOP's Thomas E. Dewey. If they do, Harriman will be a big man—and quite possibly a presidential contender—in the next Democratic National Convention.

On the other hand the GOP candidate for governor, Sen. Irving M. Ives, can keep his Senate seat if he loses. If he wins he can, and undoubtedly would, name another Eisenhower Republican to succeed him in the Senate.

But here is a Republican worry: What happens to its now-powerful New York state organization? Dewey, who has led it in the past, has in effect turned over the reins to Ives. What happens if Ives drops them? Could the Dewey element keep control of the block-busting 96 votes New York will cast in the Republican National Convention of 1956?

Drunk Condemned For Aiding Drunk

DETROIT (AP)—Virginia Thompson testified yesterday she took the car keys away from her companion because he was much too drunk to drive.

"That," said Traffic Judge John D. Watts, "was very commendable, but you should have given the keys to a third person."

Then the judge ordered Miss Thompson to sit all day in his court for seven days—for driving while drunk herself. Police had testified she drove across a street corner sidewalk and hit a parked car.

A-Power Plants Not Explosive

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP)—If you happen to live near an atomic power plant, there's no need to feel uneasy, a scientist said today. They can't blow up like an atomic bomb.

In fact, said Harold W. Huntley, an engineer with General Electric Co.'s Atomic Products Division, nuclear reactors for production of peacetime power can be designed so they are as safe as conventional power plants.

He spoke at a meeting of the American Society of Engineers.

U. S., BRITISH ADMIRALS WARILY EYEING RAPID EXPANSION OF SOVIET SEA POWER

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Soviet sea power is coming so fast that it gives both British and American navy men the jitters.

According to their calculations, it will be firmly entrenched in second place among the powers in two or three years, having ousted Britain from the runnerup spot to the United States. In 10 years, at the present rate, it will be challenging Uncle Sam.

Ten years ago Russia ranked a mediocre seventh. In the spring of 1953 it was in third place breathing hot down the necks of the British fleet with a fleet still lacking in aircraft carriers but believed to consist of 14 cruisers, 84 destroyers, and 360 submarines.

Then things seemed pretty much askew among the Soviet sailors. Their pride was a battleship, the Sovetski Soyuz, which had been laid down in 1939 and not completed until 1950.

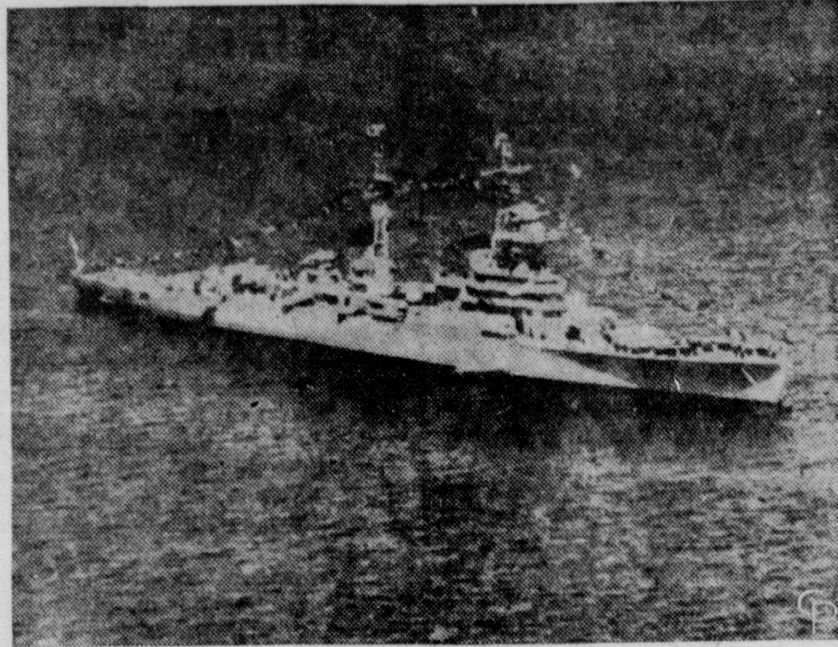

The authoritative guide to the world's war craft, Janet's Fighting Ships, ranked it as the only first class vessel in the navy. There were reports that former German aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin had failed and the keel of the 40,000-ton ship laid down after the war was being scrapped.

IT ALSO leaked out that several Soviet naval engineers had been purged for failure to engineer a successful battleship program. When a few ships that had been loaned by the United States were grudgingly returned by Russia, they were found to be hardly shipshape and no tribute to Soviet seamanship.

Now the picture apparently has changed abruptly. Russia is believed to have been spending $35 billion on a big navy since 1945. Fourteen new cruisers have been added since the end of World War II, and the building time has been cut to about two and a half years. The 15,000-ton Sverdlov is rated as tops among cruisers.

The undersize fleet which always has impressed western strategists as the most potent Soviet bid, now is believed to total 400 subs, about 40 per cent of which are the latest type capable of a radius of 20,000 miles and speeds rivaling that of the new United States atomic sub.

Surmising that Russia would aim at severing the Atlantic life-

lines connecting western Europe with America, Anglo-American strategists rate the submarine menace as very great, particularly considering that ex-German technicians are playing a big part in the build-up.

It is not clear yet that Russia has supplanted Britain as second ranking power on the seas, but its naval manpower of 750,000 probably does that.

In addition, the Soviet sailors have been sprucing up. Part of the fleet stopped last summer at Helsinki for a call on the Finns who have held it in contempt ever since in the two short wars with Finland it could not even enforce an effective blockade on its tiny neighbor.

TO THE AMAZEMENT of the maritime Finns, the flotilla was sharp throughout. All the sloppiness noted in the United States exchange ships was gone.

Late last summer a Soviet task force of three cruisers and 12 destroyers cut quite a figure cruising down the Norwegian coast. These are ominous signs to navy men who have noted how quickly Russia came up with atomic devices after the war, and how her athletes now are challenging for dominance in the Olympic games to be held in 1956.

They predict that in two to three years the Soviet navy will consist of 30 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 500 submarines, 500 motor torpedo boats, 1,000 minesweepers, 300 escort vessels and 4,000 naval aircraft including the latest jet types. It has shipyards capable of building seven carriers.

As a result, American admirals have warmed up 50 more ships to bring the fleet to 1,130 craft of all types in active commission. There are more than 2,000 in the mothball fleet.

HERALDING the fact that Congress inevitably will have requests for a big naval budget when it reconvenes, the admirals are warning that the United States must not let its fleet go to seed as it did the famous "great white fleet" that Theodore Roosevelt sent around the world after the Spanish-American war.

The current budget calls for spending a billion dollars for 30 new ships, and the Navy may ask for a three-billion a year budget over ten years. Its experts point out that most of the American ships slid down the ways in 1943-44, and their useful life may be pegged at 15-20 years.

There will be skeptics here who contend that our maritime allies will help offset Soviet gains. Britain has concentrated its power around 27 carriers, and has 11 in active commission with five building. Canada is building 87 new craft, including a carrier.

All hands are likely to agree, however, that the Soviet navy is becoming something to conjure with.

Commie Warships Seen In Pacific

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—Communist warships have been contacted in the Pacific, the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet says. Adm. Felix B. Stump declared that none of the Communist warships or submarines has acted in a hostile manner. He did not identify the Communist craft but he obviously referred to Russia. He indicated the Communist vessels were unaware that they had been seen, thus suggesting the contacts were made by U. S. submarines.

ONE OF the big Communist transshipment points is Gdynia, Poland. From there Western goods go by rail to Peiping via the Trans-Siberian Railway, or are carried into Chinese ports by Red ships able to evade the Chinese Nationalist naval blockade.

Several shipments of strategic items from the West were recently held up at Gdynia by a transport bottleneck, according to information reaching Western diplomats.

The strategic ban on Red China, imposed by the United Nations during the Korean War, has always been tougher than the cold war embargo on Soviet Europe.

With tensions easing in Europe the West relaxed embargoes for the Soviet bloc last August, cutting the number of prohibited items from 250 to about 170.

But the Far East situation remained potentially explosive and similar action on the Red China lists was deferred.

Western European businessmen are urging their governments to let the Chinese Reds buy what European Reds can buy.

Collapse Of 25 Years Ago Not Likely To Happen Again, Belief

NEW YORK (AP)—Twenty-five years ago the "era of wonderful nonsense" ended in a sickening thud at the corner of Broad and Wall Streets.

The bull market which started hesitantly in 1923 and gathered the speed and force of Hurricane Hazel in 1929, crashed in an October panic on the stock exchange. The symbols of those days of ruin became men jumping out of windows and blondes losing their Park Avenue apartments.

Will it happen again? Most unlikely, say the experts because of far different conditions today.

The quarter-century anniversary of the collapse which changed the economy, social structure and living habits of America finds the majority today confident that the present bull market shows few signs of growing into something like the dizzy doings of 25 years ago.

Stock prices have been pointing higher most of the time since 1949 and have taken their steepest climb in the last 12 months, while general business activity was tending in the other direction.

But brokers point to many reasons why they think that stocks won't run away again—and eventually crack up—as they did in the 20's. Chief reason is that more than just the calendar has changed around Broad and Wall Streets, and along the nation's main streets.

Look at the changes in: The make-up and psychology of traders and investors, the trading rules, the value of the dollar, the size of the economy which stands behind the value of stocks, and the public agencies which ride herd on the market and the nation's money policies.

The shoeshine boys and song-and-dance men who rode the 1929 frenzy—mostly on paper-thin margins and borrowed money—aren't playing the big board today.

Professionals who formed pools to run up stock prices for unloaders on other groups—like chain letters—aren't allowed to operate today.

Most of the big buying this year has been for investment, institutional of industrial pension accounts.

America's traditional flair for seeking a fast buck has largely centered in a fling in penny Canadian stocks or uranium wildcatting.

A five-million share day on the New York Stock Exchange was considered normal in 1929 when everyone was buying—often without knowing just what he was buying. Brokers are content now with a two-million share day and often get less.

Government agencies now police the issuance of stock. In 1929 new issues poured out in huge volume, much of it never listed on the exchange.

Once you had to put very little cash—brokers carried most of the stock's price on margin. Now you must put up 50 per cent in cash, and brokers say most of their business is for all cash.

The dollar's purchasing power is about half what it was 25 years ago—so that today's stock price, while it may seem as high as in the 20's, actually isn't, compared to prices of other things.

The total number of stocks outstanding now is much higher than 25 years ago. Many of them rarely come out of the investors' bank boxes.

And the total both of industrial output and of corporate assets—which stocks represent in the market place and which backs up their value—has doubled in the last 25 years.

Still, there are some interesting points of similarity in this bull market and the one in the 20's before it took its last mad spurt in 1929. This time, however, the experts feel sure the situation won't develop into a speculative boom as it did in the late '20s.

Some of the similarities are: An easy money policy in the mid-20's led to more money around than there were places to invest it. A housing boom as on. A lot of people thought that the pent-up civilian demands from World War I hadn't been filled yet. Science was busy applying what it learned in that war to mechanizing industry and filling American homes with gadgets new and wonderful in those days. And the conviction that the long-term trend of the economy was upward was as pronounced then as now.

The differences are many, however, and appear to outweigh the similarities.

Oppenheimer Gets Achievement Award

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer has received the Pyramid Club of Philadelphia's achievement award for "unfailing devotion of his own great gifts to the end of increasing man's knowledge."

Oppenheimer, head of the Institute for Advanced Science at Princeton, N. J. and credited with playing a major role in developing the atomic bomb, received the award last night. He said it reaffirms "that spirit of human brotherhood that is the hope of today's world."

Dr. Albert Einstein commended the club for honoring his colleague "in recognition of his exemplary conduct as a citizen of his country."

Earlier this year the Atomic Energy Commission ruled that Oppenheimer was a loyal American but denied him security clearance

Myrtle Carter, Frank Rockwell Winners In Corn Sweepstakes

Myrtle Carter won the corn sweepstakes for any open variety at Thursday's grain judging.

Frank Rockwell won his sweepstakes trophy for the best in hybrid corn.

The Cook family again predominated the winner awards as was the case at the Pickaway County Fair. However, there was a variety of winners.

Jury To Ponder Sheriff's Case
JACKSON (AP)—The grand jury will meet a month early to consider statutory charges lodged against Sheriff David L. Trago.

Common Pleas Judge James Kinnison said the jury will meet Nov. 1 instead of Dec. 1 as originally scheduled.

Two further charges were sworn before Mayor Holland Arthur against Sheriff Trago, now in Columbus hospital, reportedly suffering exhaustion.

Dr. C. C. Fitzpatrick of Jackson said the sheriff is on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

The sheriff had pleaded innocence Tuesday to two statutory charges sworn before Mayor Arthur by the parents of two boys, 14 and 15 years of age.

Curve Is Nemesis To Buffalo Driver

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP)—Herman Eldridge, 51, of Buffalo, N.Y. wrecked his car Oct. 11 when it went off the road at a curve near here. A woman passenger was injured.

Eldridge was fined Wednesday for careless driving. Yesterday he drove to Welland in a new car to collect bail money he had put up when arrested.

Reds Using Simple Gimmick To Defeat West's Embargo

LONDON (AP)—Russia and her European satellites have opened a big hole in Western barriers against war potential exports to Communist China. They are buying strategic goods from the West and selling them to the Chinese, making a profit on the side.

American and British officials here and elsewhere know what is happening but say they can see no way of stopping it.

This is the Western gimmick the Kremlin has turned to Eastern advantage.

The United States and her allies forbid the export of certain strategic goods to both Eastern Europe and Red China. But the list of goods embargoed for Red China is far longer than the one for Europe.

Red Europe thus can buy Western goods that the Chinese cannot. They include things like genera-

Burglar Even Takes Counterfeit Bill

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)—Money is money to one Youngstown burglar, but he has a surprise coming when he tries to use a $20 bill he stole from a poultry store.

Missing from the store are two big capons, all dressed, valued at $12; $2 from the cash register; and a $20 bill which had been displayed in a glass frame on the wall plainly marked "counterfeit."

Cancer-Producing Chemical Found In Cigarette Paper

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A compound that causes cancer in mice—benzpyrene—has been found in smoke from cigarette paper, a chemist engaged in cancer research reported.

D. V. Lefemine, of the Cancer Institute at Miami, Fla., made the report at a regional meeting of the American Chemical Society. Lefemine said benzpyrene has proved in animal experiments to be one of the most powerful known cancer-producing agents. It also has been identified as a component in some studies on polluted city air.

The chemist said smoke and tars from burning enough paper to manufacture 80,000 cigarettes were collected in the tests. This quantity of paper, he estimated, would be the equivalent of 11 years' supply of cigarettes for the pack-a-day smoker. Lefemine said 770 gram —1.7 pounds—of total tars were collected. The tar was purified, broken down into its chemical components and identified by spectroanalysis, he explained. The chemist said this was the first scientific report of the recognition of an actual cancer-producing chemical in any form of smoking material. He pointed out that in tests elsewhere the tar from burning whole

65 Mph. Turnpike Speed Limit Eyed

COLUMBUS (AP)—The executive director of the Ohio Turnpike Commission, Robert S. Beightler, will recommend top speeds of 55 miles an hour for trucks and 65 for other vehicles using the Northern Ohio Turnpike. Beightler said he will make his recommendation at today's meeting of the commission. The National Safety Council has recommended 65 for all vehicles, and the Ohio Trucking Assn. said yesterday a proposed 70 mph limit "is too high a speed for safe truck travel."

Workers In White Collar Class Need Not Wear Shirts Of White

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest mistake the white collar class makes today is to cling to the white shirt.

The white shirt for a couple of generations has been a genteel badge of superiority in America, a stuffy emblem of stuffy respectability.

When a guy had nothing else to boast about, he could at least feel proud in his heart because he earned his living indoors and wore a white shirt. For some obscure reason this made him deal a cut above the rough-handed skilled workmen who went boisterously to their jobs in dungarees or old leather jackets.

Whatever reason existed for this feeling vanished when the skilled workmen began dragging down more take home pay than the office workers, and that has been true for some time now.

A policeman wears a blue uniform so he can be readily identifiable when you have to yell for help. But the office worker's white shirt has become a uniform to him, too, although he doesn't realize it, and really doesn't need to wear a uniform at all. It seems to me his white shirt has become a symbol of inferiority, not superiority.

For years I have been crusading against the out-of-date snobbery of the white shirt, which guins rather than people. They usually select the family clothing, and they buy papa white shirts because they are too lazy to take the trouble to dress him as well as they do themselves. Or else they fear to.

So long as mama can ape the peacock, what difference does it make if papa looks like a pallbearer? Does she really want anybody to notice him anyway?

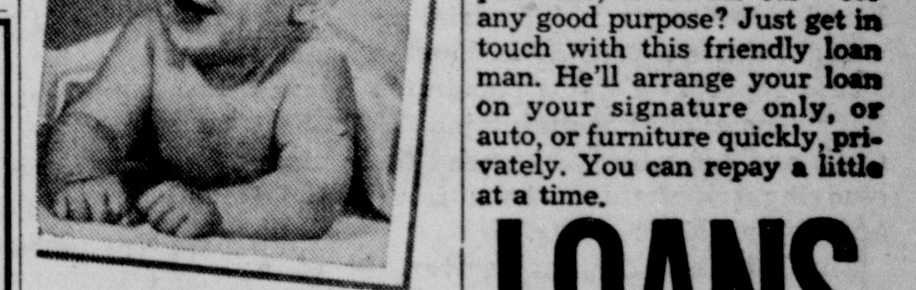

Any man looks more virile and masculine at work in colored, plaid, checked or striped shirts, and any wife who would pause and think this through would realize it.

Why not lose that dismal white collar worker look—the empty zero with its hair combed?

BONUSES FOR BABIES

MUCH HAS BEEN heard recently about the increase in world population, some of the more fearful predicting that the time is not far off when not enough food can be produced to feed the earth's inhabitants. At the same time some nations have been conducting campaigns to increase the birth rate.

Two years ago Russia boasted about the rapid increase in population in the USSR, an announcement which caused concern in capitals which must keep a wary eye on Russian military and industrial power.

Eight times a year a Washington agency issues reports on world population by nations. The agency is maintained by Robert Cook and his wife, who spend their days studying population trends from official and non-official reports.

The Russian boast, they aver, is of a type with other Russian announcements. Instead of an increase, there has been a definite reduction in the birth rate, and population is decreasing.

The story in Italy under Mussolini was identical. Canada is the latest nation to start a campaign to increase its population, offering attractive rewards by putting parents who comply on the government payroll. The Cooks report the plan will fail, as it has wherever it has been tried.

At any rate, there is no reason to fear a food shortage. In fact, the United States could feed many times its number of citizens if it were necessary to do so and science really got on the ball.

FRENCH TO BOW OUT

SEVERAL MONTHS have passed since the surrender in Indochina, thousands of square miles of real estate and hundreds of thousands of natives have been taken over by the Communists.

The French have now agreed to a proposal advanced by Washington fully a year ago, while there was still chance of holding Indochina. The plan was then for French troops to disengage gradually from the fighting while native troops were trained to replace them. French sensibilities were then too tender to condone such thinking. Now they grasp at this straw.

Hence, if all goes well, the French will start withdrawing their 10-division expeditionary force from Viet Nam, while national troops of the new republic take over. The U. S. has agreed to pay the bill from funds previously allocated for the Indochinese fighting both for the support of remaining French troops and the training of natives.

Dismemberment of Viet Nam is water under the bridge. The next crisis coming up is the free election, less than two years away, when North and South Viet Nam must decide whether to unite under Communist or free world auspices.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Lattimore Case will be with us for some time, now that it is to come to trial. It is only fair to treat this as any other matter actually before the courts, without prejudice for or against the defendant or for or against the Government Controversy should end at the threshold of a courtroom, where only a jury and judge can render a decision.

The objection of the Department of Justice to Judge Luther W. Youngdahl as the sitting judge in the Lattimore Case arises from his decision of May 2, 1953, on a motion to throw out the indictment of that expert on Far Eastern affairs.

The unusual step taken by Leo A. Rover, the U. S. Attorney in the case, supported by Herbert Brownell, Jr., Attorney General, can hardly be understood unless one has read the testimony before the Tydings Committee, the testimony before the McCarran Committee investigating the Institute of Pacific Relations, and the decision rendered by Judge Youngdahl which not only threw out four out of seven counts of the indictment but contained unusual language amounting to obiter dicta.

Judge Youngdahl said in his decision: "Defendant in the first count is charged with lying in denying that he was a sympathizer or promoter of Communist interests. It seems to the court that this charge is so nebulous and indefinite that a jury would have to indulge in speculation in order to arrive at a verdict. Sympathies and beliefs and what they mean to different individuals involve concepts that are highly nebulous and speculative at best. . ."

This language is difficult to understand. The question at issue was and is, did Owen Lattimore lie or did he tell the truth? If he told the truth, a jury could not convict him; if he lied, a jury might convict him. It is up to the Government to prove that he did lie; it is up to Lattimore to establish that the Government is wrong, that he did, in fact, not lie.

Therefore, what is here said by Judge Youngdahl gives the impression that he regards the question of lying too abstruse, too difficult for an American jury to understand. But our system of jurisprudence is based on the assumption that a man is tried by his peers who determine the issues, the judge only making sure that there is no violation of the law.

Why then is a charge "nebulous" and "indefinite" when it specifically and clearly states that what is before the court is whether a lie was or was not spoken. In millions of cases, particularly those pertaining to marital relations, "sympathies and beliefs" are always before a jury. Were there no "sympathies and beliefs," how could there be a marriage except by coercion or bargain?

The judge went further in this argument:

"... I presume a person could sympathize with a belief and yet still not believe. To probe the mind in a situation like this would give rise to nothing more than sheer speculation on the part of the prober. It is fundamental that a jury should not be asked to determine an issue which can be decided only on conjecture. . ."

A Chicago man who bought a "genuine" Da Vinci painting, said to be worth a million, for $450 may be disappointed, according to art critics, who agree that it has a nice frame.

One observer is convinced that the progress of civilization in Europe has now come to an end. And it doesn't seem to move too fast anywhere else.

Hormone Lack Can Cause Nosebleeds In Women

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PEOPLE who watch boxing matches on television are well aware that the most common cause for nosebleed is a blow on the nose. But, of course, there are other causes.

When the nosebleed results from an injury, such as picking the nose, it usually can be stopped by holding the two sides of the nose together, thus putting pressure on the bleeding vessels. If this does not work, the nose may have to be packed by a physician. Or, if the bleeding comes rapidly from a blood vessel, this may sometimes have to be cauterized to clear the trouble permanently.

Different Treatment
There is one kind of nosebleed in women, however, which requires a different treatment. One of the secretions in the body, known as estrogen, is formed by the ovaries in women. Lack of estrogen, it is believed, results in the formation of a substance which causes the blood vessels to dilate, damaging them so that bleeding occurs. Nosebleed comes from this cause, the bleeding is excessive, the pulse rate becomes rapid and the patient is agitated and fearful.

It is not recommended, of course, that estrogen be used for all nosebleeds. But when there is serious nasal bleeding, the use of this substance is given consideration, since it will cause no trouble and, if some other cause for the bleeding is discovered, the use of the estrogen will do no harm.

In the cases due to this cause, the giving of estrogen usually stops the bleeding within 20 to 30 minutes, the pulse rate slows down and the swollen blood vessels in the nose return to normal size. Of course, if the bleeding is slight, the simple measures explained above will, as a rule, suffice as treatment.

If bleeding continues for ten or fifteen minutes or longer, a physician should be consulted at once.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
M. P.: What is considered low blood pressure for a man 53 years of age? My blood pressure is 120.

Answer: Blood pressure of 120 is normal in a person of your age. There is no need for you to be worried about this matter.

SYNOPSIS
When the noted sleuth, Jim Bennett, accepted the invitation of his secretary, Sandy Hollis, to join with her family for a weekend of pleasant shooting in rural Ohio, he looked forward to a pleasant, quiet time. But when he met her family and friends, he realized that he was amid a drama of human conflict as tense as anything he'd experienced in his long crime-detection career. Sandy's young war-vest brother, Ralph, had "ditched" the spirited Judy Kirkland for doctile Eileen Fortune, and the hate between these two women flew like sparks. But the pleasant hunt proceeds as scheduled, with the Hollis', Eileen Fortune and her father Jake, and Bennett, armed and equipped to bring down birds. On a ridge overlooking the Kirkland property, Ralph Hollis is felled by gunshot and lies bleeding and unconscious on the ground. Judy Kirkland, wildly distraught, rushes to his side, admitting that she had been shooting back of the ridge, and that her gun may have accidentally got Ralph.

CHAPTER NINE

SANDY and I stood helplessly in the hospital corridor. After endless waiting, the doctor came to us and said "Ralph's got a chance. Two of the slugs penetrated the lung wall. How did it happen?"

Sandy glanced helplessly at me, and I told the doctor all I knew about the accident. When I finished, he looked thoughtful and said quietly, "I see. Who are you, by the way?"

"My name's Bennett—Jim Bennett."

Sandy said, "Doctor, he's my boss, in Cleveland. We came down together yesterday."

The doctor snapped his fingers. "Of course. The fact that Sandy works for you makes her a kind of celebrity around here." He smiled and held out a hand. "Glad to meet you, Jim."

We shook hands, and he said, "I've got to run, my office will be full. He glanced up at a big clock on the wall. "But first I've got to run out past your folks' place, Sandy. Can I give you a lift?"

"No, thanks," Sandy said. "I'll stay here for a while. "Will Ralph be all right?"

He hedged, as all doctors must. "I'll check him in a couple of hours."

As he moved away, I saw Mr. and Mrs. Hollis and Eileen Fortune coming up the corridor. Sandy went to meet them and I heard her say, "Now, don't worry. He'll be all right."

Homer Hollis said, "Judy came over to Jake's place and told us. I got Mom and drove right in. "You can't see him for a while," Sandy said, and the four of them sat on a bench along the wall. Mrs. Hollis looked as if she'd been crying, and Homer's lean face was grim. Eileen Fortune was sobbing openly. I moved down to them, and Homer said, "Jim, I'm sorry this had to happen—to spoil your visit."

"Don't worry about me," Mrs. Hollis said brokenly. "To think what that boy went through in the Army, and then he comes home . . ."

Homer patted her plump shoulder. Eileen Fortune's sobs grew louder, and she bunched a wadded handkerchief to her nose. It seemed to me that she looked quite unattractive, but I sternly told myself that I should be more charitable. After all, Ralph was her betrothed.

I saw Dr. Mazzini, dressed in street clothes again, standing at the far end of the corridor. Sandy saw him, too, and she said to me, "Go with him, Jim. There is no need for you to wait around here. I'll see you at the house."

"All right," I moved down to the doctor, asked him if I could ride with him as far as the Hollis place. He nodded, and we went out to his Ford. As we drove away, he said, "I've got to see a patient on the next road past the Hollis place."

We rode in silence for a while, but after we left the village limits the doctor said suddenly, "Judy's too careless—about everything. All she was thinking about was killing that bird, and she didn't pay attention to anything else. She should have seen Ralph, standing like you said on the top of the ravine."

"Yes," I said, noting that we were in the country and approaching the lane leading up to the Hollis farm. "Let me out at the top of the hill."

He looked at me quickly. "Is that near where it happened?"

"Fairly near. It was back off the highway, beyond the woods." He compressed his lips and he didn't speak again until he'd stopped the Ford on the edge of the highway at the top of the hill overlooking the Hollis farm and the adjoining land where Jake Fortune and Eileen lived. And through the distant trees I saw the gables of a tall old house and decided that it was the Kirkland place, where Judy's aunts spent their days in what I imagined was decadent loneliness. And from the hill top the tree-fringed ravine wound across the land of all three farms.

Dr. Mazzini said carefully, "It was an accident?"

I looked at him in surprise. "Of course."

He sat with his hands on the wheel and his eyes were bleak as they surveyed the countryside. "You wanted out here," he said, "and not at the Hollis lane. To me, that means you're going to look over the scene where it happened. You're a detective, with a big agency. You're almost the same as the law, and I know how your mind works. When I was just out of Western Reserve and interning I had a part-time job with the coroner's office. We had some homicides, of course. I helped on some of them, and I got to know some of the city detectives." He paused, his eyes on the horizon.

"Go on," I said gently.

He turned toward me. "I assume that you are aware that Judy Kirkland is a hellion, that Ralph Hollis jilted her for Eileen Fortune?"

"Go on," I said gently.

WASHINGTON—In a burst of pre-election spending and promises to spend, every Administration agency has labored night and day to replenish the pocketbooks and relieve the unemployment fears of millions of voters in every section of the country.

There is nothing sinister or unethical in timing the federal outlay so that it may contribute to election of a Republican Congress, or at least keep Democratic gains to a minimum. The strategy was stolen wholesale from the politico-economic books of the Roosevelt-Hopkins - Ickes era, when expenditures always boomed in the weeks before the opening of the voting booths.

But it is a fact that the Administration, not noted for prompt action or brilliant tactics in the past, has poured out the dollars at amazing speed and timeliness. While detailed estimates are not yet available, it is believed that the increased largeness for the September-October - November period will amount to several hundred million dollars, in addition to the ordinary government payments. The number of beneficiaries will run from six to ten million.

ACTION — The expanded Social Security bill, for instance, was not signed by President Eisenhower until Sept. 1. The measure provided that boosts in benefits become effective for the month of September.

Revising the records at Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby's office, making out the checks at Treasury and mailing them at the postoffice entailed a tremendous volume of tedious and complicated work.

But the September payments, which totaled $319 million for that month alone — a monthly jump of $36 million — were on the way to the recipients by Oct. 3. It is expected that the October checks will reach the 6.6 million retired workers and dependents before Nov. 2, Election Day.

HIGHWAYS—The 1954 Federal

Highway Act did not become law until a few months ago. The largest measure of its kind in legislative history, it appropriates almost $1 billion for new roads. The amount will reach approximately $2 billion as a result of state and local contributions.

The various Washington agencies involved on the basis of plans and blueprints on the shelves for several years, have given authority to the local government units to make contracts already. It will mean the hiring of men and the purchase of materials. Although necessary delays may hold up actual employment, it holds out the promise of work fairly soon in this field.

DWELLINGS — Despite extra work in ferreting out and cleaning out the "scandal" in the Federal Housing Agency, Administrator Albert M. Cole has rushed the preparation of new forms for real estate construction, purchases and mortgages, based on the milder terms provided by the recent Congress. The government's financial policies have been geared to making money cheap and plentiful.

Cole anticipates that about 1.2 million new homes will be constructed in 1955, which will equal the 1954 figures.

CONTRACTS — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson is preparing to award contracts totaling many hundreds of millions of dollars. In a generally unnoted paragraph of his "kennel and bird dog" interview, he said that he expected the contracts to relieve unemployment in many industrial centers by December.

Finally, although its effect may not be felt by Nov. 2, Eisenhower has a staff of advisers and experts framing a 10-year public works program—highways, hospitals, schools and colleges, military bases, waterways, maintenance, etc.—that will dwarf the Roosevelt-Hopkins - Ickes expenditures. The total cost is now placed at between $125 and $200 million.

Baum, Eitel Pumpkin Pies Take Top Honors Thursday

Winners To Vie For Grand Prize

Mrs. Frank Baum of Duvall is Thursday's Champion Betty Crocker Pumpkin Pie baker. Mrs. George Eitel took top honors in the contest sponsored by the Pumpkin Show, Inc., using her own choice of ingredients.

Mrs. Baum and Mrs. Eitel will vie with Mrs. Wilbur Neff and Mrs. Florence Rutherford, Wednesday's winners, and the Friday and Saturday champions in the Saturday evening bake-off. Grand prize in the contest is a Crosley Refrigerator, awarded by Ben Gordon with the cooperation of the Scioto Sales, Inc.

Mrs. Baum received a West Bend Deep Fryer as her award in the daily contest, while Mrs. Eitel was awarded a cash prize of $5. Mrs. Bill Lockard of 142 1-2 W. Main St. took second place in the Betty Crocker contest, and was recipient of a set of four aluminum cake pans.

Mrs. Jay Seaburn of Williamsport as second prize winner in the Pumpkin Show, Inc. contest, and received a cash award of $3.

Mrs. Don Miller of Circleville Route 1 won third place in both the General Mills Betty Crocker contest and the any-ingredient division. She was awarded a Betty Crocker Cook Book and a cash prize of $2.

Judges in the Thursday event were Miss Guilma A. Fisher, dietitian at Chillicothe Veterans Hospital; Mrs. Ernest Harper of Good Hope, former Home Economics teacher in Fayette County, and Mrs. Ruth Peters of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company.

Mrs. Sterling Poling and Mrs. John Griffiths, chairmen of a Junior Woman's Club committee in charge of the event, stated that Mrs. Baum revealed that her pie was baked with the magic formula of Mrs. Everett Peters of Ashville, champion of the 1952 and 1953 contests. This recipe was published at the close of the 1953 contest and again this year in the Thursday edition of The Circleville Herald.

Entries in each of the daily contests must be made in the Lutheran Parish House between 11 a. m. and 2 noon on the day of the judging. All pies become the property of the Pumpkin Show, Inc. and are sold in a booth sponsored by the show officials and the Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Richard Penn is booth chairman.

Entries in the Betty Crocker contest, sponsored by General Mills and the merchants of Pickaway County, must be made either with Betty Crocker Stir-n-Roll crust, using Gold Medal Flour and Wesson Oil, or with Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix.

The pie filling must be made with either Country Colonel or Winorr Canned Pumpkin. All entries must be accompanied by the labels of the products used.

Entries in the cash award contest may be made with any type crust, and may contain any ingredients, according to the wishes of the baker.

Winners in each of the divisions of the daily contests are eligible to compete in the final bake-off Saturday evening. All entries in the grand prize contest must be made with Betty Crocker Stir-n-Roll crust or with Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix. The filling must be made with either Country Colonel or Winorr Canned Pumpkin.

All entries in the final contest must be accompanied by the labels of the products used and must be in the parish house by 6 p. m., when the contest closes.

Winner in the final contest will have her name inscribed on a Betty Crocker Annual Award Plaque.

Ashville Women Conduct Meeting Of Church Group

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Ashville Methodist church held a regular meeting in the church with 38 members and guests present.

Mrs. J. E. Courtright conducted the devotionals, using as her subject, "Christ, The Way". Mrs. T. R. Acord, program chairman, presented The Rev. Emerson Abts, Seibert Duvall, Richard Cook and Chester Hedges in two vocal selections. They were accompanied by Mrs. Duvall at the piano.

Miss Mary Lou Cloud sang, "Enough to Know". She was accompanied on the organ by Mrs. John Hardin.

Mrs. Elliot Crites gave a brief summary of the Fourth Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, which was held at Milwaukee, Wis. The three main subjects discussed were: Peace, Missions and the World Church.

Following an organ selection presented by Miss Carolyn Stout, Mrs. John Dick, district treasurer of the society, gave a few remarks on her work.

The members voted to sponsor a chicken pie supper in November and Mrs. Roy Teegardin urged members to contribute toward a pair of shoes for a Korean child. This collection will be taken at the next meeting.

The session closed with the theme song, "The Christian Life". Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Courtright and her committee.

Committees Are Named At Meet Of Auxiliary

Committees for the coming year were named by Mrs. Charles Bartholomew, president of the Auxiliary of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, during the regular meeting held in the Legion home.

Mrs. Clark Martin was appointed chairman of a membership committee; Mrs. Ola Steele, flower committee chairman; Mrs. Dudley Coffland, head of entertainment; Mrs. Robert Liston, publicity chairman, and Mrs. Carl Radcliff, head of sales stamp collections.

Mrs. Martin was also appointed to head a membership drive for the auxiliary. She will be assisted by Mrs. Robert Valentine, Mrs. James Morrison and Mrs. Clifford Kerns.

A Pumpkin Show exhibit committee announced that the group is entering a decorated car in the parade during the annual event.

Mrs. James Price and Mrs. Fred Boggs gave a report on a successful rummage sale sponsored by the group. A resume also was given on a social party held to honor members of the Drum and Bugle Corps.

which will remain in her possession until a new champion is declared. Mrs. Everett Peters of Ashville, present holder of the plaque, will make the award during ceremonies to be held at 8:30 p. m. Saturday on the platform at Court and Main Sts.

The winner also will be awarded the grand champion prize of a Crosley Refrigerator, through the courtesy of Ben Gordon with the cooperation of the Scioto Sales, Inc.

Gingerbread In Party Quantity Molasses And Fruit Enriched

Unsulphured Molasses Tops In Flavor and Color

Gingerbread invites by its molasses spice and aroma. Here the party gingerbread comes of mellow color and with the sweet flavor perfection of unsulphured molasses. Baking soda has been used, and baking powder, too, as the extra leavening agent to account for the dessert's feathery lightness.

This gingerbread can be served economically and with a variety of toppings. It is excellent with applesauce and other fruit, ice cream or chocolate, lemon or hard sauces.

Party Gingerbread

4 cups sifted all-purpose flour	1 1/4 cups shortening
1 1/2 teaspoons salt	1 1/4 cups sugar
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder	1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1 1/4 teaspoons each, ginger, cloves and cinnamon	1 1/4 cups unsulphured molasses
	2 large eggs
	1 1/4 cups butter-milk

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and spices. Cream together shortening, sugar and soda; blend in unsulphured molasses. Stir in 1/2 cup flour mixture. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add buttermilk alternately with remaining flour mixture. Beat 1/2 minute. Turn into a well greased and lightly floured 15 1/2 x 10 1/4 x 2 1/2-inch baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 50 minutes.

YIELD: 24 servings.

100 Attend Republican Dinner Meet

Over 100 persons attended a carry-in dinner sponsored by the Pickaway County Women's Republican Club in the Scioto Grange Hall.

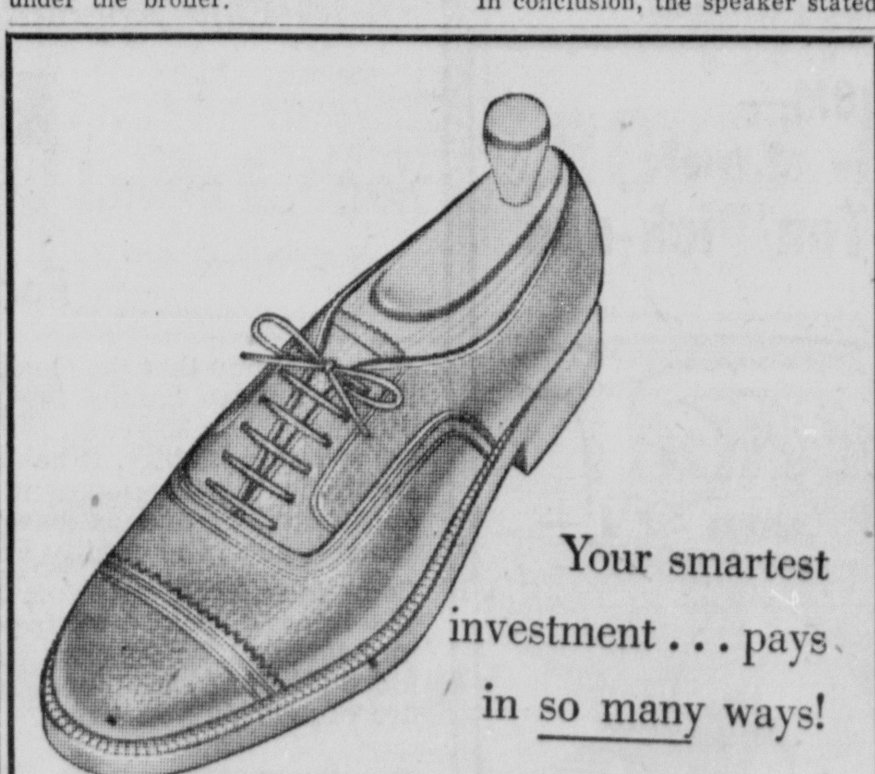

Music was provided by the Ashville High School Band and Fred Brown presented four vocal solos during the evening. He was accompanied by Miss Ann O'Hara.

Mrs. H. O. Caldwell, club president, introduced the speakers, who included:

Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, Wilbur Shull, Robert Shaw and George Lutz. The offices of Ted W. Brown and C. William O'Neil also were represented.

Hostesses for the event were: Mrs. Elmer Payne, chairman, Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey, Mrs. A. D. Pettibone, Mrs. Earl Kissell, Mrs. Ethel Valentine, Mrs. Donald Watt, Mrs. Paul Peters, Mrs. Arthur Swingle, Mrs. Elliot Crites, Miss Doris Cook, Mrs. W. J. Whitehead and Mrs. Isaac Miller.

A little leftover ham and chicken will make a fine luncheon dish this way: Scoop our baked potatoes and mash with butter or margarine, a little hot milk or cream, salt, pepper and minced parsley. Now dice the chicken and ham fine and add. Pile the mashed potato back into the shells, sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in the oven or under the broiler.

Guidance for Family Living

A FATHER EXHORTS HIS SON TO KEEP THE LAWS OF LIFE WHICH HAVE SERVED HIM WELL

Scripture—Proverbs 4; 6:20-7:27; 17:1; 19:13-14; 31:10-31.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
WHAT ARE the rules of life, if followed diligently, will lead us to make the most of our lives? We know we need not be rich in money and goods to be happy. We may even be poor in this world's goods, but rich in love and happiness.

Solomon, that wise man of old, tells us how his conduct was guided by his father, King David, which should be helpful to us.

We have been shocked in recent months to read or know about the vicious behavior of some groups of children. According to the accounts, many of these youngsters did not come from the slums. Some were children of people who lived in comfortable homes and were considered good, upright citizens.

Some were from broken homes, where the father, perhaps, had deserted his family or his actions had caused the mother to separate from him or divorce him. Two married people may not be happy together, but, surely, when there are children to consider, their love for them and the knowledge that they need both parents, should make the parents unselfish enough to try, and keep on trying, to make adjustments so that the home may be maintained.

Let us read the words of Solomon:

"house full of sacrifices with strife," we read. Strife in the home is often the cause of children's misbehavior. A home may be filled with children's laughter and fun, which the parents may share, but underneath there is a quietness that soothes. It may be a very humble home, but where this quietness is, there is peace and happiness.

The other side of the picture is shown in Proverbs, Verse 13 of Chapter 19: "A foolish son is the calamity of his father; and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping."

A foolish son is one who does not reciprocate his parents' love or recognize their wisdom. And what is worse in a home than a contentious person—whether it be wife or husband—one who is irritable and scolding and a curse, instead of a blessing, in the home.

Solomon pays the greatest and most beautiful tribute to a good woman to be found in all literature in the last chapter of his Proverbs.

"Who can find a virtuous woman?" for her price is above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life."

Then he recounts her activities;

MEMORY VERSE

"My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother."—Proverbs 6:20.

mon: "My son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother; Bind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck. When thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou wakest, it shall talk with thee."

We who are fortunate enough to have come from happy homes, with parents who were upright and God fearing and loved each other, know how the admonitions of our parents follow us through life. We remember even their trivial sayings with happy recollections and affection.

Not only their sayings, but their actions have made a deep impression on our minds when we were very young, and they help us all through the years, just as King David's counsel was so well remembered that his son wrote it down for the world to read. He and his father and mother must have been very close to each other. Such a tie reminds us that God is our Father who is even closer to us than a living human father.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding," we read in last week's lesson. Wisdom and its understanding will keep the man true to his own soul as well as to his family. He may be tempted, but will not yield to the evil.

"Better is a dry morsel, and providing good food and clothing for her family, which meant weaving cloth (as our pioneer mothers did, making it into comfortable garments). Rising in the early morning to tend husband and children off to work or school with a good meal; stretching out her hands to the poor.

"She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness. Her children arise up, and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praiseth her. . . . Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain; but a woman who feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."

Such a woman reminds us of the poet Lord Tennyson's words in his poem, "The Princess." "Happy be with such a mother; faith in womankind beats in his blood, and trust in all things high comes easy to him."

In a home with such parents, even if a man "trip and fall," as the poet says, he will not be lost, but will return again to the paths of righteousness, avoiding evil, clinging to that which is good.

If we carefully read the words of Solomon's, written so many years ago, but still full of wisdom for us of the modern world, and if we memorize them and try to follow them throughout our lives, we will not only be better citizens, but better Christians, and surely our conduct will be pleasing to God, our heavenly Father.

AUSTRALIA'S CAPITAL, DESIGNED BY AMERICAN, IS A TIE TO U. S.

Parliament House is most imposing government building in Australia's made-to-order capital, Canberra.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Australia and the United States, already closely linked in the new Southeast Asia Treaty organization and the Anzus Pact of 1952, have another sentimental attachment—their two capital cities were struck off the same mold.

Canberra, the gleaming white metropolis which holds the unique distinction of being the only capital of an entire continent, was designed only 40 years ago by a famous American architect and city planner, Walter Burley Griffin of Chicago.

Just as Americans honor the memory of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant and glory in seeing Washington still emerging in the grand design he drew, Australians celebrate Griffin as a national hero.

Actually Griffin and his wife, Marion, who helped him bring Canberra into being off the drafting boards, have won places in the hearts of those who live "down under" such as have few Americans among a foreign people.

That is because not only did the disciple of the great Chicago town planner, Daniel Burnham, and of the famed Frank Lloyd Wright win the dramatic world-wide $10,000 competition Australia held for a design of its new capital city, but in 1913 he and his wife went there to superintend the initial construction.

THEY REMAINED to design many notable buildings that stand today, and a visitor from the United States to Castlereag, Sydney's exclusive suburb, will rub his eyes and think he is back in Illinois or Wisconsin looking at specimens of the Wright school of design.

Canberra was created when Australians could not decide between Sydney and Melbourne, and undertook to emulate the United States in building a federal city on an idyllic site at the foot of the Australian Alps.

The idea of building a national

Frank Lloyd Wright, had integrated their design with the actual terrain.

Washington provided the master pattern for the city layout, as the many circular parks and radiating thoroughfares in Canberra indicate. Moreover, in Griffin's estimation, Canberra like Washington, was not to be a city of industry and commerce, "but a dream-faded metropolis realizing in its plan the ideal of a nation."

GRiffin lived to see his dream well on its way toward fulfillment. A city of 2,000 quickly sprang up. Waterworks were built to supply an eventual population of 70,000. Excavations revealed that seven prehistoric lakes had existed in the very spots he marked out for basins in an immense layout of parks among the governmental buildings, indicating how closely he had sensed the contours sight-unseen thousands of miles away!

Canberra today, a city of 15,000, lies in a beautiful valley 2,000 feet above sea level, as though in an amphitheater overlooked by surrounding hills and mountains. Thousands of American visitors to the Olympic Games of 1956 may visit the brain child of their countryman.

It bids fair to become one of the most beautiful cities in the world. A fitting tribute to the genius of Washington's designer, L'Enfant, it constitutes a challenge for the famous French architect, M. Le Corbusier, as he works on Punjab's $36 million undertaking at Chandigarh, and for Prof. Donald J. Belcher of Cornell university as he projects a proposed new capital for Brazil.

Not until the award had been made to Griffin, however, did the Australians learn how narrowly he missed not getting it in under the wire. He and Mrs. Griffin, who was a noted architect in her own right, finished the elaborate drawings just in time for him to catch a taxi for the last train that would connect with the last boat sailing in time for Australia. That race through icy streets is part of Australian historical lore.

The Griffins had the edge because they obtained contour maps of the city's proposed site, and following the precepts of the master,

Badger-Buckeye Joust May Tell Big Ten Title

Arkansas And Ole Miss Pitted; Each Also Has Eye On Bowl Trip

The Associated Press

The time has come for Wisconsin to start thinking seriously in terms of winning the Big Ten championship and making the jaunt to the Rose Bowl next Jan. 1.

The Badgers, who weren't considered any great shakes in pre-season estimates of the Western Conference, meet rough, tough Ohio State tomorrow in a game that could make or break their hopes. The Buckeyes, too, are very much in the race for league honors.

Ivy Williamson's lads still would have to get past Iowa, Northwestern, Illinois and Minnesota even if they do beat Ohio State. But there's no denying that this is the big one.

For Ohio State, the game represents another big stumbling block in its bid for the title. Even if the Buckeyes do win, they'll still have to whip Purdue and Michigan.

In the South, the big interest will be the battle between Mississippi and Arkansas. Ole Miss is co-leader of the Southwest Conference and Arkansas is the surprise of the Southwest Conference.

Both teams are looking ahead to New Year's Day and a bowl game. But even more important at this stage, the game should provide a good insight on Mississippi's strength. The school has been tabbed as one with a weak schedule and this accusation has hurt its national standing.

Meanwhile, there's a game with national implications on tap for tonight when the undefeated University of Miami entertains Maryland. The Terps, mythical national champions last year, took a nose-dive at the start of the current campaign but looked good beating North Carolina 33-0 last week.

William and Mary tangles with George Washington, Detroit engages Tulsa and Houston plays Villanova in other important games tonight.

Oklahoma, the No 1 team in the country in the weekly Associated Press poll, takes on Kansas State. UCLA, No 2, also has an easy one against Oregon State, beaten three times.

Colorado, which very well could get the Orange Bowl assignment, meets Nebraska, and Southern California, which could be the Rose Bowl host, takes on California.

Among the other top-ranked teams in the nation, Minnesota goes against Michigan; Army plays Columbia; and West Virginia figures to toy with Virginia Military Institute. Notre Dame isn't scheduled.

There will be three television games of the week under the NCAA program tomorrow. The one that will be seen in most sections will pair Pitt against Northwestern. The Boston University-Holy Cross game will be beamed to the New England states and the Brigham Young-Montana contest will be seen in the Far West.

There was one game yesterday and it came out as expected. South Carolina, the team that upset Army at the start of the season, defeated Clemson 13-8.

$4,000 Mare Wins Lush Gotham Trot

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP)—Katie Key, a bargain $4,000 purchase in the fall of 1952, may not be voted the best aged trotting mare of the season, but she'll get plenty of support in the final reckoning.

The 7-year-old daughter of Long Key took command in the stretch last night to win the $29,375 mile-and-one-half Gotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway by 1 1/2 lengths over Faber Hanover.

Faber Hanover, 4-year-old colt owned by the Farmstead Acres of Brookville, and driven by the nation's top reinsman, Billy Haughton, set most of the pace and would have won except for breaking stride in the stretch.

Whitely Lockman, Giant's first baseman, made 40 putouts in the World Series. He played errorless ball.

WHAT price fame—grid fame, that is? Plenty!

COLLEGE FOOTBALL is big business and if you don't think so, consider what it costs to outfit a team, feed it and transport it through a season.

For example, did you know it cost the University of Michigan $10,000-$11,000 to feed the boys during the one month pre-school training period? That's three meals a day and those husky lads can really work up an appetite after several hours of hard practice. During the school season only one meal a day is furnished the boys but it's three meals at $10 to $12 a head each day when the team plays an out-of-town game and an added $15,000 is doled out by the athletic department for travel and payment to game officials during one season.

Price of Outfitting a Player
Football $14.00	Shoulder pads $20.00
Helmet 20.00	Hip pads 10.00
Jersey 12.00	Shoes 20.00
Pants 12.00	Hose 2.00
Belt 1.50	T shirt, shorts 1.60
Thigh pads . . . 7.00	Supporter75
Knee pads 3.00	Sox60
TOTAL—$124.95

Although an average of 33 players make up a varsity team, some 65 behind-the-scenes employees are needed to operate a football team successfully. To give you an idea here's the breakdown at the University of Michigan: 2 in the athletic director's office, 2 in publicity, 9 on the coaching staff, 3 trainers, 4 in the equipment room (they take care of the uniforms and equipment, shoe repair, sewing and laundry), 2 movie cameramen, 10 on the ground crew, 15 in the ticket office (4 used the year-around), 12 head ushers (they are paid), 4 press box employees and one physician.

Minor League Club Chiefs Eye Finances

COLUMBUS (AP)—Added financial aid to smaller baseball clubs was discussed here at a three-day meeting which closed yesterday. Major League farm directors and minor league leaders attended the closed sessions.

They declined to say what problems were discussed or what legislation was formulated for presentation to the minor league convention in Houston, Tex., Nov. 29 through Dec. 3.

Reports that leaked out of the meeting, however, cited: An earlier recall deadline, possibly June 30, after which no major league club could take a player from a minor league club which it owned or with which it had a working agreement.

Reduction of the major league player limit from 25 to 23 with AAA teams limited to 20 or 21.

Revision of working agreements between majors and minors to give the smaller loops more financial aid.

Restriction of radio and television broadcasts by major league clubs into minor league territory.

under the safeguards of the rules of evidence. As it stands at the moment, Owen Lattimore is guilty of nothing under the law. He may never be. But it is not to his advantage that he should be tried by a judge who could say in 1953:

"In our proper concern for the internal and external threat of Communism and in pursuing our efforts to strike down this threat, we should endeavor to be consistent and not attempt to require a conformity in thought and beliefs that has no relevancy to a present danger to our security. . . ."

This obiter dicta had nothing to do with the indictment in the Lattimore Case. It had nothing to do with the facts of American life after the theft of the atom bomb and the failure in Korea.

Kittens Record 6th Straight; Defeat Wilmington 26 To 7

CHS Reserve Footballers Keep Slate Clean;
Wilmington Had Previously Been Unbeaten

Playing their best game of the season, Circleville High School's footballers rolled to a 26-7 victory over Wilmington's reserves in that city Thursday afternoon.

It was the sixth consecutive win for the unbeaten Kittens and they have a 3-0 record against South-Central Ohio League teams, with Greenfield yet to play. The only other game standing between the Kittens and a perfect season is one with Chillicothe, whom the reserves defeated here earlier in the season by a 14-6.

Until Wilmington's reserves also had been unbeaten, Circleville scored the first time it had the ball, however, and jumped to a 26-0 lead early in the fourth quarter before Wilmington could push over a touchdown against the second and third team defense.

The Kittens actually marched 105 yards to score their first touchdown. Wilmington kicked off to start the game, and Jim Beck returned the ball only to the Circleville 10-yard line.

FROM THAT POINT, CHS marched steadily upfield to the Wilmington 15, only to have a clipping penalty move the ball back to the 30.

Undaunted, the Kittens scored on two long running plays, with Dave Carpenter lugging the ball on both occasions. The score came with Carpenter carrying off tackle and rambling 15 yards into the end zone. Jim Beck's placement kick was good.

CHS wasted a couple of scoring opportunities later in the half when passes were dropped. But they made the score 13-0 on the last play of the first half when Quarterback Wendell Emerine pitched to End Fred Garner across the goal line. Beck's attempt was blocked.

Bee Stings Fatal

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP)—A swarm of bees stung James J. Fagan nearly 100 times yesterday while his wife watched. She ran to neighbors for help. They lit torches and smoked off the bees, but Fagan, 55, was dead.

William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were the opposing lawyers in the famous Scopes trial of 1925.

tempted placement was blocked.

The second half was a continuation of the first, with halfbacks Dave Carpenter and Gary Phifer ripping off several long gains with the aid of blocks thrown by Fullback Larry Lemley.

Midway through the third quarter, with the ball resting on the Wilmington 22, Carpenter again blasted off tackle, cut back, and crossed the goal standing up to make the score 19-0. Beck's attempted placement was again blocked.

THE LAST CIRCLEVILLE touchdown came early in the fourth quarter when a long pass from Quarterback Roger McConnell to End Bill Johnson moved the ball all the way from the Circleville 40 to the Wilmington 5. On the second play, Phifer took a pitchout and raced around end to score. Beck's placement was good and the score read 26-0.

At this point, a completely new defensive team was placed on the field for Circleville and Wilmington got its only TD soon after.

The victory was particularly encouraging in that Dick Banks is being given a shot at the varsity quarterback job and Sophomore Wendell Emerine was handling the club by himself—and did a nice job, according to coach Dick Boyd.

Kendall Dawson, Circleville's middle guard on defense, was praised after the game by the Wilmington coach for his work on defense.

At this point, a completely new defensive team was placed on the field for Circleville and Wilmington got its only TD soon after.

Bee Stings Fatal

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP)—A swarm of bees stung James J. Fagan nearly 100 times yesterday while his wife watched. She ran to neighbors for help. They lit torches and smoked off the bees, but Fagan, 55, was dead.

William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were the opposing lawyers in the famous Scopes trial of 1925.

Plant Dedicated

ASHTABULA (AP)—The new $6 million plant of the General Tire Rubber Co. for the manufacture of polyvinyl chloride resin was dedicated here yesterday by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

2 GIs Knotted In AF Tourney

EGLIN BASE, Fla. (AP)—Service-men from two Texas Air Force bases were in first and second places in the AF worldwide golf tournament today on the strength of two sub-par rounds.

Airman IC James L. Brass of Lackland AFB toured the difficult par 72 Eglin course in 71 yesterday to add to his 68 first round figure for a 139 total.

Right behind him at the halfway mark was 2nd Lt. Joe W. Conrad, Gary AFB, with 140.

Santa Claus Pays Another Early Visit To Mr. Saxton

NEW YORK (AP)—It was December in October for Johnny Saxton today.

Santa Claus paid another visit to the freshly crowned welterweight champion and dropped another present down his chimney—a suspension of his 15-day jail sentence for 12 traffic violations.

But just how long Santa will continue to bestow favors on the 24-year-old Negro champ remains to be seen.

There was talk of a possible title bout between the New Yorker and Carmen Basilio, the No. 1 contender from Canastota, N.Y., but that was clouded by the shoots of ex-champion Kid Gavilan's handlers that the Cuban has "an ironclad return bout contract."

Norm Rothschild, the Syracuse, N.Y., promoter, has offered Saxton $40,000 to put his title on the line against Basilio in Syracuse. But there's the big question of whether Saxton would draw a gate with anybody, including a hot local attraction.

The reluctant champion, about as cautious and boring a fighter to come on the scene in modern days, has been a party to four prize "stinkers" in the last three years. He reached the apex of his career of etherizing the customers in Philadelphia's Convention Hall Wednesday night when he decided Gavilan.

Gavilan, Manager Angel Lopez and trainer Mundito Medina had cooled down somewhat yesterday from their high fever at post-fight time. Then, in the heat of the announcement that the Kid had lost his crown, they had shouted the old refrain of boxing: "We wuz robbed."

The dapper manager and night club owner insisted, "We have an ironclad return bout contract for New York City. Saxton can fight nobody else until he fights the Keed first."

Frank (Blinky) Palermo, the Philadelphia manager of Saxton, who once said his buddy Lopez didn't have to worry about a return—"He has my word"—now was singing another tune.

"We ain't signed for nobody," said the Blink. "All we want is dough."

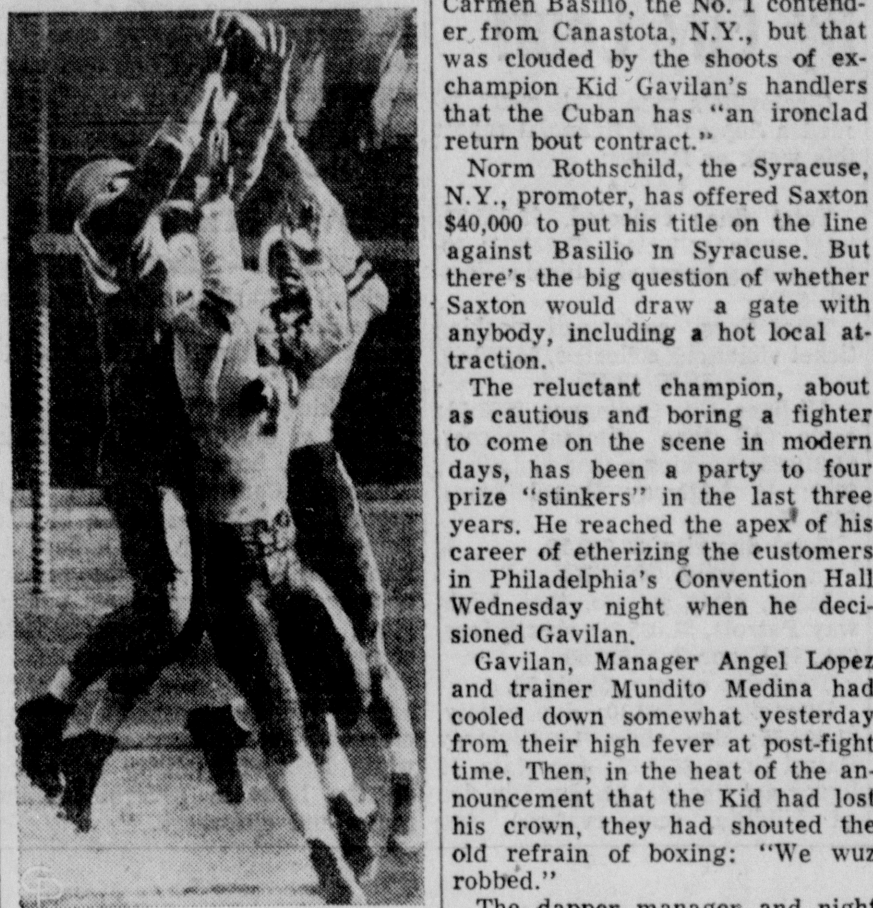

Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, said as far as the IBC knew there was no return contract. He shuddered when the question was put to him. He said the IBC was interested in a Basilio-Saxton match.

Saxton, who had $600 in fines for his traffic tickets, paid another $50 for a speeding charge.

"Don't let it happen again," warned Chief Magistrate John Murtagh when he suspended Saxton's jail term.

An eloquent plea by Saxton's lawyer, John J. Duff, helped get Saxton off. The attorney said Johnny's dull performance was the result of worry about his pending jail sentence.

"Even the defendant's best friend could not say he fought his best fight," said Duff.

New Owners Of A's Chafing At AL Delay

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The new owners of the Philadelphia Athletics, not officially owners at all, are chafing at the bit.

Arthur Rosenberg, spokesman for the nine-man syndicate which purchased the A's, said he can't understand what's holding up American League approval.

"If favorable or unfavorable news isn't received" from League President William Harridge today, Rosenberg said, "two men will be sent to Chicago to talk with him."

But Rosenberg added his group wants to be delicate about everything. Antagonizing Harridge or other American League officials would do the new owners cause no good, he said.

"We have sent Harridge a list of the new owners with their financial and social background," he said. "Roy Mack has informed the league president that he and his brother Earle and father Connie have sold us the club. If there is any other information Harridge wants, we are not aware of what it is."

The syndicate spokesman explained his group is at a disadvantage. "Under baseball law," he said, "we can't contact Harridge and demand approval. Only the selling stockholders can deal with the league office. We have to wait until we're approved or called in for consultation."

In Chicago yesterday, Harridge said Roy Mack still had not provided him with the signed bill of particulars. He said this is necessary for league approval.

Browns To Test Cardinals Again

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland's Browns, just another football team for the first time in their history, move to Chicago tomorrow for a return match against the Cardinals, their only victim this year.

Coach Paul Brown, never a losing coach this deep in a professional season, contends his club is better than it has looked.

After reviewing motion pictures of the 55-27 shellacking Pittsburgh handed the Browns last Sunday, the coach said the team, nevertheless, "played some pretty good football, shockingly so considering the score."

Brown remarked that "actually, the pictures were reassuring" and then blamed the outcome on "some terrific errors."

Mrs. Bertha Porter Sweepstakes Winner In Flower Exhibit

Loring Hill, Mrs. Pontius Tied Second

Mrs. Harold Norris Receives Trophy For Arrangement

By GRACE SCHELB
Herald Staff Writer

Mrs. Bertha Porter was declared sweepstakes winner with the most ribbon points for entries in the annual Pumpkin Show Flower Exhibit.

Loring Hill and Mrs. Turney Pontius were tied for second high in ribbon points in the display. Cash awards have been presented these winners by the Pickaway Garden Club.

Mrs. Harold Norris has been awarded a Pumpkin Show trophy for the best arrangement in the show, according to an announcement by Mrs. G. G. Campbell, chairman of the exhibit.

Assisting Mrs. Campbell with the huge display of 576 entries, 69 of which are Junior Gardener displays, were:

MRS. OSCAR ROOT, Mrs. D. J. Carpenter, Mrs. Luther Bowers, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. Turney Pontius, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Harold Anderson and Mrs. James Moffitt.

The Fall rains and the late frost both were in favor of the exhibitors, who garnered the best of their late Fall flowers to form a huge and colorful display in the Hill Implement Company on E. Franklin St.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Frank Cooper of Piketon and Mrs. John Butler of Columbus, both nationally accredited judges.

Cash awards were presented to the three top winners in each of the classes in the various sections. Winners in the various classes are as follows:

Cactus Jack Ups Pledge To Charity

UVALDE, Tex. (AP)—Former Vice President John Nance (Cactus Jack) Garner, who'll be 86 a month from today, has boosted his annual donation to the Community Chest by $100.

His liking for old-fashioned "cowboy stew" apparently was a factor.

Garner first upped his contribution $50. Then the volunteer solicitor, Uvalde newspaperman J. A. Scarborough, asked if Garner still liked "cowboy stew."

After Garner, with keen interest, said yes, Scarborough told him he had just killed a calf and would bring Garner the stew ingredients.

McArthur School Robbed Of $750

McARTHUR (AP)—A thief entered McArthur High School through a basement window and stole about $750 from the office of Supt. George Steele.

The money had been collected for school lunches, class rings and candy bars, and from athletic events. Nothing but the cash was disturbed, and Sheriff William Brown observed:

"It looks as if someone who knew about the school did it."

Bishop Says Reds Show Varied Colors

BOSTON (AP)—Catholic Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston says, "The Reds have taken on so many colors it is sometimes difficult to spot them."

Speaking yesterday at the convention of the CIO Utilities Workers Union, he said:

"Some Communists are pink professors. Some are blue bloods. Some are lavender old ladies. At least one has donned the scarlet of a dean. Some are green youngsters, freshly sprouted in the field of politics and social action."

"Yellow is a color not unknown among the Reds, especially when citizens become aroused and the white light of publicity is turned on the Reds in government bureaus and elsewhere."
